House Passes Third Reading of the Measure Without Any Vote Being Taken.

PROTEST ON SUBMARINES

OPPOSITION SEEN IN JAPAN

But Approval Is Held Certain—Privy Council May Score Neglect of Naval General Staff.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—By far the easiest piece of legislation which the MacDonald Government has had to deal with this session is the naval treaty bill. Last night it passed the second reading. Tonight it not only passed through the committee stage but it passed the third reading as well, the latter step being taken without a division.

In committee, Clause 2, repealing Section IV of the Treaties of Washington Act of 1922, which provides for the trial and punishment of persons violating certain rules for the protection of neutrals and non-combatants at sea, was agreed to by 190 to 58 votes.

Commander A. R. Southby, Conservative, protested that no case had been made for the omission of Section IV which, he said, gave some safeguard against acts of piracy by submarines in time of war.

To this, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, replied it would be useless to keep on the statute book a penalty which had been superseded by Article XXII of the London Naval Treaty, which had been agreed to by all the five powers and which was sure to be ratified by all of them.

Churchill Gives Warning.

This reply did not convince a number of Conservatives who took the view that Article XXII did not take the place of the principle enunciated in Article IV of the Washington treaty. The House of Commons, said one Conservative member, should not be deterred from taking a step which it believed to be right, without waiting for the agreement of the other powers.

"The employment of submarines in the way they were used by the Germans during the World War should be treated as an act of piracy," was an observation which drew Conservative cheers.

When the committee stage had been concluded and the bill came up for the third reading, Winston Churchill said the Conservatives' assent to it "does not commit us on the approval of the treaty instrument itself."

The MacDonald Government, however, has little fear of this threatened opposition.

Emperor Submits Treaty.

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKYO, July 24.—The Emperor today submitted the London naval treaty to the Privy Council for ratification. This long-delayed action followed upon Premier Hamaguchi's call at the Summer palace at Hayama this morning, when he requested the Emperor to place the pact before the Privy Council. Upon his return from Hayama the Premier called upon Baron Kuratomi, president of the Privy Council, and discussed with him the date for convening the council. It is expected it will be called to meet some time next week.

In anticipation of the government's action, the Privy Council has already considered the appointment of a committee which will be called upon to study the treaty and report to the full council in much the same manner as that in which the Foreign Relations Committee of the American Senate acts.

Opponents to Be on Committee.

Of the ten members mentioned as likely to be named on the committee, at least four are known to be opponents of the pact. The members favorable to the pact who are likely to be on the committee include Viscount Ishii, former envoy to Washington; Senshi Egi, brother of the Minister of Railways; Eikichi Kamada, former president of Keio University; Baron Masaki Tomii, who is favorable to the Minseito party, and Baron Kenjiro Den. Those known to oppose the treaty include either Baron Hiranuma, vice president of the Privy Council and a strong opponent of the government, or Count Miyoji Ito, a bitter opponent of Reijiro Wakatsuki, who was Japan's chief delegate to the London conference, as head of the committee; Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, former president of the American-Japan So-

Lightning Hits 4 Golfers And 3 Caddies on Course

NASHUA, N. H., July 24 (AP).—Four business men and three of their caddies were burned, one seriously, tonight by lightning which struck the flagpole on a rest house on the eleventh green at the Nashua Country Club golf course. They had taken refuge in the house from a storm.

Benjamin Laform, president of the Nashua Baking Company, was seriously burned and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. His brother, Romeo R. Laform, treasurer of the company; Peter Desautels, superintendent of the Nashua division of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and August U. Burque, a jeweler, suffered minor burns and were treated at home.

Three of four caddies who were with the men were treated at the hospital and sent home. The fourth dashed from the house when the lightning struck.

HOOVER BARS LIQUOR IN EMBASSY COSTS

PRIVATE OUTLAY CONTINUES

Ruling on New Allowance to "Uphold Prestige" of Nation Also Excludes Auto Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The United States for the first time forbade the purchase of liquor with government funds by American diplomats and Consuls abroad when the State Department made public today an executive order by President Hoover stipulating that expense allowances appropriated by Congress should not be used for this purpose.

Although there has been frequent agitation by drys for the State Department to forbid foreign service officers abroad from buying liquor, the department has stood on the proposition first laid down by Charles E. Hughes as Secretary of State that if it was legal in the country in which a diplomat was stationed to purchase liquor, the department would not interfere.

There has been no announcement of any change in this respect so far as private expenditures are concerned, but the new executive order sets up the restriction as to use of public funds. The order was issued as a result of the appropriation by Congress at its last sesstion of the relatively small sum of $94,000 for "representation" expenses of American diplomatic and Consular missions abroad.

Other Restrictions Imposed.

Although authorization for such a fund was voted by Congress in 1924, no appropriation under that act was made until the last session. This was done at the behest of Secretary Stimson, who sought additional allowances for the State Department and the Foreign Service so that the United States might have more adequate representation in the handling of its foreign relations.

Increases were voted for the pay of additional officials and the expense fund was provided for the first time, thereby requiring regulations for its administration.

The executive order specifically provides that none of the money may be used for hire, purchase, operation, maintenance or repair of any motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles, club or association dues, printing or engraving expenses, purchase of alcoholic beverages.

To make certain that the expenses will be properly used the order re-

Djamgarov Declares Manager of Soviet Agency Here as Officer of Body, Arrested Him in 1920.

In an atmosphere surcharged with melodrama and with revelations in which the score appeared equally divided between the assailants and defenders of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the Soviet commercial agency in the United States, the Congressional committee investigating Communist activities adjourned its hearings here yesterday. The inquiry will be resumed in Detroit at a date to be announced by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., chairman of the committee.

The day's proceedings began calmly enough with the testimony of Michael Feodorovitch Ziavkin, the 36-year-old general manager of the Amtorg. Then a tiff developed between Representative John E. Nelson of Maine and Chairman Fish over the admissibility of certain evidence. Next there was a battle between witnesses and members of the committee over the authenticity of the documents given out by former Police Commissioner Whalen charging the Amtorg with Communist propaganda. And then came a tempestuous finale in which attacks were made on both the Amtorg and Mr. Whalen.

Defenders of the Amtorg struck the last blow when they presented a mass of evidence purporting to show that the documents released by Mr. Whalen linking the Amtorg with the activities of the Communist International were palpable forgeries manufactured in this city. Joseph Michael, attorney for the Amtorg, the last witness, who supplied a detailed analysis of the documents, left the stand with the triumphant declaration that the Whalen papers must now take their place with the Orloff documents, the Zinoviev letter and other anti-Soviet revelations of questionable character.

Djamgarov on the Stand.

The first blow at the Amtorg was dealt by George Djamgarov, an anti-Soviet propagandist, who, under oath, identified Mr. Ziavkin as a former high official of the Cheka who had arrested him in Rostov in 1920. Mr. Djamgarov said he had never seen Ziavkin again until his appearance before the committee yesterday.

"I recognize him as the head of the flying squadron of the Cheka who, when I was his prisoner as an officer of the White Army during the civil war in Russia, had slapped me in the face," Mr. Djamgarov said. "I never knew his name but he is the same man."

Michael Handler, a gray-haired, timid little man, testified that from 1920 to 1925 he had been a member of the Cheka, later the G. P. U., and that in December of 1925 he had attended a secret meeting of G. P. U. officials in Moscow at which three agents of the G. P. U. were delegated as officials of the Amtorg to conduct subversive Communist activ-

Midshipmen Who Took Girls To Academy Mess to Be Ousted

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP).—A recommendation for the dismissal of two midshipmen who took two Washington girls into the dormitory and mess hall of the Naval Academy at Annapolis was approved today by Secretary Adams.

In making known that he had transmitted the recommendation to President Hoover, both the Secretary and the Navy Department shielded their names, but from other sources it became known the youths were Lawrence L. Myatt of Quincy, Mass., and Miller S. Burgin of San Antonio, Texas.

Senators Walsh of Massachusetts, Sheppard of Texas and Fletcher of Florida, all Democrats, had urged the navy to deal more leniently with the youths. Burgin's father, the Rev. S. H. Burgin, is a presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and lives at Jacksonville, Fla.

EXPERTS 'UNTANGLE' MIX-UP OF BABIES

LATTER FLEES WITH CHILD

CHICAGO, July 24.—Thirteen medical experts sat in final conclave today on the Bamberger-Watkins baby mix-up. At the conclusion two refrained from voting and one dissented, but nine decided that the two boys born three weeks ago in the Englewood Hospital had been switched and were with the wrong parents.

The problem of parentage was far from solved, however, for the fathers, who were present at the hearing in the office of Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, promptly took issue with each other on the verdict.

Charles Bamberger stuck to his belief that he had the right son, saying:

"I won't give up the boy I have. I'll barricade my house and hire a lawyer."

William Watkins, declaring his own opinion of a mix-up confirmed, said he would appeal to the police to force the Bambergers to give up his son to him.

Mr. Bamberger rushed to his home at 5,523 South Paulina Street, and a short time later when Commissioner Kegel arrived there had taken flight with his wife and the disputed baby.

Experts in Secret Session.

It was 11 o'clock when the experts met in Commissioner Kegel's office to determine whether the infants had been exchanged before the mothers were sent home from the hospital.

Mrs. Bamberger remained at home and was said to have been near a collapse. Mrs. Watkins, with the baby she was not sure about in her arms, stayed in the corridor outside Dr. Kegel's office. Both fathers faced the tribunal. Dr. Kegel barred reporters, saying:

"This is going to be a hot fight. Remarks might be passed which would make monkeys of us all, so the press had best stay away."

As the conference went on, with no intermission for lunch, it became evident that Dr. Kegel's anticipation was being fulfilled. About 1 P. M. Mr. Bamberger left the conference in haste and perturbation.

Fingerprint Expert Dissents.

Later Dr. Kegel admitted the reporters and explained that Mr. Bamberger was compelled to leave on account of sudden illness, and added further that the pathologist, opthalmologist, dermatologist and obstetrician on his baby jury were in agreement. Their unanimous report was that the infants had been given to the wrong mothers by the hospital authorities.

From the testimony in progress, it was apparent the opinions were not so unanimous.

Ferdinand Watzek, the Vienna detective, called here to direct the Northwestern University Crime Laboratory, was on the stand, avowing through an interpreter that, notwithstanding medical opinion, his fingerprint study demonstrated that baby Bamberger and baby Watkins had not been exchanged.

Bearing in mind that Mr. Bamberger had privately held to Inspector Watzek's opinion from the start, the reporters asked Mr. Watkins what action he proposed should Mr. Bamberger refuse to abide by the experts' decision.

"I'll go out there and take my baby by force," Mr. Watkins announced. Soon afterward the conference broke up.

Mr. Watkins went with his wife and the infant the experts had declared to be Baby Bamberger to his home at 1,619 West Eighty-second Street. Dr. Kegel drove to the Bam-

HUSTON WILL QUIT POST NEXT MONTH; TALKS WITH HOOVER

END TO THE PARTY PUZZLE

Resignation Will Be Submitted to the Executive Committee at Meeting Aug. 7.

BURKE ARRANGED THE VISIT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—After a conference tonight at the White House between President Hoover and Claudius H. Huston, announcement was made that Mr. Huston would submit his resignation as chairman of the Republican National Committee, laying it before a special meeting of the executive committee of the National Committee to take place here on Aug. 7.

Indications are that Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio will be elected chairman of the National Committee to succeed Mr. Huston. It became known today that Senator Fess had canceled steamship reservations for Europe, and this course was attributed to a reluctant yielding by him to administration urgings that he take charge of the party's affairs during this year's Senatorial and Congressional campaigns.

The formal announcement of Mr. Huston's plan to resign was contained in a statement by James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican National Committee, given out in the name of Mr. Huston. It read as follows, Mr. Huston being quoted:

"I have just had a satisfactory talk with the President and we are in entire accord on our program. The President has approved my decision to call a meeting of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee on Aug. 7, at which time I intend to submit my resignation as Republican National Chairman."

Visited Here by Burke and Nutt.

Mr. Huston's return to Washington tonight was the direct result of a visit paid to him in New York last night by Mr. Burke and Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the national committee. After two conferences with President Hoover yesterday, Mr. Nutt and Mr. Burke departed for New York at 3 o'clock, had their interview with Mr. Huston, and left New York at 1:15 o'clock this morning. They saw President Hoover in the forenoon and gave him assurances that Mr. Huston's resignation would be forthcoming.

Soon after he reached Washington this evening, Mr. Huston went to the White House, where he was received by the President, with whom he spent about half an hour. After the chairman had left, Mr. Burke issued the formal statement.

While the whole story has not been told, the impression was obtained that Mr. Huston's resignation was due to a direct request from President Hoover, which was conveyed by Messrs. Nutt and Burke on their visit to the chairman in New York last night.

One of the many stories afloat in Washington today concerning the mission of Messrs. Nutt and Burke was that, in addition to telling Mr. Huston that the President thought that he should retire from the na-

Mussolini Forbids Subscription Lists to Aid Victims; American Red Cross Offers Help in Earthquake Zone

By The Associated Press.

ROME, July 24.—Premier Mussolini issued an edict to prefects throughout the country today forbidding public or private subscription lists to aid the victims. The government organized relief and supplied the means of burial for all victims as fast as thousands of workers could reach those tasks.

The Premier announced that the Council of Ministers had taken all necessary emergency measures.

Mussolini's prohibition did not apply to already organized charitable and other bodies. The National Organization for War Wounded today sent 5,000 lire to its agent in Potenza expressly for the relief of war veterans among the stricken.

The Organization for Maternity and Infancy gave a similar sum, the Savings Institution of Turin placed 50,000 lire at the Premier's disposal and the Milan Savings Bank came forward with a gift of 100,000 lire to be used however the need became evident. The Bank of Naples placed 500,000 lire at the disposal of the government.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Aid to earthquake-stricken Italy was offered today by the American Red Cross. The offer was extended in a cablegram to the Italian Red Cross in Rome. The message said:

"Profoundly distressed by tragic disaster which has fallen upon your beautiful country. Would our help be welcome?"

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BENEVENTO, Italy, July 24.—News pouring in from outlying districts and isolated villages greatly increases the proportions of the disastrous earthquake which has laid waste three flourishing provinces in Southern Italy. According to official figures, the death toll is now 2,000, while more than 4,000 persons, gravely injured, are being cared for in hospitals and a very much larger number, less seriously hurt, is being treated in first-aid stations.

It is officially estimated that more than 3,000 houses have been completely wrecked, with about an equal number rendered uninhabitable. Communications, however, are extremely difficult because the earthquake broke all telegraph and telephone wires, and so the figures given are not final. They are likely to be revised upward.

Unofficial Figures Are Very High.

Unofficial reports set the figures on the losses even higher. According to one unofficial source, more than 3,000 bodies already had been taken from wreckage up to 1 o'clock this afternoon. As many dead and as many injured still lie under collapsed houses, according to this report. For the present, however, it is impossible to get reliable data from all over the vast zone affected by the earthquake, but many rumors obtain credence which they probably do not deserve.

It is certain, however, that the present disaster is one of the most terrible which has occurred in Italy since the Messina earthquake leveled that large city.

The most severely affected region appears to be the province of Avellino. There the dead are put at 1,400. The most gravely damaged villages are Villanova and Aquilonia, with 400 dead each. Trevico and Lacedonia each have 200. These four villages were almost destroyed.

Terrible also is the situation at Ariano, where ninety persons were killed, including a large number of children in an orphanage. The Duchess of Aosta visited this village today and moved the inhabitants to tears when she took an ivory crucifix from her neck and laid it on the body of a child lying pinned under the wreckage.

There is great damage also in Sansossio, where fifty were killed, and in Rochetta, where twenty died.

Dead at Melfi Exceed 300.

Conflicting reports have been received from the region around Melfi, which, according to the first information received from the earthquake zone, suffered the greatest loss. When rescue parties arrived there from Foggia they found the havoc less than had been feared. Melfi and Lacedonia, however, suffered most in this district, each having some 300 dead, but this loss, though terrible, is small compared with the loss as given in the first reports and put at several thousand dead.

The latest news tonight from Melfi says twenty bodies were taken from ruins this morning, bringing the total loss of life in the town to more than 300. There is no room to bury the dead in the Melfi cemetery, which is completely filled, and so the bodies are being taken to Foggia by train. A train bearing 200 bodies left this morning.

News from the district around Melfi is scarce and unreliable because all communications with the East have been interrupted and the region can be reached only from Foggia. The damage in the remaining provinces is comparatively slight.

News was received today that among the injured in Naples Province is the Duchess of Apulia. She was in the royal palace of Capo di Monte when the earthquake occurred, and a large painting in a heavy frame hanging on the wall fell on her, in-

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 24.—The State will have a free surplus of $17,711,289.46 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, nearly double the amount estimated at the time of the submission of the budget to the Legislature in January, Governor Roosevelt announced today in making public a statement on the finances of the State compiled by Controller Morris S. Tremaine.

The only comment by Governor Roosevelt was that the estimate of the surplus was "very satisfactory."

At the time of the submission of the budget by the Governor Controller Tremaine estimated the probable free cash surplus as of June 30, 1931, at $9,828,552.

In his letter to the Governor the Controller then said that he submitted the estimate "with a good deal of trepidation and some doubt as to whether the full amount (of expected revenues) would be realized," and suggested that a margin of $10,000,000 between the State's expected resources and the amount of appropriations be allowed to provide a reasonable factor of safety.

The revised estimate of revenues for the year ending June 30, 1931, shows that the total receipts will be $249,479,906.62, of which amount $2,279,906.62 will be from general property taxes, $234,650,000 from special taxes and $12,650,000 from other sources.

Of the special taxes, the estimate lists $28,500,000 expected from the corporation tax, $31,000,000 from the franchise tax, $30,000,000 from the personal income tax, $55,000,000 from

LIGHTNING STUNS 50 AT A HORSE SHOW

SUBWAYS HERE FLOODED

The electrical storms that hit New York and vicinity at 6 A. M. and at 5 P. M. yesterday left great damage in their wake and caused injury to many persons. At Stamford, Conn., lightning stunned fifty persons who were watching the horse show at Sunaim Farm, and killed a prize mount in its stall. In Bayonne, N. J., a huge oil tank was fired by the bolt and several homes were hit, while in New York tickers and telephones were put out of commission in the financial district and the subways were flooded by torrential rains.

At Sunaim Farm the bolt hit just after the $500 saddle horse stake had been judged. There had been several startling crashes in the vicinity, but this one, with a terrific noise, split an elm between the exhibitors' stand and the stables, seemed to carom off a scythe that hung on one of the branches and then forked over toward the stalls.

As the scythe split into a thousand fragments many persons standing in the vicinity fell to the ground, stunned by the bolt, and the rain descended with a rush. Mike Devancy, foreman for Miss Doris Hoffheimer of Warrenville, N. J., was severely burned in two places. Clarence La Pearle, employed by H. Hollon Crowell of Boston, was severely shocked and Tom Stamp, horseman for Adrian Van Sinderen of Washington, Conn., was badly stunned. Stamp and La Pearle were taken to Greenwich Hospital for treatment, but Devaney remained.

Two Other Horses Struck.

Miss Hoffheimer was hurled to the ground by the bolt, but she seemed all right when friends assisted her to her feet. On reaching the stables she glanced into the stall that held High Ho, her favorite mount, and saw that the animal had been killed by the lightning. Then she collapsed and was carried to an automobile by friends. Farther down the line of stalls, although Miss Hoffheimer was not aware of it when removed, two more of her horses, Little Canada and Mud Tavern lay unconscious. They were later revived.

In the meantime the other persons who had been stunned by the bolt recovered their senses and there was a mad scramble for the tents to get out of the downpour. Several stable men were cut by fragments of glass and by flying splinters when one branch of the lightning forked off and hit the judges' stand. The exhibition was called off for the day, although several events remained unjudged.

The first storm which hit New York caused the tie-up of communication systems in Wall Street, disrupting service on 2,700 telephone lines and paralyzing 300 ticker and clock lines. The second storm spread the damage over a much wider area.

The New Haven Railroad was tied up for two hours as a result of the flooding of an open cut in Mount Vernon by the afternoon storm. The

110 Volunteers Patrol City in Drive on Noise; Squad to Report Loud Radio Sets for a Week

A squad of 110 voluntary workers in the cause of noise suppression patrolled the sidewalks of New York yesterday afternoon and evening as the first step in a week's concerted drive by the Noise Abatement Commission to enforce the recently enacted ordinance prohibiting loudspeakers on the street or in doorways and windows opening on the street. Violations of the ordinance noted by the anti-noise vigilance squad were reported to the police for action.

The patrol group was formed, according to Edward F. Brown, director of the Noise Abatement Commission, in the belief that citizens are timid about calling the attention of violators of the ordinance to their offenses, and hesitate to complain to the police. The ordinance, which went into effect on May 30, has been well enforced on the main thoroughfares, Mr. Brown said, but has not been observed by hundreds of stores in semi-residential sections where the noise is especially objectionable.

The squad, consisting of volunteers and of persons who were approached for the work because they had written to the commission protesting against loud noises, was sent out yesterday at 3 P. M., and was on duty until 10 o'clock. Today approximately seventy-five will start on their rounds at 9 A. M. and the rest will go on duty for the shift ending at 10 P. M. The groups will continue their activities for a week. By that time the commission believes the violations will have been eliminated, but if necessary the patrol will continue intermittently until all of the 3,009 radio stores in the city have complied with the regulations.

The patrol squad has been divided into groups for each borough and the city as a whole has been divided into ninety sanitary districts for the work. The volunteers, Mr. Brown said, are "men of discretion," and as they have no legal authority they will not enter the stores, but will report either to the local police precinct or to the commission itself, which will pass on the information to the police.

"They are not snoopers in any sense of the word," Mr. Brown said, "but honest, fearless and competent citizens who are confident that flagrant noises are a detriment to health and know how to aid in the abatement of the nuisance. The work is purely voluntary, and the commission has no money to pay for such labor."

The identities of the patrol workers will not be disclosed. The Noise Abatement Commission announced that it would welcome the cooperation of any citizens in reporting violations of the ordinance to the police. If the week's drive succeeds, the scope of the volunteer work may be extended to other noises.

Gilbert Ottley and B. S. Stone Are Rescued With Pilots as Plane Plunges Into Sound

NORTHPORT, L. I., July 24.—Gilbert Ottley and Bromley Scofield Stone, both of Glen Cove and New York City, narrowly escaped serious injury or drowning when a seaplane in which they were passengers was forced down on the rough water of Long Island Sound during the storm here late this afternoon.

The plane, flown by Fred Ralph, with Elton Jewett as co-pilot, both of Portland, Me., was seen from the shore close to the water. Suddenly in a violent gust of wind accompanied by lightning it swerved and plunged toward the waves. There was a splash and the machine appeared to settle into the water.

John Thomas of Northport jumped into a rowboat and hurried to the wreck. He found the four men in the water clinging to the nose and propeller. Others followed Thomas and the four were taken ashore to the Summer home of Samuel Cutler. After first aid had been given them they were removed to the Glen Cove Hospital.

The pilot and mechanic, it was said, were badly bruised and shaken up. Jewett sustained cuts on the head and Ralph suffered a dislocated shoulder. Both passengers were suffering from bruises and shock and Mr. Stone received several cuts.

Mr. Ottley told members of his family who visited him at the hospital that they were coming in for a landing and when close to the water a lightning bolt struck near them. The plane, he said, then seemed to drop straight down about twenty-five feet, striking the water with terrific impact. Mr. Ottley said that he did not know whether the plane had been struck or not, but that it fell at the moment of the lightning flash.

Late tonight it was said at the hospital that all four were resting comfortably.

Mr. Ottley and Mr. Stone were on their way from Portland to Glen Cove. Both men are seasoned air travelers and prominent sportsmen. Mr. Ottley is the son of Mrs. James H. Ottley of New York and Glen Cove. His father, who died several years ago, was President and owner of the McCall Company. He is a member of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht and New York Yacht Clubs and of the Society of Mayflower Descendants. He owns the sailing yacht Falcon. Mr. Stone is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Foster Stone, a member of the Rockaway Hunt Club and of the Sons of the Revolution.

juring her hand. She had her hand bandaged roughly but did not have it dressed until she went to the city of Naples to visit the injured in Pellegrini Hospital. Her injury was described as slight.

To any one coming from Rome the city of Naples looks almost normal. There is one house, the front of which collapsed into the street leaving the rest of the building completely intact, with the furniture still in place. There are several other houses with ominous cracks in their walls. But apart from these indications, there is little to show that an earthquake struck the city twenty-four hours ago.

Some few people are still camping in the street, but the majority have been prevailed upon to return to their homes. In front of some churches images of saints still are exposed to the veneration of the faithful. Curious crowds of sightseers stand round the damaged buildings.

The railroad station at Naples presents an appearance of feverish activity, resembling the headquarters of an army during battle. Trains are continually arriving bearing great quantities of stores of all sorts, which are loaded onto military lorries and sent inland toward the stricken zones. All relief is being sent by road because the railroads are considered unsafe owing to damaged bridges and bent rails.

The roads leading out of Naples are reminiscent of the war. Long lines of trucks, loaded with troops, firemen, police, doctors, nurses, volunteers, medicine, food, tents, blankets and clothing, wind their way in an interminable procession over the dusty roads, while coming in the opposite direction there is an equally long line of vehicles bearing the injured to hospitals and the dead to cemeteries.

The country around Naples does not show many signs of the disaster. Some houses have cracked walls and a few ruins are seen here and there, but otherwise everything appears normal. Few peasants interrupt their work in the fields to stare at the motor trucks going by.

Avellino a Beehive.

Avellino also shows little damage, but it is a regular beehive of activity, as all stores are concentrated there before being distributed to the various points in the province in need of help. The whole town is practically in the hands of the military and Red Cross officials who have the rescue work in charge.

Proceeding inland toward Ariano, the first evidence of the disaster is seen just after Avellino, where the roads are lined with soldiers with picks and spades, filling in dangerous cracks covering the surface. It is necessary to proceed very slowly because several of the cracks are several feet wide and the car lurches into them with sickening plunges.

Step by step as one advances the symptoms of distress become ever more apparent. Soon some wrecked farm houses are seen with the survivors camping in front of them around fires. They are all almost completely naked, since the earthquake occurred when they were asleep, and the majority are sketchily covered by the tattered remnants of their sleeping apparel, while a few fortunate ones are draped in army blankets handed them from passing trucks.

It is evident that there is almost a complete lack of food, since many line the road and gratefully receive loaves of bread from the soldiers.

Field Stations Set Up.

Just before reaching Pratola, army engineers were seen repairing telegraph and telephone wires. Soon afterward the first field dressing stations were seen. They consist of tents pitched in the middle of fields and are distinguished by large red crosses. Small groups of wretchedly clad inhabitants cluster around them and show every sign of distress, evidently waiting for news of the injured being cared for within.

Heavily loaded stretchers are constantly arriving from neighboring houses, where soldiers may be seen at work with shovels clearing away the wreckage. Other stretchers take injured persons, after their injuries have been dressed, to waiting motor ambulances, which remove them to hospitals in Avellino or Naples.

Pratola itself has been gravely damaged. Some dozen houses have been completely destroyed, again calling to mind war scenes. The town is filled with soldiers digging rapidly in the fallen masonry at those points where faint groans or cries tell them that some one is lying beneath the débris. But the soldiers must proceed with the greatest prudence since any blow of the pick may cause a collapse of the unstable walls.

The soldiers are helped by a crowd of half-naked, dishevelled inhabitants, who dig with their bare hands where they believe their dear ones are buried. Every now and then wild shrieks announce another body has been found.

The destruction shows great increase at Montemilleto, Mirabella and Grottaminarda. The latter has been almost completely destroyed and is one confused heap of ruins, through which the inhabitants wander as though crazed by the shock. A large group of persons stand waiting and wringing their hands outside the morgue improvised in some huts just outside the village.

A small group of children is sobbing, probably more out of exhaustion than a realization of the disaster which has befallen them. They sit disconsolately on a heap of fallen masonry. Women with tear-stained faces and expressionless eyes watch the stream of trucks moving through the village.

Ariano the Centre of Ruins.

At Ariano the very heart of the earthquake zone is entered. Not a house appears to be standing. A horrible mess of crumbled masonry, mixed indiscriminately with broken pieces of furniture and shattered household implements, fills the streets. Cordons of troops strive to keep the inhabitants away from the houses as their well-meant but frenzied efforts to help would hinder rather than aid the rescuers.

A stream of stretchers beside which walk sobbing or wildly shrieking relatives takes the dead and wounded to the morgue or dressing stations, which are erected side by side in fields outside the village.

The wounded are laid in rows after receiving first aid from the doctors and nurses, all in their turn to be rushed to the nearest hospitals in motor cars requisitioned everywhere in large numbers. Unfortunately there are no hospitals available near by and the wounded must make a weary, bumpy journey to Benevento or Avellino. The minor cases are taken as far as Naples.

Army's Cook at Field Kitchen.

In another field outside Ariano there is a field kitchen. Large numbers of villagers cluster around it, eagerly accepting the meager rations which an army cook ladles out of a vast cauldron into tin cans.

A grave problem is offered by the lack of water, owing to breakage of aqueducts. It is being rushed to the place in tank cars.

Another ragged group of villagers stands at a distance from the villages, hoping to receive food or blankets from the trucks. Under a tent on the far side of the village is a long row of mangled dead covered with army blankets. There is neither room for them in the cemetery nor time to bury them, so they are being taken away in trucks.

Especially large crowds stand by the ruins of what was once an infant asylum, from which little bodies still are being extracted. Mothers are too grief-stricken even to watch the soldiers as they dig amid the wreckage.

Worst Scenes at Montecalvo.

Making a detour around Ariano, Montecalvo is reached. It is difficult to imagine scenes more terrible than those at Ariano, yet Montecalvo is worse. It may literally be said that not one stone is left standing on another there. The village is completely razed. The heart-rending, pitiful scenes were repeated here.

Returning to Ariano and proceeding along the road leading to Melfi, Villanova is encountered. This village also is destroyed. Its few survivors are so shocked by the sudden disaster that they seem incapable even of feeling grief. They appear bewildered and stupefied. The village priest moves among them, exhorting them to have faith and courage, but they appear to scarcely hear him.

It proves impossible to proceed further toward Melfi because the road is obstructed by wreckage at Villanova. There is no choice but to turn back.

The return from Ariano toward Benevento is made in the stream of vehicles bearing wounded to hospitals and this time against the stream of trucks moving upward into the Apennines with supplies.

Rainstorm Adds to Woes.

The weather, which has been threatening all day, suddenly grows worse and a fierce rainstorm beats down upon the stricken region, increasing the discomforts of the survivors, who, besides being homeless, are almost without clothing. As Ariano is left behind the proportion of ruin decreases. In Benevento itself the damage is insignificant.

Despite the vast proportions of the disaster and the wide area over which it is distributed, the authorities have the situation well in hand. Relief, indeed, has been organized with laudable promptness and is being carried out with great efficiency.

Everything possible is being done. The army, navy, air force, Fascist militia, Red Cross and civil authorities all are on the spot, collaborating with commendable spirit. Much, however, remains to be done and it is expected that the Cabinet soon will meet to appropriate funds for reconstruction.

The King is expected to reach the stricken zones tomorrow.

12 Killed in Hurricane in North.

ROME, July 24 (AP).—On top of the earthquake in Southern Italy yesterday, Northeastern Italy tonight suffered from the violence of a hurricane that killed twelve persons in the region of Treviso, near Venice.

The hurricane tore down many buildings at Bargo di Sesegana, Nervesa, Selva and Volpago, and it is feared more victims are buried under the ruins. Heavy damage was caused over a stretch of twenty-five miles.

The authorities in the North immediately concentrated at the scene of the disaster, and organized first aid as had their colleagues in the South.

The task of coping with this new catastrophe made a definite tabulation of killed and injured in the South out of the question for the night. The Ministries affected announced just before midnight that there would be no recapitulation until tomorrow afternoon of the loss to life and property.

At the Ministry of the Interior the total of known dead stood for the night at 2,013. Unofficial reports said that 3,025 bodies had already been found. Officials, while reticent, obviously believed that hundreds of bodies were still buried under the débris of homes in remoter communities.

King Victor Emmanuel left tonight for the stricken south, where he was born, before learning of the disaster in the north. His movements were veiled, but his special train is expected to arrive some time tomorrow in Avellino Province, where the worst conditions were reported.

King to Tour Area in Auto.

Accompanied by Minister of Public Works Crollalanza, his Majesty will make an automobile tour through the area. When the earthquake occurred, he was away at Santanna di Valdieri in the north. He awaited the advice of his Ministers as to the seriousness of the consequences, but early today manifested an urgent desire to visit the country.

As his Majesty was born the Prince of Naples he is assured of a royal welcome tomorrow afternoon.

Prince Boncompagni Ludovisi, Governor of Rome, also left for Avellino. He will bring back with him the largest possible number of children left homeless or orphaned by the disaster, and the city of Rome will help to care for them.

He was accompanied by a large detachment of Roman firemen, with fire-fighting apparatus, and by a sanitary section and nursing staff.

Pope Pius, horrified by the extent of the catastrophe, prepared the forces of the Church. From the Bay of Naples and the Gulf of Salerno on the west to the Gulf of Manfredonia on the Adriatic, a zone of devastated and stricken towns, hamlets and houses stretched around the "ankle" of the Italian boot.

The volcano of Pozzuoli, a smoky mountain obscured by the fame of its mighty neighbor Vesuvius, was in eruption today. Seismologists say it was roused into action by yesterday's succession of earthquakes.

Every now and then Neapolitans cast forboding looks at Vesuvius, wondering if the slumbering giant also is going to erupt.

With the figures of known dead at the Ministry of the Interior already mounting past 2,000, and those of the known injured rapidly approaching the 5,000 mark, forecasts of a death toll of at least 3,000 were made in Rome tonight. More than 100,000 persons have been rendered homeless.

Government agents reported that the Province of Avellino had listed 1,607 killed and 2,072 injured, and led in losses by more than 1,000 any other province. Of the 3,188 houses completely wrecked, 2,066 were in Avellino Province. Communes more heavily stricken were Ariano, Aquilonia, Montecalvo, Bissacia, Lacedonia, Villanova and Accadia.

In Potenza Province 232 were dead and 535 injured.

In Foggia 1,557 were injured and 120 killed.

Benevento had twenty-four dead and eighty-seven injured.

Naples reported eight killed and thirteen injured in two towns of that province.

In Salerno two were killed and none injured.

Bari Province reported serious damage in the town of Canosa but apparently no persons were injured.

Heavy Gale Strikes Naples.

At Naples this morning a gale that approached hurricane force, washing waves over the sea wall, added to the terror of the inhabitants, whose nerves were on edge from a night of anguish. Many slight structures were blown down.

To calm the faithful, massed in front of the cathedral, Cardinal Ascalesi, Archbishop of Naples, brought out a silver figure of St. Gennaro, the city's patron saint.

From Naples almost as far as the plain of Apulia, on the other side of the Apennines, at least twenty-five towns and villages lay desolate.

Among the historic monuments wrecked or damaged was the famous Palazzo Reale, former royal palace, at Caserta, which is known as the Versailles of Naples. It is one of the most sumptuous buildings in all Italy, and was built by Charles III of Bourbon.

Many Americans were in the earthquake zone, but the head of a big tourist agency at Naples said that none had been reported killed or injured. No mention of American victims has so far been made in government dispatches.

Offers of aid were lavished today by other communities. In addition to a sum of 100,000 lire, the city of Milan offered fifty beds for the baby orphans of victims and Rome was ready to care for 500 homeless children free in the seaside and mountain colonies it maintains for its own children.

Airplanes from Foggia and Capodochino today flew over the devastated provinces photographing minutely every affected spot so that the government might have the fullest first-hand information of the condition of property. This is to be used in guiding the distribution of rehabilitation measures.

'Hard' Italian Army Prisoners Tender-Hearted in Relief Role

By The Associated Press.

MELFI, Italy, July 24.—"Hard-boiled" soldiers of the disciplinary company stationed here as a penalty for various forms of misconduct proved themselves tender-hearted heroes in ministering to the injured and terror-stricken inhabitants of this mountain city.

These soldiers, much like the labor battalions of the United States Army, have not slept since they were routed from their barracks shortly after midnight yesterday. The so-called "bad boys of the army" have redeemed themselves a hundred times over by the prodigious work they have performed.

The surviving townsfolk today gave them the warmest praise, and their commander moved to recommend for them the King's pardon and for return to their regular units.

All-Stone Buildings Are Cause Of Heavy Italian Quake Tolls

The heavy loss of life in Italian earthquakes in small towns and even in the rural districts, is due to the fact that the buildings are usually entirely of stone, including the floors. When the walls are even slightly out of plumb the tiled roof and floors fall through.

In rebuilding certain parts of Messina, where 100,000 were killed in the 1908 earthquake, reinforced concrete was used—concrete in which were embedded thin sheets of expanded metal, network or rods. When this material is used the walls and floors may crack and change position, but rarely fall.

After the earthquake in Italy's central provinces in January, 1915, interpreted by the peasants as a warning to the government to hasten its war preparations against Austria, reinforced, or armored, concrete was also used in rebuilding.

VILLANOVA LAID FLAT; 250 BODIES REMOVED

VILLANOVA, Italy, July 24 (AP).—In a 255-mile automobile drive, The Associated Press correspondent today examined the devastation caused yesterday by an earthquake that took more than 2,000 lives in one of the most beautiful sections of Italy.

Sweeping up from Naples through brilliantly green valleys, the correspondent's car passed village after village lying wholly or partly waste. The worst spectacle of all was reserved for this evening, when this little town of Villanova came into view.

Nearly every house was completely demolished. With the shops, small houses and humbler buildings, the palace of the Marquis Villanova and the town church had crumbled.

About 250 bodies already had been taken from the ruins, and more than 500 injured had been treated at dressing stations.

The houses lay fallen in the most erratic and varying fashions. In some the windows surprisingly were still intact. Against a few upright but damaged walls shutters banged in the wind.

All the remaining habitants were marshalled by soldiers this evening and formed into a rations line. After they had been fed, they were sent from the village out into the open where tents and blanket shelters were hastily erected. Then the soldiers threw a guard about the deserted town., permitting no one to enter.

A similar procedure was followed at half a dozen other ruined towns in the region, such as Aquilona, Lacedonia and Ariano.

POPE ORDERS RELIEF STUDY

Will Send Delegate to Quake Area to Draw Plan for Distributing Aid.

VATICAN CITY, July 24 (AP).—Before sending a sum of money for relief in the earthquake zone, Pope Pius will appoint a delegate to proceed to Southern Italy and investigate conditions there. The delegate is to draw up an organic plan for the distribution of aid. Announcement of his appointment is expected tomorrow.

The Pontiff was shocked at the unexpectedly large number of dead and injured and at the grave damage to seminaries, cathedrals, churches and rectories. It is estimated that it will take a vast amount of money to repair them.

FEAR FOR AMERICANS.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Concern was expressed here today over the safety of Rabbi Moses Eckstein, formerly of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Levy, who were in Naples at the time of the earthquake. Mr. Levy and his wife left here last May to visit Rabbi Eckstein, an uncle of Mrs. Levy. Rabbi Eckstein was in the Ostedale International Hospital in Naples as a result of injuries suffered during a recent visit to Pompeii.

Mr. and Mrs. Levy had planned to sail from Naples on Saturday. Mr. Levy is a civil engineer and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. A cable of inquiry to the Hotel Britanique in Naples has been sent from here by Mr. Levy's father.

RELIEF WORK BEGINS IN AVELLINO REGION

AVELLINO, July 24 (AP).—The town of Avellino, high up in the Apennine Mountains and the most stricken of the countryside, gave over all day today to funerals. The absence of tolling church bells was striking. But the church belfries were so shaken by the quake that their sextons did not dare to ring them and tragic processions wound their way through streets still filled with débris and rubble.

Relatives of those in the danger zone were frantically trying to get in touch with them, but only a few of the many messages could get through, as there was only one telephone and telegraph line to the local prefecture and police station.

The Under-Secretary of Public Works and Senator Cremoneso, president of the Italian Red Cross, today reached the scene in the interior of the worst of the disaster and organized relief measures.

A column of Fascist motor trucks from Naples arrived in Avellino and distributed bread, cognac, milk and medicine. Doctors and druggists worked to ward off illness. A number of tank trucks rushed water to the town, whose supplies were cut off.

Refugees from Ariano, the population of which before yesterday's earthquake was 9,000, today described that town as a heap of ruins. Houses that were left standing, they asserted, must be torn down because they are tottering and unsafe.

Several hamlets, including Piana, Taverna, Martire, Spazione, Ciccotreta, Campo Reale and Orneto, constituting several sections of Ariano, were virtually wiped out.

Although nobody was killed at Candela, 90 per cent of the buildings of that place were rendered uninhabitable.

There were fissures in the open ground near the Ofanto River today, and it was believed that if the river overflowed its banks these would be transformed into lakes of considerable size.

Avellino Known for Famous Convent.

Avellino, the capital of the Province of Avellino, where more than 1,600 persons were killed in the earthquake, is on the Southern-Naples-Benevento Railway, eighteen miles south of Benevento and thirty miles east of Naples. It is in the Apennines, three miles from the ruins of the ancient Abellinum.

Near Avellino is the famous convent of Monte Vergine, founded in 1119 on the ruins of the temple of Cybele. Centuries ago Cybele was known to the Romans as Magna Mater Deum (Great Mother of the Gods), and from the first century B. C. this cult of the great eastern goddess in various forms and under many names was spread among the people by wandering bands of begging priests, professing to work wonders and predicting the future, bringing relief from sin. In works of art she is usually represented as seated on a throne, adorned with a crown and with two lions beside her.

Thousands of visitors go every year to the Church of Monte Vergine. Many of them ascend the mountain barefoot, crawling on their hands and knees from the church door to the altar. Holidays are observed with festivals of religious origin. The most important of these is the Day of the Saint of Monte Vergine.

The Day of the Saint of Monte Vergine is a ceremony resplendent with color and pageantry. The people participating in the traditional rites are dressed in quaint costumes. A special fireworks display is set off in the evening on the historic hill, lighting up the square of the city.

The population of the region around Avellino is about 420,000. Most of the inhabitants are employed in mills, shoe factories and in factories producing cloth, hats and chairs.

NEIGHBORS CONDOLE ITALY.

Spain and Germany Send Messages—Our Envoy Offers Assistance.

BERLIN, July 24 (AP).—President von Hindenburg today sent a message of condolence to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. Eloquent expression was given to the deep sympathy of the German people for the earthquake sufferers.

SANTANDER, Spain, July 24 (AP).—The King and Queen of Spain today cabled to the royal family of Italy their sympathy over the distress because of the earthquake.

QUAKE ALARMS MEXICANS.

Residents of Pinotepa Rush From Rocking Houses in Night.

MEXICO CITY, July 24 (AP).—Special dispatches today reported that an earthquake last night shook the town of Pinotepa, State of Oaxaca. It was preceded by subterranean rumblings and accompanied by torrential rain.

The inhabitants fled from their houses in panic. No casualties were reported.

NAPLES APENNINES BORE CHIEF BRUNT

HISTORIC TOWNS STRICKEN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Italy's recent earthquake was confined in its most destructive effects to the mountainous region known as the Apennines of Naples, the National Geographic Society said in a special bulletin issued today on the catastrophe.

"Just north of Naples the mountain range that extends down the middle of the Italian peninsula loses its form of a definite ridge," the society said, "and breaks down into rather distinct mountain groups joined by cross ranges and elevated saddles. This area of elevated masses and deep defiles, where towns and villages perch on hilltops and cling to mountain slopes, has borne the brunt of the earth tremors. Further to the east the tableland of Apulia has been shaken too, but not so disastrously.

"Naples, situated where this broken section of the Apennines slopes down to the Tyrrhenian Sea and close to where Vesuvius has belched out cubic miles of lava, has been shaken severely as it has been many times before. The city is largely built of gray lava from Vesuvius and in its old part consists of low houses along dark, narrow streets and alleys. It is Italy's most populous community in one of the world's most beautiful settings.

Norman Leader Lies at Venosa.

"Venosa, an inland town of 9,000 population, which suffered damage, was the birthplace in 64 B. C. of Horace, best loved of Roman poets. There is buried Robert Guiscard, great Norman soldier-Duke, in the Church of St. Trinita, built by him in 1059.

Melfi, another town in which the toll of life was large, lies near Venosa and under the pyramidal peaks of Monte Volture, which marks the southern extent of the Apennines of Naples. In Melfi Robert Guiscard set up his capital until he captured Salerno, on the coast, and made that town his headquarters.

"Foggia, furthest of the towns to feel the marked force of the recent quake, lies near the Adriatic side of the peninsula. It is the capital of the great Apulian tableland that was once a huge sheep pasture, maintaining millions of animals. The town is large (61,000), and with its low, white houses, has a somewhat oriental aspect. It was largely destroyed by an earthquake in 1751. The Apulian tableland that surrounds it has been called Italy's most dreary and barren area.

Triumphal Arch at Benevento.

"Near by is Lucera, where Emperor Frederick II planted his famous Saracen mercenaries, 60,000 strong, in the first years of the thirteenth century. Frederick lived among these Moslems, dressed as 'the Sultan of Lucera,' maintained a harem and used his Mohammedan forces in his struggles against the Christian soldiers of the Papacy.

"Benevento, where property was damaged and lives lost, is a thriving town, capital of the region between Foggia and Naples. It is finely situated on a mountain high above the Appian Way, and its two rivers. There stands one of the most imposing of the triumphal arches outside Rome, erected to Trojan. It is one of the oldest of Italian towns and stood out against the Romans successfully until 276 B. C.

"Potenza, base of operations for some of the relief expeditions, was itself stricken by the recent tremors. It lies on a low saddle which cuts the Apennines and roughly marks the southwestern limit of destruction. This town of 14,000 inhabitants was almost completely razed by the earthquake of 1857, which devastated the region of the Apennines of Naples."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—While the widow and mother of Colonel G. L. P. Henderson, pilot of the ill-fated Junkers air taxi which crashed Monday over Kent, were scattering his ashes from an airplane flying over Croydon Airdrome today in accordance with his expressed wish, villagers at Meopham, Kent, were searching the woods and fields for jewels worth $325,000 torn from from his women passengers as they were hurled to their death. The jewels belonged to Viscountess Ednam, sister of the Duke of Sutherland, and Mrs. Henrick Loeffler, one of London's leading hostesses and the daughter of a millionaire.

Lady Ednam, according to the Daily Express, had with her on the flight from Le Touquet a pearl necklace with a diamond clip valued at $125,000. Mrs. Loeffler, it is believed from a few gems since found, was wearing one of her most priceless treasures — a pearl and diamond necklace. This is a family heirloom which experts regard as worth $200,000.

Not until a villager found a few gems near the wreckage of part of the airplane was it recalled that the two women had valuable jewelry with them. It is assumed that when the airplane crumpled in the air and the bodies hurtled 800 feet to the earth the necklaces broke and the pearls fell in a shower. They may be anywhere within a three-mile radius of the village.

Two of Colonel Henderson's wartime colleagues, Flying Officer Allen, pilot, and Sergeant Payne, conveyed the pale young widow and mother aloft with the ashes in an urn. Between them they shook them out into the winds with which he so often had battled. The hardened pilots were amazed at the women's courage as they climbed into the airplane.

Snow Falls in Italian Tyrol; Trento Area Swept by Storm

TRENTO, Italy, July 24 (AP).—To add to the vagaries of nature that have visited Italy with calamities during the last two days, snow fell unseasonably today on the peaks of the Dolomites.

A storm swept the region around this city, and was particularly severe in the Alpine valleys.

The Adige River overflowed its banks under heavy rains, and other streams are swollen almost to the flood point. So far the waters have caused no damage.

ENVOY GETS ORDERS TO DECLINE OUR AID

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP).—Instructions from the Foreign Office in Rome to decline respectfully all offers of assistance or relief measures for the districts of Italy stricken by the earthquake were received tonight by Ambassador de Martino.

A lengthy cablegram from the Foreign Office, explaining that the government was meeting the situation adequately, came simultaneously with a flood of telegrams from all parts of the United States extending sympathy to the Embassy and offering financial or such other relief as might be required.

Amid the pressure of the work caused by the disaster, Ambassador de Martino prepared to depart tonight for New York, where he will sail for Italy tomorrow night on two months' leave.

American Red Cross Offers Aid.

The American Red Cross cabled a message to Italy early yesterday morning expressing the sympathy of the American people and offering any assistance desired in alleviating the earthquake disaster. No reply to the cable had been received when the office closed for the day.

Consul General Emanued Grazzi, at his offices at 20 East Twenty-second Street, issued the following statement yesterday:

"A violent earthquake has stricken a zone of Italy in the provinces of Benevento, Avellino and Foggia, causing considerable damage and a number of victims which is yet to be ascertained. Effective measures of relief have been immediately taken by his Excellency Premier Mussolini and are being carried out. Public spirit is high and the population is cooperating with the authorities with perfect discipline.

"The Royal Government declines with extreme gratefulness all offers or initiative directed to send relief to the stricken population, the Fascist Government having already taken all necessary measures to this effect."

DRY AGENTS RAID CLUB NEXT DOOR TO CHURCH

Posing as Patrons, Arrest Two in the Lexington Royal in East Fifty-fourth Street.

Six agents of Prohibition Administrator McCampbell's staff last night raided the Lexington Royal Club, 136 East Fifty-fourth Street, arrested the manager and a waiter and confiscated some alleged liqeurs.

The agents, posing as patrons, had dinner in the club and, they said, two rounds of drinks. At 9:30 o'clock, when all of the diners had gone, they arrested Peter F. Shanley, the manager, who lives on the premises, and John Shenek, a waiter, of 209 West Eighty-seventh Street. The Federal men said a case of bottled beer was found behind the bar on the first floor, together with a dozen or more bottles of choice liqeurs. More of the liqeurs were found in a third-floor closet, they reported.

The club occupies all of the four-story brick building, which is next door to St. Peter's Lutheran Church. There is a canopy over the club entrance, a grill and bar on the first floor, a large dining room on the second floor and private dining rooms above.

The prisoners were booked at the East Fifty-first Street station but later taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street station for detention.

Agents also raided yesterday three supposed speakeasies in New Rochelle, a bottling plant in Peekskill and a restaurant in Greenwich Village.

One hundred barrels of what was said to be beer and a complete bottling plant were seized in a building on Central Avenue, Peekskill, near the New York Central Railroad station. One man was arrested.

The raid in Greenwich Village was at 139 West Tenth Street, where two prisoners and fifty bottles described as assorted liquor were taken. The prisoners described themselves as Gene de Michelo of 30 Charles Street and Angelo Acoffene of 204-22 Corona Avenue, Corona, Queens.

Gives $500 for Italian Relief.

Alexander Simpson, Democratic candidate for United States Senator from New Jersey, yesterday donated $500 for relief work among the victims of the earthquake in Italy. In a letter to Michael Scaturchio, one of the Italian leaders in Jersey City, Mr. Simpson urged prompt organization of relief measures among the local residents. Several years ago Mr. Simpson received from the Italian Government the title of Commendatore in recognition of his work in behalf of Italian-Americans while he was a member of the New Jersey State Senate.

Bostonians Organize to Aid Victims.

BOSTON, July 24 (AP).—A conference of citizens, including Mayor James M. Curley, called by Governor Frank G. Allen to consider relief for victims of the Italian earthquake disaster, today formed a committee of prominent citizens to "stand by" to render aid.

He will succeed Arthur Codding, who resigned to become secretary to Frank X. Sullivan of the Board of Transportation. Codding's term as chief clerk would have expired April 1, 1933.

HOLDS UP BRIDGE GAME; GETS $2,500 IN JEWELS

Mrs. George Sparge invited three guests for a round of bridge in her home at 7,211 Kessel Street, Forest Hills, yesterday. The guests were Mrs. Arthur Hodgekiss, Mrs. Robert Wallace and Miss Norma Metcalf, all of Valley Stream, L. I. They were seated around the card table in the drawing room when some one knocked at the back door. Mrs. Sparge went to the door. A man, who carried a book under one arm and an electric flashlight, announced that he was "from the electric light company."

Mrs. Sparge let him in. "The meter," she told him, "is in the cellar." Then she turned and started toward the cellar door. But the man drew a pistol and ordered Mrs. Sparge back to the drawing room. There he lined up Mrs. Sparge and her guests and robbed them of all their jewelry, worth about $2,500. Mrs. Hodgekiss, however began to cry when he took her wedding ring, so he returned it. Mrs. Wallace then made a plea for her watch, and the robber gave that back, too. But when Mrs. Sparge asked for the return of a piece of jewelry he had taken from her, the robber refused to carry his sympathy any further. "If I keep this up," he told her, "I'll have nothing left."

delay was felt in Grand Central Terminal.

B. M. T. officials reported that trains on the Brighton line had encountered water in open cuts which made operation difficult for motormen, but did not seriously delay schedules.

Subway Lines Flooded.

A flood in the subway cut under Roosevelt Avenue, Flushing, delayed subway trains of both the I. R. T. and B. M. T. systems for half an hour at the Willis Point Boulevard station in Corona, Queens. The water was several feet deep and covered the third rail. The power was shut off from 5:15 P. M. to 5:38 P. M. Passengers who tired of waiting at the Willis Point station for trains that did not arrive walked more than a mile to the Roosevelt Avenue station and Main Street station.

A near-panic among 2,200 children and their mothers taken on the fifth excursion of the Police Department aboard the steamer Clermont to Bear Mountain, was caused by the second storm.

The excursionists were steaming down the Hudson River, opposite Nyack, when their boat was struck by the storm. Lieutenant Patrick Fitzgibbon, in charge of the Police Glee Club and the Police Band, ordered both the singers and the band to strike up to calm the children and their mothers. When the steamer docked at Pier 69, Bay Ridge, the excursionists were held aboard a while longer by a continued downpour.

More than forty persons who had sought shelter under a bridge in the transverse road in Central Park opposite Sixty-fifth Street, were marooned by a flood which filled the depression under the bridge. They stood upon benches until rescued by Patrolmen Hoffman, Peters and Breslin of the Arsenal Station, who wore rubber boots when they waded into the flood.

Police Emergency Squad 11 and Hook and Ladder 153 went to the rescue of a proprietor of a two-story fruit and dairy store at 628 Avenue U, Brooklyn. The roof of the building was flooded by a choked leader and when the water finally descended it deluged the proprietor and his stock of goods.

In local areas in Brooklyn the floods produced by the storm were loosed so suddenly that alarmed residents called the police and reported that broken water mains were endangering lives and property. The police quickly traced the floods to sewers inadequate to discharge the precipitation.

Lightning struck a tank of the Tidewater Oil Company at Bayonne and set fire to it during the afternoon storm. The tank contained 22,500 barrels of crude oil. Most of the oil was saved by the company's fire department aided by two companies of the Bayonne Fire Department which prevented the fire from spreading to other tanks.

Lightning struck four other structures in Bayonne: The Angelical Baptist Church, 11 East Forty-sixth Street; two houses, 28 and 30 Washington Parkway, and a detached dwelling at 73 West Forty-fourth Street. Mrs. Anna McMann, 50 years old, was rescued by the Bayonne Fire Department Emergency Squad from her flooded basement apartment in an apartment house, 776 Avenue A.

Due to short circuits caused by the flood, street lights on Broadway, Bayonne, were out and the Hudson County Boulevard also was in darkness for twenty blocks. The underpasses at East Twenty-first and East Twenty-second Streets, Broadway and Avenue C, Broadway and Avenue A under the Central Railroad of New Jersey were flooded by five feet of water, cutting off Bergen Port and the east side from the main section of Bayonne.

A bolt of lightning also fired a two-story frame garage at 301 East Thirty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, owned by William Rockey. The garage, which housed two wagons, was completely razed by fire.

The first storm was marked by extremely heavy rain in small local areas, notably lower Manhattan, downtown Brooklyn, Flatbush, Staten Island and the North Shore of Long Island, while in Coney Island, the Rockaways and the Bronx little or no rain fell. On Manhattan there was only a light rainfall north of 100th Street. But the shower was so heavy in downtown Manhattan and other near-by areas that it flooded streets, sewers, short-circuited automobile ignition systems and disrupted telephone and ticker service in small areas.

The early storm caused a tie-up of one hour and fourteen minutes on the eastbound line of the B. M. T. Fourteenth Street-Canarsie subway when the eastbound track was flooded at the Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, station, at 7:55 o'clock. According to a report to the Transit Commission, it was not until 9:09 o'clock that the service was restored. During the tie-up Brooklyn-bound trains were turned back at Montrose Avenue.

At 8:45 o'clock, while the tie-up was in progress, a stalled eastbound train developed a grounded third rail shoe, which necessitated the shutting off of all power on the line. Service on the Manhattan-bound line was restored a minute later, but power on the eastbound line was not turned on again until 9:09 o'clock.

All trolley lines in the five boroughs were seriously affected by the second storm. Delays of fifteen minutes to more than two hours were reported to the Transit Commission. The longest delay occurred on the Metropolitan Avenue line in Brooklyn, on which service was disrupted from 5:15 to 7:35 P. M. There was an hour and a half delay on the Cypress Hill line in Queens.

The second storm was accompanied by a .98-inch rainfall, according to the local Weather Bureau, which reported that the highest temperature for the day was 82 at 2 P. M., and issued a forecast of "partly cloudy, not much change in temperature, with moderate southerly winds" for today.

In the Rockaways, which escaped the early storm, the streets were flooded to a depth of three inches by the afternoon storm. Far Rockaway Boulevard, Rockaway Beach Boulevard, Central Avenue and other streets were impassable and many motor cars were stalled until the flood subsided. In the Arverne and Edgemere business sections cellars were flooded by water which cascaded down from the streets after sewers were clogged. Merchants who tried to hold back the flood by building levees with bags of sand found it impossible. The downpour sent thousands of beach visitors to the Long Island Railroad stations for shelter. Many boats were nearly swamped by the storm.

Telephone Lines Affected.

The telephone lines affected were those served by the Hanover, Bowling Green, Whitehall and Digby Central offices, according to a statement from the offices of the New York Telephone Company, explaining that all those central offices are in the 104 Broad Street telephone building. The announcement further read:

"Regular and emergency repair forces of the telephone company succeeded in restoring service on 600 lines by noon. Work will continue throughout the day and tonight as well, in an effort to re-establish normal service by tomorrow.

"Ten cables in all were affected, so far as surveys by telephone engineers during the forenoon revealed. The damages were limited to sections of cables at Broad and William Streets and Broad and Beaver Streets. Here, as at other points in the subway construction work, the contracting company is replacing the street and subsurface equipment of various kinds above the roof of the new subway. In this work telephone cables have been moved by the subway builders from their usual positions, supports and coverings. This tends to produce breakages, which may permit water to enter the cable sheaths.

"Telephone engineers state that the damage would probably have been much more extensive but for the alternative routings of cables as a precaution against just such interruptions. With the lines serving a building entering it by more than one cable route, it is possible to continue service for a part of its tenants even if the other route has been damaged."

The ticker service partly paralyzed by the flood was that of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Three cables of ticker lead were short-circuited at Beaver and Broad Streets. In addition two cables of 300 wires each connecting downtown offices of the telegraph company and operating clocks were short-circuited at the same time in front of the Pulitzer Building. Emergency crews were put to work at once to make repairs, and expected to have the service restored by this morning. No trunk lines were affected. The trouble was felt principally in brokerage and other business houses in the financial district supplied with ticker service by the grounded cables.

SMOOT ANSWERS FRANCE ON TARIFF

Senator Declares That Increases on Products Shipped to Us Are Misrepresented.

FRANCE HAS TRADE BALANCE

HOLDS THEIR RATES UNFAIR

Maximum Schedules Discriminate Against American Goods and We Lose in Exports, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee, made a formal reply today to French critics of the new American tariff law. He said that the duties on importations from France had been increased only 3½ per cent on the average, while the substantial increases were only on $31,000,000 worth of goods imported from France, and that duties had been decreased on $14,000,000 worth of importations.

Senator Smoot said that the French critics had been unjust and had misrepresented the increases made upon importations to the United States. On the other hand, he declared that under the French tariff system sharp discriminations had been made against American goods sent to France. This, he said, resulted from the maximum and minimum tariff system of that country, with the result that American exports to France have decreased under the maximum duties.

"For the last few days," Mr. Smoot stated, "I have been examining into the protests of certain foreign countries against the tariff act.

"I knew they were unjust but I hardly realized that there was no ground whatever for many of the countries protesting.

Volume of Trade Favors France.

"Take France for instance. An examination will show that we buy goods from France to the value of $156,000,000 per annum. We also spend about $300,000,000 of tourist money in France, so that the French receive from us about $450,000,000 a year, as against about $160,000,000 which they spend for goods they purchase in the United States. The volume of trade, including the tourist money, in favor of France amounts to $290,000,000.

"Of the $156,000,000 worth of goods exported, the tariffs were increased on $31,000,000. At the same time they were decreased on $14,000,000 worth. Moreover, many of the items on which increases were made were purely luxuries and the tariffs in the nature of revenue from our point of view would not in any way affect the volume of imports. The total average increase is about 3½ per cent.

"It must always be borne in mind that France discriminates against American goods not out of any malevolence but because the tariffs in France are on an entirely different basis than in the United States.

"We make our tariffs equal to everybody alike. The French Government, however, has a maximum and minimum tariff within the boundaries of which they bargain with other countries for favored positions, the net result of which is that sharp discriminations are set up against American goods which have damaged American exports to France.

Exports to France Decreased.

"In fact, since these discriminations were undertaken our exports to France have been decreasing, or in any event have not increased as in the case of all other countries in the world. If there is any complaint over tariff questions, the whole of this complaint rests with the United States."

Senator Smoot is studying the tariff rates of other countries on American products. He said that invariably they are higher than American rates on products imported from foreign countries and that most of them show a deliberate attempt to retaliate against the United States. In his opinion, when normal times return and business is moving normally the protesting countries will see how unjust are their attacks on the new tariff law.

"I sincerely hope that the tariff law will be made the one issue against the Republican party in the Fall campaign," he said. "I can easily show that most countries have erected high tariffs against us and that our duties are not intended to injure any country."

Senator Smoot is preparing other statements on the tariff for use in the coming campaign.

Plane Speeds Times to Argentina.

Copies of THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 21 were placed aboard the southbound plane of the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line at Miami yesterday morning and will reach Buenos Aires next Thursday night, just ten days after leaving New York. If the papers of Monday had been sent by ordinary mail they would have been held until today at the foreign department of the New York Postoffice and would have reached Buenos Aires twenty days after publication. The papers will be delivered to the American Club in Buenos Aires with the compliments of the air line.

FEDERAL MEN TO SIFT EWALD'S ACTIVITIES

But Tuttle Won't Discuss Report That He Is Scanning Circumstances of Appointment.

Federal authorities are renewing their investigation of activities of George F. Ewald, former magistrate, it was disclosed yesterday, when United States Attorney Tuttle refused to deny or affirm a report that he was looking into the circumstances of Ewald's appointment to office in 1927.

According to the report, there has come to Mr. Tuttle's attention the charge that a Democratic political leader had demanded $10,000 from Ewald as the price of his appointment. Mr. Tuttle, who would not comment on whether there were grounds for believing that Ewald had advanced the money, said that subpoenas had been issued to help a general inquiry into the background of the Governor's case against the former magistrate.

At the Federal building it was believed that several subpoenas were issued to bring about the production of bank account records, including those of the politician who helped to sponsor Ewald for his public office. Income tax returns are also believed to be under scrutiny.

"We have men out with subpoenas and we are trying to collect all the information we can in preparation for the Ewald trial, which is set for Aug. 4," Mr. Tuttle admitted.

In a primary contest in the Thirteenth Assembly District last Fall, Edward V. Broderick, an attorney, declared that the late Magistrate Andrew Macrery had been forced to promise a $30,000 payment to a political leader for reappointment to the bench. The charge was never sustained before any legal body.

The manner of Ewald's appointment to office has not figured in the investigation being conducted by the county authorities, Harold W. Hastings, Assistant District Attorney, said yesterday. He said that on Monday the county grand jury would hear evidence in connection with Ewald's dismissal of a third-offense speeding charge against William F. Badger. The dismissal is said to have followed intervention by Abe April, politically prominent furrier, who, it is charged, purchased $1,000 of Cotter Butte mining stock from Ewald in the latter's chambers. The evidence will be heard under the law dealing with bribery. The Federal indictment against Ewald accuses him of using the mails to defraud in connection with Cotter Butte stock sales.

Ewald, who was appointed to office by Mayor Walker, was a member of the Cayuga Democratic Club.

WARD RESIGNS PARK POST.

Prospect Regional Director to Be Succeeded by F. V. Clark.

Dr. J. Francis Ward, whose resignation as regional director of the Park Association of New York City, was requested by Nathan Straus Jr., its president, withdrew from his post yesterday, although he protested that Mr. Straus had acted without consulting the board of directors and had himself committed the same breach which had moved him to ask for Dr. Ward's withdrawal. M. Lawrence Craner, executive secretary of the association, said the board of directors last year had passed a bylaw giving the president the power to appoint and remove regional directors. He announced that Fred V. Clark of 327 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, had accepted the post, which embraces the Prospect Park area.

Dr. Ward's proposal for a motor highway through Prospect Park, in the face of opposition from the park association, the Department of Parks, several newspapers and a number of civic organizations, was understood to be the principal factor behind the request for his resignation. The specific cause was Dr. Ward's failure to submit suggestions and reports to the association before giving them to the newspapers.

Dr. Ward protested Mr. Straus's action on the ground that the newspapers had been informed of it on Wednesday, although the letter did not reach him until yesterday, and that Mr. Straus had not given him an opportunity to submit his official report in which he planned to incorporate his suggestions for improvement of the park.

DEFEND BUCKLEY ON RACKET CHARGE

DETROIT FORCE SHAKEN UP

DETROIT, July 24 (AP).—The murder of Jerry Buckley, radio orator, had far-reaching effects today in the city where he minced no words in denouncing the underworld before microphone.

In the burst of police activity which followed the killing of Mr. Buckley by three gunmen as he sat in a hotel lobby early yesterday, the centralized police vice squad was swept out of existence and the precinct squads which were substituted for it were ordered to "smash up" every liquor and vice resort in the city.

A few hours after Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox had issued orders creating the squads and starting the raids, a hard blow was struck at the commissioner himself by a story in The Detroit Daily News.

The News said that Mr. Wilcox admitted that his statement last night that he possessed an affidavit in which a whisky racketeer accused Buckley of taking $4,000 from him was false. The commissioner, The News said, admitted that he had no such affidavit "as yet."

Asked to Furnish Proof.

The paper published an interview with Mr. Wilcox in which the commissioner was asked, after he had repeated that he had the affidavit, to prove its existence by showing it to a judge of the Circuit Court.

"Well, it isn't signed—not yet," Mr. Wilcox was quoted as saying. The News added that Mr. Wilcox said that he would show the affidavit to James E. Chenot, County Prosecutor. Mr. Chenot was quoted as stating that Mr. Wilcox had promised the affidavit, but had not produced it.

The Wilcox statement about the affidavit was the only open charge which has been made against Mr. Buckley, although police headquarters had announced that detectives were looking for members of one of the city's river gangs in connection with the killing. Mr. Buckley's friends pointed out that the announcer had incurred the enmity of many gangster through his attacks over the radio and recalled the many threatening letters which he would read to his listeners.

Comes to Buckley's Defense.

Robert Oakman, 70-year-old millionaire builder and politician, came to the defense of Buckley. Found by reporters cruising on his yacht in Canadian waters, Mr. Oakman denounced characterizations of Buckley as a racketeer and blackmailer and called him a sincere foe of the underworld interests he opposed in his talks from station WMBC.

He called statements of the Police Commissioner and others linking Buckley with underworld activities and representing him as receiving money from crooks "shameful innuendo against a man who bore on his breast the weight of a fight for a clean city."

Mr. Oakman helped to elect Charles Bowles as Mayor last Fall, then broke with him and aided the campaign which culminated in Mayor Bowles's recall Tuesday.

The rewards offered for the capture and conviction of Buckley's slayers were increased to $7,500 today by the offer of $2,500 by The Detroit Times. The council yesterday offered a reward of $5,000. Prosecuting Attorney Chenot plans to ask the Board of County Auditors to post an additional reward of $5,000.

Bowles's Police Policy Ended.

In abolishing the centralized vice squad and returning to precinct commanders the duty of suppressing gambling, bootlegging and other vice, Commissioner Wilcox abandoned a policy inaugurated by Mayor Bowles. This policy had been one of the focal points of attack in the successful recall campaign. Critics of the Bowles administration, including Mr. Buckley, had charged that open gambling existed in the city and that the centralized vice squad, which allowed the precinct officers to assume a hands-off policy, was partly responsible.

Several suspects were arrested by police during the day in connection with the Buckley killing, but no formal charges were made against any of them. Ninety-seven men were arrested and questioned by police last night in a drive against gangsters. They were taken into custody at a miniature golf course.

The police announced during the day that "Black Leo" Cellura and his gangster followers, notorious river characters, were being sought in connection with the killing of Buckley. Detectives on the case advanced the theory that Buckley was shot down by members of this gang because they believed him responsible for the failure to "fix" the cases of two of their number now serving terms in a Canadian prison.

According to the theory, $4,000 was paid in a futile attempt to keep Frank Cammarata, Detroit ganster, and Thomas Licavoli from being sent to jail at Kingston, Ont., for three years in 1927 for possessing firearms in Windsor. The detectives believe the gangsters blamed Buckley for the miscarriage of their plans and felt that a "double cross" had taken place somewhere along the line.

The special mayoralty election necessitated by the recall of Mayor Bowles will be held Sept. 9. This date will couple the mayoralty election with the regular State-wide primaries. The Election Commission decided to include the mayoralty issue on the primary ballots in the interest of economy.

HUSTON WILL QUIT POST NEXT MONTH

tional chairmanship for the good of the party, his refusal to follow the President's advice would cause the President to write a public letter calling on Mr. Huston to resign. Confirmation or denial of this report was not obtained.

Party Pressure Long Applied.

It was evident, however, from all that could be learned today that Mr. Burke and Mr. Nutt indulged in some pretty plain speaking in their interview. Their selection as the President's emissaries excited considerable surprise in political circles, as they have been foremost among prominent Republicans in seeking to have Mr. Huston step down and out from the direction of the party's national affairs.

Until his formal statement was issued tonight, Mr. Huston never has said that he intended to resign. When the officers of the national committee met in Washington two weeks ago to discuss plans for this year's campaign the chairman said that at the meeting he had not been asked to resign. Since then no statement has come from him to indicate his intentions.

The pressure on him to retire has been continuous, and has been participated in by several of his closest political and personal friends, who were convinced that it was necessary for the preservation of party harmony.

At the meeting of the executive committee to be held here on Aug. 7, the committee will have before it, in addition to electing Mr. Huston's successor, the election of the Secretary of the National Committee to succeed Representative Franklin W. Fort of New Jersey, who resigned some time ago. It is probable also, according to the understanding in Republican quarters, that Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky will be elected chairman of the executive committee. Mr. Lucas is the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Party Will Set Up a New Post.

Up to this time the chairmanship of the Executive Committee has been vested in the chairman of the National Committee. In this new office Mr. Lucas, if he is chosen, will relieve the new chairman of the National Committee of much of the burden entailed by the Senatorial and Congressional campaigns.

The Huston case has been a puzzle ever since the movement for the chairman's resignation was begun last Spring after testimony was given before the Senate lobby committee that the funds of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, of which he was president, had been placed to his private credit with a stock brokerage house in New York with which he had a trading account. The amounts so deposited were transmitted subsequently to the Tennessee River Improvement Association.

The lobby committee submitted a mild and colorless report in regard to Mr. Huston's alleged lobbying in behalf of legislation affecting the government power and nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals. Senator Robinson of Indiana, a member of the lobby committee, made a speech defending the party chairman.

Waited for Senate to Adjourn.

According to leading Republicans who asserted they had knowledge of the intimate details of the episode, Mr. Huston gave assurances three months ago that he would tender his resignation as chairman when Congress adjourned, but when President Hoover called the Senate into special session he had interpreted his promise to mean that he would not retire until the special session had ended.

The special session was adjourned last Monday and since then there have been evidences of irritation on the part of administration officials and other party men over the failure of Mr. Huston to announce that he would quit the chairmanship.

On Tuesday reports came to the administration that Mr. Huston had determined either not to resign or to postpone his resignation for several months. This report is supposed to have brought about the action of President Hoover in asking Mr. Nutt, who resides in Cleveland, and Mr. Burke, who resides in Pittsburgh, to come to Washington at once.

Messrs. Nutt and Burke reached Washington yesterday morning and, as a result of their two conferences with the President, departed for New York. Mr. Huston agreed to be in Washington tomorrow morning, but late this afternoon word was received from him that he would get here tonight. Up to the time the White House offices closed this evening it was denied that he had any appointment to see the President.

It was learned late tonight that the sudden and unexpected termination of the Huston case was due to the urgent desire of the President to have it adjsuted before he left Washington tomorrow afternoon to spend the week-end at his camp in Virginia.

Senator Fess, when told tonight of Mr. Huston's announcement that he would resign on Aug. 7 expressed surprise, but had no comment to make. Neither would he comment on the understanding that he will be elected to succeed Mr. Huston, as ad interim chairman of the National Committee.

Demanded Request From Hoover.

Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican National Committee, left yesterday afternoon for Washington to confer with President Hoover about his resignation.

Mr. Huston's departure followed a conference with James Francis Burke and Joseph R. Nutt, general counsel and treasurer of the committee, late Wednesday night. At this conference, Mr. Huston was said to have told the two other National Committee officials that he did not intend to resign unles requested to do so by the President. His visit to Washington apparently resulted from his refusal to assure Mr. Burke and Mr. Nutt of his willingness to resign without the request of the President, who selected him for the post.

Before leaving for Washington Mr. Huston conferred here with Senator George H. Moses, chairman of the Republican Senatorial campaign committee, and Joseph W. Simpson and Daniel Shields, National Committeeman and State Chairman from Maine, in preparation for the election in that State on Sept. 9.

Senator Moses said that the Maine leaders had asked for the conference in Washington, but that he had suggested that it be held here, as he could more easily stop in New York on his way home than remain in Washington. Messrs. Simpson and Shields asked the cooperation of Mr. Huston and Senator Moses in making a vigorous Maine campaign.

Representative Wallace H. White Jr. is the Republican nominee for United States Senator, and, while there is no doubt of his election and that of Governor W. Tudor Gardiner, who was renominated, Mr. Simpson and Mr. Shields urged that every effort be made to return them victors by large majorities for the effect on the rest of the country. Maine is the only State to hold its election in September and the result has long been regarded as a political barometer.

Mr. Huston and Senator Moses assured the Maine leaders of adequate assistance from the national organization. As is customary, speakers of national reputation will be sent into the State.

New Road Precautions Taken for Hoover For Drive Today to Week-End at Rapidan

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—As a result of the accident which happened to a White House automobile when returning from the camp two weeks ago, new precautions will be thrown around the President and Mrs. Hoover when they leave Washington tomorrow afternoon for a week-end stay at the Rapidan Lodge in the Blue Ridge Mountains. The President and Mrs. Hoover will not return to the White House until Monday.

The safety measures were decided upon in consequence of a speeding automobile driven by a woman narrowly missing the President's car near Great Falls, Va., and striking the third car in the line.

Mr. Hoover has hitherto objected to a motorcycle escort while on private trips, but it is believed that some motorcycle riders will be near the Chief Executive tomorrow.

In addition the Virginia authorities will patrol the roads very carefully in an effort to see that the traffic is systematically controlled as the White House cars pass.

Probably eighteen guests of the President will go to the camp. As part of the precautions on the highway, it is planned to have the guests ride to the camp in cars widely separated from each other and to have the President's car accompanied only by a secret service machine and perhaps one other automobile.

In the past a train of from five to ten cars has proceeded in line to and from the camp, but it is now thought safer to break up the procession.

ELECTRIC MAINS EXPLODE.

Power and Light Services Crippled in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 24 (AP).—Fire and an explosion in two underground mains of the Union Electric Company carrying wires relaying current into downtown St. Louis, weakened the power and disrupted service this morning over much of the business district.

Lights were dimmed in office buildings, elevators crept at a snail's pace and all machinery dependent upon electrical power was slowed down and in most instances put out of commission entirely.

The cause of the fire was not determined.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 24.—Orders have been issued, it was learned today, for the movement of 7,000 State troops on Saturday and Sunday between New York National Guard armories and various training camps in the State. Of these Guardsmen 4,400 will be shifted in and out of Camp Smith, Peekskill.

The changes to be made under supervision of Major Gen. William N. Haskell in Camp Smith call for the departure for home on Sunday forenoon of the Seventy-first Infantry of Manhattan and of the 174th Infantry of Buffalo. They will be replaced by the 107th Infantry of Manhattan and the 108th of Syracuse, Auburn and other up-State cities.

CHICAGO RACKET 'DOPE' A JEST, WITNESS SAYS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The Cook County grand jury, pursuing an inquiry into some circumstances of the Lingle murder case and into charges of racketeering made against several Chicago newspaper men, today heard three newspaper witnesses and tomorrow will get further testimony from others and from police officials.

The grand jurors, it was indicated, called the witnesses in some cases to explain their own affairs and in others to discuss phases of the murder of Alfred Lingle, Chicago Tribune police reporter.

Robert M. Lee, city editor of The Chicago Tribune; Harry C. Read, city editor of The Chicago Evening American, and Harry Reutlinger, an assistant to Mr. Read, were heard during the day.

Accounts of alleged racketeering by Chicago newspaper men, given to the grand jury by Harry T. Brundidge, reporter for The St. Louis Star, are a main factor in the investigation.

Mr. Reutlinger said he told the jurors that most of Brundidge's "inside dope" on Chicago conditions had been given by him to the St. Louis man "in jest."

"Mr. Brundidge was either deceived, the victim of this hoax, or he made the charges maliciously," Mr. Reutlinger asserted. "Everything was said in a joking way, and I have plenty of witnesses to prove this is so."

Witnesses summoned for tomorrow are Walter A. Strong, publisher of The Chicago Daily News; Leland H. Reese, gangland reporter for The Daily News; Richard J. Finnegan, managing editor of The Daily Illustrated Times; William H. Stuart, political editor of The Evening American; Ted Tod, crime reporter for The Herald and Examiner; Roscoe Cornell, circulation manager for The Herald and Examiner; Captain William F. Russell, former Commissioner of Police, and Captain John Stege, former Chief of Detectives.

Colonel Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, and Henry Justin Smith, managing editor of The Daily News, it was announced, may be invited before the grand jury.

NEGRO GROUP FIGHTS MORTON'S LEADERSHIP

Letter to Seven Tammany Chiefs Assails His Position as Sole Dispenser of Patronage.

The Harlem Progressive Democratic Association, with a Negro membership, has sent a letter of protest to the Tammany leaders of seven Assembly districts with considerable Negro population against the position of Ferdinand Q. Morton, a Negro member of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, as sole dispenser of Tammany patronage among the Negro Democrats.

The letter was sent to the following Tammany district leaders: James J. Hines of the Eleventh, Andrew B. Keating of the Thirteenth, Nathan Burkan of the Seventeenth, Martin J. Healy of the Nineteenth, Clarence H. Neal Jr. of the Twentieth, Thomas J. Murray of the Twenty-first and J. J. McCormick of the Twenty-second Assembly District. It demands an unequivocal answer to the question whether their individual endorsement of Negro Democrats within their respective districts would prevail over an endorsement by the United Colored Democracy which is the organization behind Civil Service Commissioner Morton.

"We charge that the leadership of this so-called United Colored Democracy is not of our choosing, that it is unrepresentative, arrogant, vindictive, irresponsible and is repudiated by colored Democrats," Mr. McIntosh wrote. He said the leadership had been discarded by George W. Olvany while he was chieftain of Tammany Hall, but had been restored by John F. Curry.

Mr. McIntosh, aside from his letter, said that it was easier to see President Hoover than to reach Mr. Morton and that as a result the Democratic vote among Negroes had dwindled from 65 per cent while Mayor Hylan and Governor Smith were in power, to 25 per cent in the election last year. He said the Negro Democrats had been eleven years trying to oust Commissioner Morton as leader.

FINDS WRECK IN EAST RIVER

Clean-Up Boat of Yachtsmen Tows In Peril to Navigation.

The lighter S. C. Scofield, chartered two weeks ago by the Yacht Owners' Association to clear the East River of driftwood and menaces to navigation, found a water-soaked wreck sufficient in size to sink a good-sized ship yesterday and towed it to the pier of the American Sugar Refining Company in Long Island City.

Although the lighter is equipped with a two-ton lifting derrick the submerged hull was too heavy for it, and F. G. Moe, secretary of the association, who was notified, called the United States Army engineers who will dispose of the wreck.

The clean-up program was started by owners of power boats used for commuting and the lighter is expected to spend several weeks clearing the river from Twenty-sixth Street to Stepping Stone Light. Mr. Moe said yesterday that good progress was being made in making the river safe for commuters.

BROWN DEPLORES POSTAL RENT BILLS

Expects Way Will Be Cleared for Reducing the Department's $17,000,000 Annual Outlay.

SOME LEASES 10 PER CENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The large rental operations of the Postoffice Department, which now involve the leasing of about 6,500 buildings at a total rental of about $17,000,000, the rent exceeding, in some instances, 10 per cent of the capital value of the leased properties, was discussed over the radio tonight by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown.

Mr. Brown said he was hopeful that the time will come soon when the government will occupy its quarters in most cases not as a tenant but as an owner. There are 2,200 postoffices of the first class that have receipts of more than $20,000 annually. In Mr. Brown's opinion it would be economical for the government to own these offices outright.

The Postmaster General spoke in The Evening Star forum over the National Broadcasting Company network. In about 5,000 towns, he said, the main postoffice is located in a leased building.

"In the larger cities we are leasing more than 1,300 buildings for branch offices and stations; about 100 for garage purposes, and 53 for railway mail stations," he continued. "Our rent on the 6,500 leased buildings ranges from a few hundred dollars a year to $360,000, which is the annual rental for the Van Buren Street postal station in Chicago. Our total annual rent bill for the 6,500 leased buildings is approximately $17,000,000, or an average of about $2,600 for each building."

Pointing out that a class of bidders had sprung up who, after obtaining a contract for a building to be leased for a term of years, raised the funds by the sale of mortgage bonds on the security of the property involved and the lease contract, Mr. Brown said:

"I know of no case of such financing in which the rentals were not sufficient to provide for interest and sinking fund requiremnets during the life of the lease, but there undoubtedly have been cases where the bond issue has exceeded afair valuation of the physical property exclusive of the value of the lease."

Under the general building program started in 1926 and the supplemental building program instituted by President Hoover, main postal buildings will be provided in all the cities of the first class where at present the government is renting quarters, while hundreds of the buildings now owned will be enlarged and remodeled.

"The program does not apply to buildings for postal branches and garages in the large cities with which we encounter our greatest difficulties and incur the greatest expense," he added. "We now lease but seventeen buildings to house main postoffices where the annual rental is in excess of $6,000, while there are 272 branch offices and 37 garages for which the rental exceeds that figure. As a matter of economy and good business, the government should own the most, if not all, of these buildings.

"Our rent bill for these 309 stations and garages is almost $8,000,000 a year—an average of approximately $26,000 for each building. According to appraisals made by the department, the fair value of these buildings is approximately $75,000,000, so that we are annually paying the lessors about 10½ per cent of the capital value of their property.

"The Postoffice Department will make definite recommendations to the next session of Congress for authority to undertake the purchase or construction of the branch postoffices and garages under lease in the larger cities."

GOAL OF M'ADOO FUND TENTATIVELY $100,000

Committee Plans to Raise Sum to Aid Widow and Daughter of Chief Magistrate.

The McAdoo fund committee held an organization meeting at the Bankers' Club yesterday and made plans to raise a fund to be known as the William G. McAdoo Memorial Fund, for the benefit of the widow and daughter of the late chief city magistrate. The goal of the fund was tentatively set at $100,000. This, conservatively invested, would, it was said, provide the family with an income of $5,000 a year. After their death the principal is to be devoted to some recognized charity.

The meeting was closed, but the committee issued a statement afterward which said that the fund was to be raised in memory of Mr. McAdoo's "unusually long and honest public service to city, State and nation."

An executive committee was chosen, consisting of R. A. C. Smith, who acted as informal chairman at the luncheon; Herbert L. Satterlee, Frank E. Hagemeyer, Robert G. Mead and Lloyd P. Stryker. Mr. Stryker, an attorney, with offices at 40 Wall Street, was chosen permanent secretary of the fund committee, and friends and admirers of the late chief magistrate were invited to communicate with him for further details. The executive group was empowered to choose a permanent chairman and treasurer of the committee and will meet soon to do so.

Besides those mentioned the personnel of the committee includes:

Justice Frederic Kernochan	General George Dyer
Judge Max S. Levine	John F. Curry

Jailed for Passing Red Handbills.

Found guilty of disorderly conduct and illegal distribution of communistic literature, Isaac Larzan, 31 years old, of 98 Jewel Street, Manhattan, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 on each charge or spend twenty days in jail by Magistrate Doyle in Flushing yesterday. He did not pay the fine and was committed to the city prison. Patrolman Arthur Hall testified that Larzan caused a disturbance Wednesday evening when the policeman interrupted his distribution of handbills in the Flushing subway terminal.

RADIO PHONE TESTS SPEED FIRE BOAT RUNS

Satisfactory Communication Is Maintained With Battery Station on Trips Around City.

An annual saving in time and cost amounting to thousands of dollars is indicated as a result of a week of tests conducted along New York's waterfront with the fireboat John Purroy Mitchel, which has been equipped with radio telephone communication apparatus to link it with its berth at the Battery, it was learned yesterday from Acting Chief Leonard Gebhard, who is in charge of marine activities in the absence of Deputy Chief John J. McElligott.

The experiments have been made on actual fire runs of the boat, by the personnel under Captain George J. Baum, and in cooperation with engineers of the Western Electric Company, which installed the equipment. Communication has been maintained satisfactorily while the fire boat was as far up the Hudson River as Ninety-sixth Street, Manhattan; at Hell Gate Bridge, and in the vicinity of the Staten Island piers. Conversations are expected to be satisfactory at greater distances from the fire boat pier, where the shore transmitter and receiver is installed, and as soon as the boat is called to more remote points tests will be made.

The land equipment is installed in the engine house of Marine Company No. 57 at the Battery, and consists of a 400-watt short wave transmitter operating on about 188 meters. Two receivers are employed, one being a long wave set for intercepting S O S calls and similar messages, and the other a short wave set to receive the messages sent back to headquarters by the fire boat. All transmitter equipment operates from the city's power mains. The receiver operates from a small motor generator set attached to a local storage battery.

NEW RULES ISSUED FOR AIRFIELD LIGHTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Specific colors for lights marking airplane landing fields, airway beacons and signals to give information to fliers at night were defined by Major Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, in regulations made public today. The regulations were compiled after tests conducted by the executive board of the Aeronautics Bureau of the department.

"Effective Jan. 1, 1931, beacons at airports shall flash a light either clear or aviation green in color, or a combination of the two," Major Young's announcement said. "Unless the main beacon is aviation green in color, or unless its characteristic includes one or more aviation green flashes having a maximum candle power of at least 10,000 candles, an auxiliary beacon, aviation green in color and flashing a definite international Morse code characteristic shall be provided.

"Effective Aug. 1, 1930, aeronautical lights marking points from which the airman may take his bearings at night leading to an airport or landing field, are to be equal in effectiveness to the standard Department of Commerce twenty-four-inch revolving beacon, equipped with either a clear or aviation red cover glass, and have a color characteristic consisting of either clear or aviation red flashes or a combination of the two.

"This type of aeronautical light is also to be supplemented by a directional projector pointing a high-intensity pencil of clear light in the direction of the nearest airport or landing field. Unless such aeronautical light is aviation red in color or has a red flash in its characteristic, it is to be equipped with an auxiliary beacon of aviation red, flashing an international Morse code characteristic.

"Also effective Aug. 1, 1930, airway beacons marking a route leading to an airport or landing field are required to conform to the color standards for lights used on the national airway system, aviation green and red auxiliary lights indicating the presence of landing facilities and the absence of landing facilities, respectively."

FLEES IN NOON CROWDS WITH $8,000 IN BONDS

A thief who loitered in the hallway until the coast was clear during the noon hour yesterday escaped with $8,000 worth of bonds from the offices of de Saint Phalles & Co., 11 Broadway. William T. McMinn, head runner, saw the man in the messengers corridor on the third floor and inquired what he was doing there.

McMinn accepted his explanation and went on. While he was gone the man shoved his hand under the wicket in the bond window and seized a package of securities. Harry Kelly, a delivery clerk, saw him through the glass and yelled,

"Hey, what are you doing there?"

The thief made some unintelligible reply and dashed for the door ahead of Kelly, who followed shouting 'Stop thief! Stop thief!' Before any one could respond to the call the robber disappeared down the stairway and was lost in the noon crowds on Broadway.

6,298,000 JOBLESS LISTED IN 26 NATIONS

DECREASE IN 4 COUNTRIES

EARNED WAGE DROPS HERE

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 24.—The number of unemployed in the world is much greater than the entire population of New York City, it is estimated here on a basis of the most recent figures published today in the July number of the Labor Office's International Labor Review. The figures, covering twenty-six countries excluding the United States, for which the statistics are not given but where unemployment is known to be high, show for only this part of the world a total of 5,067,000 "permanently" unemployed and a total of 1,231,000 more temporarily jobless, a grand total of 6,298,000. This total is 1,541,000 greater than that for the same area in May, 1929.

Figures Cited Are Incomplete.

Since many of the twenty-six States concerned give only the number of trade unionists or number of registered jobless and since only five of them include the figures for the temporarily jobless—Germany, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and Poland, which alone total 1,231,000 in this category—and since such countries as the United States, China, Japan and India are not included at all, it is considered that that real total of the world's unemployed is much greater than 6,000,000.

The only indication given for the United States is that there were 10 per cent less employed in May than in May, 1929—a sharper drop than either Britain or Germany registered.

Of the twenty-six countries all but four showed an increase in the jobless over May 1929. Unemployment in Soviet Russia declined more than 400,000, dropping steadily from 1,593,000 in May 1929, to 1,168,000 in February, the latest Russian figure given. The other three countries where the number of jobless decreased are Denmark, 2,000; New Zealand, 1,000, and Palestine, 600. Estonia and Latvia remained practically stationary.

German Increase Greatest.

The greatest increases were: Germany, from 900,000 to a total of 1,953,000; Britain, from 700,000 to 1,855,000; Poland, from 120,000 to 360,000; and Italy, 54,000 to 390,000.

Britain, however, is the only one of these countries in which the number of jobless did not decrease in the Spring, British unemployment having mounted steadily each month since June, 1929. France continues to have the fewest jobless, the May total being only 913, an increase of 363 over May, 1929.

Other statistics published in the same review show a sharp decrease in wages carried in the United States in the past year both for skilled and unskilled men and women. Comparing the first quarter of 1929 with the first quarter of 1930, the average weekly earnings of skilled factory workers dropped from $33.15 to $30.70, the index number declining from 234 to 217; for unskilled $26.03 to $24.14, the index dropping from 243 to 225; for skilled women, $17.76 to $16.84, with the index from 227 to 215; and the general average from above $28.88 to $27.59 and the index from 230 to 220. The general average hourly earnings, however, rose from 58 to 59 cents in the same period. Figures available for comparison are limited to Poland, where the index of wages for men and women rose in the same period from 117.5 to 121.

Washington Bureau Reports That Number Unable to Find Work Last Spring.

The Borough of Brooklyn, with a population of 2,596,154, had 81,265 persons "who usually work at gainful occupations" but were unable to find employment late in the Spring when the Federal census was taken, it was announced yesterday by the Brooklyn census supervisors.

The figure was compiled in Washington and forwarded to the local authorities here for announcement, according to Leo V. Doherty, chief supervisor for the borough. Mr. Doherty announced the figures for three of the five New York census districts into which the borough was divided. They are:

	Unemployed.
28th Census District	13,531
31st Census District	16,759
32d Census District	17,675
29th and 30th Census Districts (combined)	33,000
Total	81,265

The statement from the Federal Census Bureau was described as a preliminary announcement of unemployment returns, subject to correction, and to be supplemented later by data as to other classes of persons not at work at the time of the census, such as those who had a job but were sick or temporarily laid off. These other figures probably will not be released until September, it was said.

Mr. Doherty and Mortimer H. Michaels, supervisor for the twenty-ninth census district, asserted that the figures for Brooklyn revealed the unemployment situation to be less serious there than it had been pictured.

"I think this is a very small percentage for a large city like Brooklyn," Mr. Doherty said. "It does not seem high when we compare it with that of Manhattan and other large cities."

"There is certainly nothing alarming about this figure," asserted Mr. Michaels. "I had expected the unemployment returns for the borough would reveal a much larger number of idle here. Considering the constant cries about unemployment and hard times and business depression I was favorably surprised."

PREDICTS DEFEAT OF KING GOVERNMENT

OTTAWA, July 24 (Canadian Press).—A forecast of the result of the general election issued today from Conservative national headquarters asserts that 134 Conservatives will be elected, 56 Liberals, 14 of various other groups, and places 41 in the doubtful column. The forecast is signed by General A. D. McRae, chief whip and organizer of the Conservative party.

"This is my first and last forecast of this election," General McRae said. "I have purposely refrained from making any predictions until I should have complete reports before me. With these now to hand, I have no hestitation in predicting the defeat of the King Government and the return of Hon. R. B. Bennett with a good working majority over all other parties combined.

"A Conservative increase in every Province is promised confidential reports justify more optimistic expectations than I am quoting.

"Based on well-considered returns, I predict that the Conservatives will carry 134 constituencies and they will also, undoubtedly, carry a considerable number of those I have placed in the 'doubtful' column."

ARGENTINIAN REPORTS BIG SUM RAISED HERE

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP).—Financial circles in the capital today were informed that plans had been completed by Eduardo Depietri, holder of Argentine railway and elevator concessions, to expand the finances of his holdings through the investing of American capital in the amount of 100,000,000 Argentine pesos. The peso was quoted at about 96½ cents at noon today.

It was said that Depietri left yesterday for Buenos Aires by airplane. He had been in this country four months and was quoted as announcing on the eve of his departure he had concluded negotiations with American banking and industrial organizations to place the balance of his company's stock capital in the United States.

The Depietri railway and elevator system was said to be based on concessions from the Argentine government and was described as covering the richest agricultural region in Argentina.

Depietri was said to be accompanied on his trip to Buenos Aires by Arturo Sobral, consulting railroad engineer. They came to this country in February, accompanied by William Benkiser, general manager of the Bank of Boston of the United States and the First Old Colony Corporation of New York, and Max Ucko, director of several important Argentine concerns.

The Depietri railroads also will be materially supplemented by trucks, Depietri was quoted as saying. In this connection he said the Mack Company of Chicago was sending an engineer to the Argentine to organize the auxiliary transportation system.

AMTORG AIDE HELD IN MEXICAN CAPITAL

HE DENIES THAT HE IS A RED

Was Sent to Clean Up Affairs of Expelled Trade Delegation—A Naturalized American.

MEXICO CITY, July 24 (AP).—Mexican officials are studying a mass of documents confiscated from Mark S. Lulinsky of New York, a naturalized American who is being held by the authorities on suspicion of Communist propagandist activities.

Some of the documents were described as being of the utmost importance, and the case probably will be turned over to the Attorney General tomorrow.

Lulinsky, who is 38, was born at Odessa and was naturalized in New York in October, 1922.

The police said the documents seized indicated that Lulinsky was a vice president of the Third International in 1919. They also said that he was a representative of the Amtorg Trading Corporation and that he had come to Mexico several weeks ago ostensibly to clean up the affairs of the Soviet Commercial Attaché's office, which closed after the Russian Ministers had been expelled from Mexico.

Lulinsky denied that he was a Communist or that he was engaged in Communist activity.

General M. Palencia, chief of the detective and secret service, has taken charge of the case and the investigation is being closely guarded.

Lulinsky was arrested about a week ago in his hotel, but his detention was not made public.

Mark Lulinsky, held incomunicado by the Mexican Government, holds power of attorney from the Amtorg Trading Corporation, it was officially admitted at the Amtorg's offices, 261 Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon.

The Amtorg, it was stated, was informed of Lulinsky's arrest early in the week. The Russian trading organization itself is taking no steps to obtain his release, but, it was stated, the Mexican branch of the Bank of London is proceeding in that direction.

Lulinsky, who is president of Selskosojus-America, Inc., an organization making purchases for the Soviet agricultural cooperatives, left New York for Mexico City five or six weeks ago, it was stated by the Amtorg, in order to liquidate all business and accounts of the Soviet trade delegation expelled from Mexico City with Alexander Makar, the Soviet Government's last resident Minister there.

It was vigorously denied that Lulinsky had been engaged in Communist propaganda while in Mexico City.

While the Amtorg headquarters here were unable to confirm the report from Mexico City that, among Lulinsky's other duties, he was seeking the recovery of a $300,000 account deposited in a foreign bank in Mexico City by M. Makar, it was assumed that such a sum might possibly be involved. The Amtorg declared that Lulinsky was ordered to Mexico to liquidate the Soviet trading group's interests when reports were received that huge stores of goods and materials were being spoiled or stolen.

Egypt Considers Sugar Tariff Rise.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 24 (AP).—The government has taken under advisement proposals for the increase of import duties on sugar and various agricultural products. The proposals were designed to assist the peasants who have been hard hit by the prevailing economic depression.

FINDS AMERICAN TRADE WORSE THAN BRITAIN'S

Sir Herbert Samuel Contrasts Declines of $640,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 at Same Time.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—The House of Commons, in a debate on the trade situation tonight, tried to find some consolation from the fact that Britain was not alone in the trough of business depression.

Sir Hurbert Samuel, one of the chief Liberal free traders, said that trade figures for Germany and the United States were worse than the British national average and showed that while British trade had dropped by $640,000,000, trade of the United States simultaneously had fallen $1,000,000,000. Commercial depression, he added, had fallen on free trade and protectionist countries alike.

The discussion was opened by the free trade Liberals on a vote for the sum necessary for the salaries of the Party Council of Trade—which was agreed to without a division—and then they produced figures to show that bad though the situation was, tariffs would make it even worse.

It was the argument of one Liberal that tariffs have been unable seriously to divert channels of trade since 1913, that the favorable balance of trade in British manufactured goods was still enormous ($13,651,000,000 in 1929) and that the way to prevent its being wiped out by other imports was to increase the production of British foodstuffs.

The Liberal contention was that the Empire should foster trade with Russia. Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Laborite, declared that orders placed by the Soviet Government already had risen to $65,000,000 and could be increased to $250,000,000 "if the government were not so desperately shy of granting credits."

The parlous condition of the cotton trade also came under review. Sir Herbert Samuel said it was almost paralyzed, mainly because of the condition of affairs in India. Sixty-five per cent of the cotton operatives, he said, were unemployed in Blackburn, where the unemployment pay amounted to $5,000,000 a year.

To remedy the plight of the cotton industry, he urged that the League of Nations and the United States might intervene, as seemed possible if they were invited, to bring peace to China, and that the MacDonald government should not allow the history of cotton in 1930 to repeat the history of coal in 1926.

The president of the Board of Trade, William Graham, on behalf of the government, asserted that the Geneva tariff truce convention had been disappointing, but added that the government was persevering with the policy it embodied. He recalled that a trade delegation would soon visit the Far East to seek openings for British goods. Regarding the cotton industry, he said the government was actively promoting a reorganization.

DRINK HALL FOR SARATOGA.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 24.—Governor Roosevelt today met with the Saratoga Springs Commission for the first time, and a decision was reached to construct a drink hall at the resort where all of the waters of the spa could be piped for public use.

As it is now, those who visit Saratoga for the waters have to go to half a dozen places. The location of the proposed hall was not fixed.

The commission members present were George Foster Peabody of Saratoga, chairman; Pierrepont B. Noyes of Oneida, Henry Morgenthau of New York, Dr. L. Whittington Gorham of Albany and Dr. Carl Comstock of Saratoga. The other two members, Dr. Lindsley Williams of New York and Joseph D. Barnum of Syracuse, are in Europe.

CRITICIZES HOOVER ON APPROPRIATIONS

ASSERTS PUBLIC IS MISLED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, ranking Democratic member of the House Appropriations Committee, took issue with President Hoover tonight on the appropriations for the support of the government in the current fiscal year.

The statement recently issued from the White House relative to appropriations and expenditures for the present fiscal year, Mr. Byrns declared, "is another exhibition of juggling with figures, such as has been repeatedly done with reference to unemployment and economic conditions existing over the country, in an attempt to cover up the real facts.

"The administration," he continued, "has chosen to ignore the figures given by the Republican chairmen of the Appropriations Committees of the Houes and Senate, which were recently published in the Congressional Record.

"It has been shown beyond question that the appropriations made by the present Congress, up to the close of the regular session recently adjourned, exceed those made up to the close of the second regular session of the last Congress for the last fiscal year by more than $459,000,000, which sum is actually $23,000,000 less than the amount recommended by the President.

"But the President has chosen to discuss the matter from the standpoint of estimated expenditures for the fiscal year beginning July 1, and even according to his own statement, the increase in expenditures for the present fiscal year will amount to more than $209,000,000.

"These appropriations were made on the recommendation of the President, who, of course, was guided by what he thought would be necessary to meet the requirements of the current fiscal year, and I submit that they are much more reliable than the figures he now employs, which are purely estimates and evidently revised in an attempt to relieve the administration of criticism growing out of the public knowledge that the present Congress has for the first time in the history of the country, except in time of war, appropriated more than $5,000,000,000 to carry on the government for a single year.

"It seems rather late for the President to hold a conference with his Cabinet to discuss a possible reduction of expenditures after the appropriations have already been made. The President and the director of the budget knew appproximately what the appropriations would be when the President submitted his estimates and made his recommendations. If a reduction of expenditures is really to be made, why was this conference not held before these estimates were submitted?

"In his effort to explain this enormous increase in the cost of government, the spokesman for the administration has, unintentially of course, misled the public by saying that some of these appropriations will extend over a period of years. That is no more true with reference to the present year than of the last or any other prior year.

"Neither is it true that these appropriations can be attributed, as claimed, to increased activity to public works and in aid of unemployment. As a matter of fact, the appropriations for the last fiscal year for good roads, military construction work, public buildings, river and harbor work, veterans hospital and other public works exceeded those made for the present fiscal year by several million dollars."

DURATION FLIERS WIN IN FIGHT WITH STORM

Heavy Clouds Force Them Within 100 Feet of Ground—Enter Second 100 Hours' Grind.

A violent electric storm, high winds, rain and fog combined yesterday to make the task of duration fliers an unhappy one, yet Robert Black and Louis Reichers in their red Lycoming-Stinson droned on through the day and into the night over Roosevelt Field.

Shortly after midnight they started their second 100 hours and still have more than 300 hours to go before they can approach the record set by the Hunter Brothers in Chicago.

During the storm observers believed that the fliers would be forced to land. The low black clouds drove them to within 100 feet of the ground and here they soared in great circles until the clouds started to lift and the worst of the storm had passed.

They took on fuel, oil and food four times yesterday. Shortly after 4 A. M., although hampered by darkness and fog, the refueling plane gave them fifty gallons of gasoline and five of oil in addition to breakfast. At noon they took on seventy gallons of fuel, five more of oil and some drinking water. At 5 o'clock, just before the storm, and again at 8 o'clock they received seventy gallons of gasoline and five of oil.

CALLS AGRARIAN MOVE IN MEXICO FAILURE

Carleton Beals Says 7,000,000 Peasants Lack Proper Means of Earning Livelihood.

MEXICO CITY, July 22 (AP).—Carleton Beals, American writer on Latin-American political and economic questions, today pronounced the Mexican agrarian revolution "a colossal failure."

This assertion was made in an address before the fifth annual session of the seminar in Mexico, held by the Committee on Cultural Relations with Latin America.

Mr. Beals, who spoke on "The Balance Sheet of the Mexican Revolution," said 7,000,000 peasants in Mexico had been thrust off the haciendas without having been provided the proper means of earning a decent livelihood.

"The communal system of landholding which has been resuscitated in Mexico is a failure," Mr. Beals said, "first, because the peasants have never received sufficient or proper lands; second, because they lack the means, equipment and knowledge to cultivate even what they have properly; and finally, because it represents a primitive village system based upon the production of maize and beans for local self-support and therefore runs counter to the national needs and to modern industrial tendencies.

"Even ex-President Calles, once champion of the agrarian movement, has admitted that the system has been a failure. If it is a failure, then 7,000,000 people have been thrust into a more precarious economic situation than before the revolution. If the leader of the revolution who did more than any one else to put into operation the communal land system now admits that his efforts have failed, those who have suffered are entitled to know why.

"The true agricultural wealth of Mexico resides in tropical products, such as sugar cane, tobacco, coffee, banana, rubber, henequen and hardwoods. But these can be produced efficiently only on large plantations with capital and technical equipment and knowledge. The henequen industry is in ruins. The peasants are burning off vast areas of precious hardwoods to plant maize and beans. The Mexican revolution has never frankly faced those problems."

SAY RED DOCUMENTS WERE FORGED HERE

ity in the United States, Mexico, Central America and South American countries.

"Two other men were delegated to the United States to act as communication agents between the Amtorg and Moscow," Mr. Handler said.

Mr. Handler said he had been smuggled into the United States from Cuba in 1926. He said he had fled from Soviet Russia and he appeared so frightened that Mr. Fish had to reassure him before he could proceed with his testimony. He trembled as he took the oath.

"You're in America now," Mr. Fish told him. "You're not in Russia any longer. You need not be afraid to testify."

Before going on the witness stand, it was learned, Mr. Handler had pleaded with Mr. Fish to be excused from testifying, fearing that his evidence might cost him his life. Only after Mr. Fish had reassured him that any "accident" that might befall him would be traced by the government to its proper source did Mr. Handler consent to respond to the committee's subpoena.

Three Attack Documents.

The concentration of fire upon the Whalen documents was massed by three witnesses, John Spivak, a former correspondent in Russia and now a reporter for The New York Evening Graphic and a writer for other Macfadden publications; Max Wagner, a printer, of 204 East Tenth Street, and Mr. Michael.

Mr. Spivak, who had been attacked before the committee by Mr. Whalen as one of two newspaper men who tried to bribe Djamgarov to say that he was the author of the Whalen documents, told the committee of his investigation, which had led him to the belief that the documents were forgeries. He testified he had discovered that the letterheads upon which the documents were typed had been printed by Mr. Wagner and that six weeks before their publication they had been offered for sale in Washington to a news agency.

Mr. Spivak was followed on the stand by Wagner, who corroborated the testimony that he had printed the letterheads. Then followed Mr. Michael's exhaustive analysis, the main point of which was that G. B. Grafpen, an official of the Amtorg, who was supposed to have received the "mandate" from the Communist International, one of the Whalen papers, addressed to him in Moscow on Jan. 3, 1930, while he was on a visit to the Soviet capital, had actually left Moscow two days before. Mr. Michael proved this by producing Mr. Grafpen's passport, the frontier stamps of which showed that on Jan. 3 he had already crossed the German border. Mr. Michael showed also that Grafpen's initials on the "mandate" were false, being given as "T. G." Grafpen himself was one of yesterday's witnesses, but was not asked about the "mandate." Mr. Michael enumerated twenty-three alleged flaws in the documents showing, he said, that the papers had been fabricated.

Among the alleged errors were improper forms of address, non-existent institutions mentioned in the documents, mispelled and mutilated names, inconsistencies in authorities mentioned; faulty spelling running through all the documents, the words being misspelled in exactly the same manner in each of the documents; the incorporation of an alleged secret code in one letter the indication of which in correspondence would be extremely unlikely, the use of the English "North" and "South" for the Carolinas instead of their Russian equivalents, the employment of names unknown to the Amtorg, and improbable cable addresses.

The analysis presented by Mr. Michael covered eleven typewritten pages. He laid it before the committee, but was not permitted by Mr. Fish to give it to the press pending its admittance into the records. Unable to learn whether or not his memorandum would be admitted into the record or would merely be received by the committee for its information, Mr. Michael, after consultation with other Amtorg attorneys, released it for publication.

Spivak Statement Refused.

Mr. Spivak at the outset asked permission to read a voluminous prepared statement. This was refused.

"Tell us the story as you know it," said Mr. Nelson, "and never mind the written statement."

A spirit of marked hostility by the committee to Mr. Spivak became apparent when he admitted that a statement in one of his stories from Washington quoting Secretary of State Stimson directly as saying that the documents were forgeries was erroneous and that Mr. Stimson had never made that statement to him. This was confirmed in a telegram produced by Mr. Fish in which Secretary Stimson denied making this statement.

Mr. Spivak pleaded that he had given the story to his office by telephone and that it had been garbled in transmission so far as the use of the direct quotations were concerned. He insisted, however, that Mr. Stimson had made to other persons in Washington the statement attributed to him. For a moment it seemed as if the committee would refuse to hear Mr. Spivak altogether. He was permitted to go on, however, after Representative Carl G. Bachman and Mr. Nelson had suggested that he had better continue lest the impression arise that he had been unjustly prevented from telling his story and clearing himself of the charges raised against him by Mr. Whalen.

After denying emphatically Mr. Whalen's accusation that he had tried to bribe Djamgarov to declare publicly that he (Djamgarow) was the author of the Whalen documents, Mr. Spivak declared that his investigation had revealed that the Whalen papers were written on an Underwood typewriter No. 9, that he had visited several type foundries in this city and that at one of them, the Hoffman foundry, he had been told that considerable of the type in which the documents were written was in use in this city. The implication was that such a machine is not in general use in Russia. The witness said also that Wagner admitted to him that he had printed the letterheads and made an affidavit to this effect.

Got Proofs of Letterheads.

Mr. Spivak said he had called on Wagner after publication of the documents and obtained from him proofs of the letterheads tallying exactly with those of the Whalen papers. The witness declared he had given these letterheads to Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, who, he said, turned them over to the Rules Committee of the House, in whose custody they now are. The committee was surprised to learn that the Rules Committee had the letterheads, Mr. Fish admitting he did not know of this.

One letterhead given by him to Mr. Whalen, Mr. Spivak said, was never returned. It developed that it was this letterhead which led to a visit by the police to Wagner's print shop in an effort to find the man who had ordered the letterheads. That man, Wagner later told the committee, is now in Europe. At least, so the police told him, he said. As one of the two "men from headquarters" who, Wagner said, visited him in his shop, he identified Gregory Bernadtsky, a Russian monarchist, who throughout the hearings had been sitting behind Representative Bachman and acting as the latter's interpreter. He did no interpreting, but followed the translations of Amtorg witnesses' testimony as given by John Ohsol, vice present of the Amtorg.

"It's a lie," shouted Barnadtsky as Wagner identified him as one of the men who had visited his shop.

The man to whom he had learned the Whalen documents were offered for sale six weeks before their publication, Mr. Spivak said, was Harold Horan, Universal Service correspondent in Washington. Mr. Spivak said Mr. Horan had told him he refused to buy them, but did not reveal the name of the would-be seller.

The committee thereupon decided to subpoena Mr. Horan when it returns to Washington.

Says He Questioned Easley.

"Djamgarov stated to me personally he knew about the documents at about the same time," Mr. Spivak told the committee. Mr. Spivak added that at the same time he had asked Ralph M. Easley, executive director of the National Civic Federation, whether he knew of the existence of the documents and that "Mr. Easley would neither confirm nor deny any knowledge of them."

At this point members of the committee, particularly Mr. Fish and Mr. Nelson, showed indications that they did not care to hear from Spivak any more. There was a quiet argument between Mr. Fish and Mr. Nelson and then Mr. Fish permitted Mr. Spivak to go on.

"Did Djamgarov tell you he knew Mr. Whalen?" asked Mr. Fish.

"He certainly did," replied the witness. "He said he and Mr. Whalen were very thick, indeed. He showed me also a reporter's card he had from the Police Department." Djamgarov, upon taking the stand denied he ever "had the pleasure" of knowing Mr. Whalen. As for the police card, Djamgarov explained he was the director of the A. B. C. News Service and was entitled to a press card. He told the committee that he maintained correspondents abroad and admitted he was engaged in anti-Soviet propaganda.

Shortly before Mr. Spivak left the stand he placed in the record, with Mr. Fish's permission, the prepared statement he had brought with him, a statement largely polemical. This appeared so to have irritated Mr. Nelson that he rose from his chair, walked rapidly out of the room and slammed the door behind him.

Printer Gives Testimony.

Immediately before adjournment for the luncheon recess Mr. Fish wrote out a subpoena for Wagner, who was the first witness of the afternoon session. Told in broken English Wagner's story in substance was that about four months before the publication of the Whalen documents, a man whom he later identified as Yasov, had come to his office and asked him to set up letterheads from a written form supplied by the visitor. He did not specify what type to use, Wagner said, but did tell him the style in which the letterheads were to be set up. The man returned the next day, Wagner said, and obtained two proofs for each of three letterheads. Each of the letterheads was different, Wagner himself retaining one proof of each of the letterheads.

"I never saw the man again," Wagner said. "Four months later I saw the documents in a newspaper." He said he rushed to the Amtorg office, with whom he did business in the purchase of books and toys, and made inquiry, but could obtain no information about the documents except that the Amtorg had had nothing to do with them.

A few days later he was visited by Mr. Spivak, to whom he told the story of the circumstances under which he had printed the letterheads. Spivak took proofs of two of the three letterheads, the proof of the third one having been mislaid. He also took an affidavit affirming that Wagner had printed the letterheads.

When photostats of the Whalen documents were shown to him by Mr. Nelson yesterday and he was asked how he had recognized the letterheads as his, Wagner insisted that he knew his work and how to recognize it. He insisted the type was his and that it was the same Russian type he had ordered and received from Germany.

He offered to produce the bill for the type, and when sent home to bring the bill returned with it an hour later, covering some of the type. He also brought with him a booklet of type samples from the German firm from which he said he purchased the type. The booklet contained samples of the letterheads type. He insisted also that he still had casings of one of the letterheads and could prove that it had been employed in the printing of the letterheads used in the Whalen documents.

With much difficulty, because of the witness's poor command of English, the committee elicited from Wagner the information that after the publication of Mr. Spivak's article denouncing the documents as forgeries he was visited by two men who said they were from Police Headquarters and who demanded that he reveal the name and address of the man who had ordered the letterheads printed. He thereupon inquired from a Russian newspaper for whom he knew the customer had done some work and by describing his appearance obtained his name and address. These he gave to the men who revealed themselves to him as members of the police force.

"They came back and told me he went to Europe," Wagner said. "And I think one of them was that man there," he added, pointing to Bernadtsky.

Bernadtsky then made his protest, but was ordered to sit down.

"There are some people who know him very well, right in this room right now," Wagner added. "There are in this room now people who know him."

Wagner admitted to the committee that he had a criminal record, having served thirty days for possession of obscene postcards.

Other witnesses yesterday were officials of the Amtorg, whose testimony dealt mainly with the circumstances under which they had obtained their visas to come to the United States. Some declared that they had severed their relations with the Russian Communist party before coming here, while others said they never had been members of the Communist party.

JUVENILE REDS IN MEETING.

BERLIN, July 24 (AP).—The international gathering of juvenile Communists today assembled in Friedrichshain Hall in East Berlin to listen to an address by a Communist member of the Reichstag, Wilhelm Pieck.

A heavy downpour of rain delayed the proceedings somewhat, but finally about 1,000 children thronged the hall. Chinese children in national costume attracted the most attention. A strong police force was present but did not interfere.

DOCTORS SCRUTINIZE PUZZLING MICROBES

EXPERIMENTS DESCRIBED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 24.—Influenza and psittacosis microbes, the most virulent and swiftly traveling germs now known, were brought under scrutiny at the First International Microbiology Congress today. The bacilli of both of these diseases have baffled scientists, and their identity and mode of transmission still are matters of controversy.

It was therefore with great interest that the delegates heard Dr. Thomas M. Rivers of the Rockefeller Foundation describe with the aid of stereoptician slides experiments in inoculation with the psittacosis virus and the German scientist, Dr. Levinthal, who presented moving pictures tracing the origins of the so-called parrot disease.

Another German scientist, Dr. R. Pfeiffer, who in 1892 discovered a bacillus which he believed responsible for a world epidemic of grip at that time, discussed that bacillus.

"Microbiologists at present," Dr. Pfeiffer said, "are not yet agreed regarding the agent of this malady. Some accept the Pfeiffer bacillus as the sole cause, while others believe there is another smaller bacillus whose exact nature is not yet known. One curious fact is that during the epidemic which went around the world in 1918, beginning in army camps, very few Pfeiffer bacilli were found. The reason for this may be the Pfeiffer bacillus is so small it is very difficult to locate.

"If the bacillus I discovered really is the agent of grip, there is still an extremely important problem to be solved in determining how this bacillus, relatively harmless except in time of epidemics, without warning suddenly becomes deadly in its virulence and spreads over the whole world."

Tomorrow, the final day of the congress, will be devoted chiefly to the fight against diphtheria.

COSTE PUTS PLANE BACK IN THE HANGAR

Uses Sports to Keep Himself Fit as Bad Weather Continues Over Atlantic and in France.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 24.—Although slight improvement is expected in the weather tomorrow, there is still no sign that the rain and storms which have characterized the whole of this month are definitely at an end.

The French Meteorological Service states that the bad weather is continuing over the Atlantic and that the heavy clouds and rain with westerly winds are likely to continue for some time.

Faced with this prospect, Captain Dieudonné Coste has put his plane in the hangar at Villacoublay. He is ready to start his Atlantic flight at the first possible moment and is devoting his time waiting to getting physically fit for the long hop. He has planned a varied program of tennis, golf and fishing.

During the first twenty-four days of this month 3.7036 inches of rain have fallen in Paris, while the normal rainfall for the whole month is 2.0291 inches. At Biarritz the rainfall has measured 4.728 inches and at Lyons 6.0124 inches.

PARIS, July 24 (AP).—If Captain Dieudonné Coste fails in his forthcoming attempt to fly from Le Bourget to New York it will not be for lack of preparation. He has spent seventy-two hours aloft testing the Question Mark with its provisional motor, and seventeen hours testing the new engine recently installed.

M. Coste's mechanics labored fifteen hours daily putting the new motor in running condition and pronounced it perfect before he took the plane aloft.

The flier opened a press bureau here today to answer the hundreds of questions being asked daily about his plans.

Physicians at Templehof Hospital said there was no cause for apprehension, although the patient suffered a severe wound on the head, but without fracturing the skull, and apparently broke several ribs.

BERLIN, July 24 (AP).—Philip Heineken, president of the North German Lloyd, was seriously injured today in an automobile collision near Berlin.

Mr. Heineken had started from Dresden for Berlin and had reached the Berlin suburb of Lichtenrade when his car collided with a motor truck. He was thrown through the windshield.

The chauffeur and a friend who accompanied Mr. Heineken were also injured.

Brazil Remits $3,000,000 Fine to Bank Here; Official Says Law Was Repealed 7 Years Ago

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, July 24.—President Washington Luis, acting upon a recommendation of the Minister of Finance, today remitted the $3,000,000 fine imposed upon the National City Bank of New York last March by the Federal Chief Bank Inspector for alleged illegal transactions in Brazilian exchange.

The review of the Minister of Finance was a sweeping reversal of that of the bank inspector who improposed the fine, the largest in Brazilian history. The inspector had charged the bank with carrying on speculations which were illegal and detrimental to Brazil's financial structure.

As a result of the inspector's decision the bank was obliged to deposit $3,000,000 with the Federal-controlled Banco do Brasil on March 14. The return of the fine marks the end of a long legal proceeding which necessitated the presence of Vice President Boies Hart in Rio de Janeiro.

Law Had Been Repealed.

Officials of the National City Bank received yesterday with satisfaction cabled advices from their Sao Paulo branch announcing that the $3,000,000 fine imposed by the Director General of Banks had been remitted. When the process was initiated last February they expressed confidence that full justice would be done when the matter came before the proper authorities for review.

The decision of the Minister of Finance stated that the subject had been submitted to the consideration of banking officials and executives of well-known technical competency, and that therefore, as regards the proceedings, it was considered that the documents seized and the evidence offered by the inspector's office were not sufficient to establish the nature of the operations mentioned, and that in any event the law which it was charged the bank violated had been repealed seven years ago. The Minister adjudged as unfounded the writ of infringement and the penalty established was declared ineffective.

INDIAN ENVOYS BEAR NOTE FROM GANDHI

PIECE GOODS STRIKE VOTED

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, July 24.—Another four-hour interview took place at Yerovda in Poona jail today between Mahatma Gandhi and the two Moderate leaders, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar. The peace emissaries issued a statement at the close of their visit saying they had placed all the facts in their possession before Mr. Gandhi. They took away with them a message Mr. Gandhi had given in writing for the imprisoned Nationalists, Pandit Motilal Nehru and his son, Pandit Jawaharal Nehru, whose contents they declined to reveal.

Meanwhile the Nationalists in Bombay were busy following Vallabhai Patel's advice to "carry on the fight." The Bombay Native Piece Goods Merchants' Association today decided to declare hartal [protest strike] to begin Saturday and to continue for an indefinite period as a protest against the government's "repressive" policy. The hartal is to be called off only when the government has promised "to protect the sanctity of civic rights and private property." The merchants' decision affects 440 foreign cloth dealers in Bombay city.

The boycott campaign continues and all Bombay mills now have been classified according to their production of all Indian cloth.

Speaking at Surat yesterday Villabhias Patel said no one in Mr. Gandhi's Gujarat district talked of compromise.

"The government," he said, "must be convinced there can be no peace until the authority has been transferred to the people. The movement has almost arrived at the stage when there can be no time for the farmers to farm, for the traders to trade or for the students to study. When so many of our comrades are imprisoned there can be no other work than that of trying to get them out, and that can be accomplished only by sending still more to jail."

Compromise by Gandhi Hinted.

LONDON, Friday, July 25 (AP).—Bombay dispatches to The Daily Mail say that suspension on certain conditions of the Indian civil disobedience campaign is believed to have been suggested by Mahatma Gandhi in a letter confided to Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. Jayakar, Liberal leaders who visited him in Yeroda prison.

The dispatches do not state the source of the relief. The two intermediaries maintained great secrecy today and yesterday. The note given them by Mr. Gandhi is addressed to Pandit Motilal Nehru and Pandit Jawarhalal Nehru, former field leaders of the civil disobedience campaign, who are imprisoned at Allahabad.

Piece Goods Imports Drop.

LONDON, July 24 (AP).—A large drop in the importation of British cotton piece goods in Bombay is shown in figures of that port for April, May and June.

In April, 12,220 packages were imported, while in June there were only 5,753. The total for the three months was 27,000 as compared to 43,000 for last year

PROTESTS TO COLOMBIA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES

GUAYAQUIL, July 24.—A rift in the increasingly cordial relations promised with the resumption of diplomatic relations between Ecuador and Colombia has resulted from protests of Ecuadorian merchants against the action of Colombian customs officials at the border in collecting duty on candles, stockings and shoes made in Ecuador.

The merchants say this violates the treaty of 1905 and Foreign Minister Zaldumbide has protested to the Government of Colombia through the Argentine Minister, Señor Barilari, in charge of Colombian affairs at Quito.

Indus Valley Refugees Crowd Karachi Relief Trains—City's Streets Are Impassable.

TWO TOWNS EVACUATED

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KARACHI, India, July 24.—Three relief trains packed with refugees arrived at Karachi this morning from the flooded districts in the Indus valley and more followed in the afternoon.

The towns of Shikarpur and Larkharna have been evacuated owing to breaches in the embankments of the Indus and the canals.

Karachi itself is a city of impassable streets and derelict automobiles owing to the six-inch fall of rain which has poured down in the last twenty-four hours.

Since early morning all telegraphic communication has been cut.

Damage to the extent of $1,875,000 has been done to sugar, cotton and grain stocks here from the continuous floods.

British Valley Flooded.

WHITBY, England, July 24 (AP).—Four days of incessant rain left this seaside town, the seat of important jet ornament works and fishing products, in the grip of a flood tonight, paralyzing the services. Hundreds were homeless and destitute throughout the valley of the River Esk.

Today's downpour furnished a climax to the storm and temporarily put an end to relief work. The Esk, at whose mouth Whitby is situated, flowed down in a raging torrent. Small dwellings, scores of skiffs and a vast amount of débris were piled high in the streets.

The hamlet of Sleights, isolated when its bridges were washed out, had no relief because rescuers were unable to improvise a span across the river. Attempts were being made tonight to build some sort of pontoon bridge.

Similar conditions prevailed in a lesser degree at Stokesley, where rain fell heavily, producing conditions worse than any in the last fifty years.

Villages and homesteads were completely cut off from communication, country roads being deep under water or blocked by landslides.

Coast Guard Saves Family.

When a Coast Guard reached the Rodwells' house it was deep in water, and he could get no answer to his calls. He eventually discovered the family had taken refuge for the night in the bedrooms, but the water soon invaded these. Rodwell clambered through a small aperture into a false roof above the ceiling and succeeded in dragging the whole family after him.

There they remained in total darkness throughout the night, listening to their furniture colliding in the swirling flood below. At dawn they were taken off in a boat.

Rodwell conducted a tea garden, most of which was washed away by the floods.

CHACO INCIDENT CLOSED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LA PAZ, July 24.—The Bolivian Ministry of Foreign Affairs has been officially informed of the exchange of Forts Boqueron and Vanguardia at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the presence of two Uruguayan military officers as provided in the Washington protocol. This formality is the last act in the reconciliation of Bolivia and Paraguay, agreed upon at a conference of neutrals in Washington following border skirmishes in Chaco in December, 1928, which resulted in a severance of diplomatic relations and a serious threat of a South American war.

After Bolivia and Paraguay apparently had agreed to accept the suggestions of the conference of neutrals for the exchange of the forts and the renewal of diplomatic relations, there arose serious differences of opinion over the details, which for several months threatened to undo the work of the conference in Washington.

The conference of neutrals had requested Uruguay to lend its good offices to supervise the final details and to send Uruguayan army officers to the forts to superintend the actual exchange. It was only as a result of intense efforts by the Uruguayan Foreign Minister, Rufino T. Dominiguez, that the Bolivian and Paraguayan Ministers at Montevideo eventually signed a modus operandi pact.

Uruguay's prestige in South America has been greatly enhanced as a result of Señor Dominguez's success in settling the Chaco dispute. Both Bolivia and Paraguay are enthusiastically supporting Uruguay's candidacy for a seat in the Council of the League of Nations' next assembly.

RUSSIAN REDS SPEED PARTY'S PROGRAM

FINE CROPS ARE REPORTED

Peasants in South Rush to Join the Collectives—$500,000 Credit for Year in New York Announced.

By WALTER DURANTY.
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, July 24.—The Russian Communist party has not been slow to follow up the new unity and enthusiasm engendered by the recent all-Union convention. The Moscow oblast's committee of the party, which represents more than 250,000 Communists under the leadership of its secretary, M. Kaganovitch, and the Leningrad oblast's "party of active workers," representing 175,000 Communists led by M. Kirof—both men are new nominees to be members of the all-Russian party Politburo—have just held meetings to prepare an energetic campaign for carrying out the directions voted by the convention.

Pravda announces today that the Moscow meeting adopted the following list of "basic questions" upon which all party activities must be concentrated: First, the harvest and the Autumn sowing campaign; second, the collective farm movement and crop distribution; third, grain and vegetable supply; fourth, rural taxation, and, fifth, livestock production.

There is a similar list of industrial questions chiefly concerned with the reduction of primary costs, the improvement of quality and the construction of new factories.

Meanwhile reports from the south, where the harvest is in full swing, are most encouraging. The collective farms show a yield to the acre from 40 to 60 per cent higher than nearby individual holdings, and consequently are being flooded with membership applications from peasants who refused to join or who withdrew last Spring.

The North Caucasus, the Volga region and the Ukraine report excellent crops, and the Siberian capital of Novosibirsk telegraphs that "the wheat is more than a meter and a half high [more than five feet], conditions are splendid, and some regions expect a harvest double that of last year's," although conditions in Eastern Siberia are less satisfactory.

There is also good news from another quarter. The vice president of Amtorg, M. Zuckermann, who is now in Moscow, today informed your correspondent he had received a cable from New York that the Remington Rand Corporation would offer the Soviet full twelve months' credit for goods up to $500,000 ordered within three months. If less favorable than the terms obtained by the Soviet in Germany and England, this is nevertheless regarded here as a notable breach in the so-called credit barrier which has hitherto hampered Russo-American business.

B. L. Winchell, chairman of the executive committee of Remington, Rand, Inc., when asked last night as to the correctness of the report that his company had extended a credit of $500,000 to Soviet Russia to purchase the company's products, said that it was probably true, although he did not definitely know. He explained that the matter was being handled by William F. Merrill, president, who is now in Buffalo.

DAVIDSON ESTATE $174,730.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—Lord Davidson of Lambeth, the former Archbishop of Canterbury, left an estate valued at $174,730. The bulk of the estate goes to his widow to form a trust fund, and after her death Miss Mary Catherine Mills, who was his secretary, will become the ultimate legatee.

An interesting point in the will, which was published today, is the legacy of $50,000, to take effect on the death of Lady Davidson, to be at the sole disposal of the Archbishop of Canterbury and of which he will not be required to give an account.

Customary Formality Precedes New Session of Congress.

LIMA, July 24 (AP).—The Peruvian Cabinet resigned last night, as is customary here when a new legislative session approaches, in order that the President may be free to select new Ministers.

The former head of the Cabinet was Benjamin Huaman de Los Heros. No official indication as to the future Premier has been given.

Often the Ministries are reappointed after the traditional resignation, but reports are current in some quarters that no members of the latest Cabinet will receive portfolios again.

"No use coming here, commissioner," a photographer volunteered. "Bamberger bundled his wife and two kids into the family automobile twenty minutes ago and left. Mrs. Bamberger had the baby in her arms."

"I can't go after him because I haven't the authority," Dr. Kegel then announced. "As a matter of fact, I have been informed that Mr. Bamberger's lawyer told him to shoot me as a trespasser if I crossed his doorstep."

When the reporters rang the Bamberger bell they were greeted by a distraught man in shirt sleeves, who said he was upset and his wife was hysterical.

"The whole business is a political stunt," Mr. Bamberger declared. "I know my own baby and nobody is going to take him away from me. My wife is convinced the baby is ours. I guess a mother's instinct is as good as the opinions of a lot of medical experts, bah!" Mr. Bamberger then slamped the door and a few minutes later the group saw the Bambergers depart.

Mr. Kegel broke the news to Mr. Watkins, who said he would see his lawyer in the morning about a "kidnapping warrant."

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court sat at the inquiry today. The experts gave most credence to the blood tests conducted by Dr. Hamilton R. Fishback, who reported that these showed conclusively that the blood of the baby in the Bamberger home was identical with that of Mr. and Mrs. Watkins.

Concerning the birthmarks upon the Bamberger baby and Mr. Bamberger, Dr. Cleveland White, associate in dermatology at Northwestern University, said they were only incidental and not even the same type, which left them without scientific value.

Dr. Gerhardt von Bonin, an anatomist and anthropologist of the University of Illinois, said the head measurements convinced him the babies were in the wrong homes.

Sitting en banc with Dr. Kegel as advisory judges were two officials of the International Society of Medical Officers, Dr. Francis E. Harrington of Minnesota and Dr. C. C. Slemmons of Michigan.

The trouble over the identity of the babies arose nine days after their birth when Mrs. Watkins and Mrs. Bamberger took their supposed offspring to their homes and the parents discovered that identification labels of adhesive tape, taken from the bodies of the infants, each bore the name of the other family.

NICARAGUANS SEEK LOAN OF $5,000,000

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 24.—Conditions generally in Nicaragua are better than they have been in many years in the view of Matthew E. Hanna, the United States Minister here.

"Nicaragua is facing an economic crisis, as are many other countries," said Mr. Hanna today, "but financially the country is sound, having only a small external debt of less than $4,000,000. The budget of expenditure for the year 1930 as passed by the Nicaraguan Congress exceeds income, which was reduced beyond all expectations because of the economic crisis and the corresponding falling off of customs revenue. This deficit was promptly and effectively met by President Moncada's action in cutting the salaries of all government employes 30 per cent, thus enabling the government's constructive program to continue.

"The Claims Commission, under John S. Stanley, is working hard at settling the internal war claims, and now is paying all claims under $1,000, thus placing funds in the hands of the most needy, many of whom will immediately place the funds in circulation.

"The bandit situation in the Northern provinces is well under control of the National Guard and Marine forces, conditions being more peaceful than at any time since Sandino first began his banditry.

"The general political feeling seems to be less intense, and all political parties echo a desire for American supervision, not only in the coming Congressional elections, but also in all future elections until such time as the country can conduct free and fair elections of its own. All arrangements for the Congressional elections are proceeding satisfactorily."

Considerable agitation seems to exist among Nicaraguans for a loan of about $5,000,000 to be expended in public improvements for increasing the productivity of the country, the expenditures to be supervised partly or wholly by the persons making the loan.

KING CAROL THREATENS TO ORDER MARTIAL LAW

BUCHAREST, July 24 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—A royal decree invoking martial law in the districts affected by the anti-Semitic disturbances will be issued if the present laws are insufficient to maintain peace and order, it was decided today at a meeting of the Rumanian Ministerial Council, with King Carol presiding.

While King Carol has confirmed the arrests of Orthodox Priests Fathers Berinde and Dumitrescu and their wives in connection with the anti-Semitic troubles at Borscha, he has decided to release the twenty-six peasants who were arrested with them. Speaking at the Ministerial Council's session, he expressed his regret for the weak attitude of the authorities when the disturbances first began.

The Minister of Justice, Gregory Junian, has telegraphed to all the district attorneys to take the most energetic measures against all anti-Semitic agitators.

The distribution of anti-Semitic manifestoes in the streets of Bucharest continued today. They were also handed out surreptitiously on the railways. New posters appeared today on building walls announcing the support of the anti-Semitic youth organization, the Iron Guard, for Georg Beza, the student who shot Dr. Constantin Angelescu, acting Minister of the Interior, and expressing sympathy for Beza's terroristic act and threatening with death the editors of three Bucharest papers, Adevarul, Dimineatza and Lupta.

LABORITE BOOED ON RETURN

Beckett, Who Removed Mace, Has Hard Time Putting Question.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—John Beckett, the Laborite member of Parliament suspended a week ago for removing the Speaker's mace, was greeted with loud cries of "Sit down!" when he rose to put a question to the Home Secretary, J. R. Clynes, in the House this afternoon.

His suspension period up, Mr. Beckett took his usual seat on the back bench and a few minutes later tried to put a supplementry question. He was only able to utter the words "Arising from that reply" when he was drowned out by Opposition cries of "Sit down!" and "Order, order!" When the disturbance had somewhat subsided he was able to put his question.

GERMAN FLIERS OFF TO CROSS ATLANTIC

WILL FOLLOW ARCTIC ROUTE

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 24.—In a cold, drizzling rain, two daring aviators took off this morning from Tempelhof Field in a baby plane on a transatlantic flight, with Chicago as the ultimate goal. They are Wolf Hirth, well-known constructor, glider and baby plane pilot from Stuttgart, and Oscar Weller, Berlin sportsman.

After a hasty breakfast the two climbed into their Klemm-Daimler machine, fitted with one motor of forty horsepower, and a few minutes after 7 o'clock they disappeared in the rain on the first leg of the flight to Cologne.

Flight to Be in Easy Stages.

BERLIN, July 24.—Wolf Hirth, premier gliding expert of Germany, and his companion, Oscar Weller, flew for Paris this morning in their small Klemm-Daimler sport plane for a flight from Berlin to Chicago by easy stages, halting at London, Edinburgh, Kirkwall, Orkney Islands; Greenland and Labrador.

In London they will pick up maps and the latest weather charts which are being prepared for them by the National Flying Service. If the weather is perfect all along the route, they plan to make the flight in three and a half days.

Herr Hirth, a member of a hard-working German family, was born in Stuttgart on Feb. 28, 1900. His elder brother, Hellmuth Hirth, was one of Germany's most successful pre-war fliers. Wolf Hirth went in for motorless gliding in 1920 and participated in important glider meets until 1929. In 1929 he won the Hindenburg Prize for gliding. Before this he was a champion motorcyclist, participating in fifteen races and winning seven prizes, including first prize for Europe.

Herr Weller is from Munich and has been "on his own" since he was a small boy.

Their route is from Berlin to London, about 625 miles; to Kirkwall, Orkney Islands, 650 miles; to Reykjavik, Iceland, 755 miles, 594 of which will be over the ocean; to Julianhaab, Greenland, 906 miles, 781 over the ocean; to Hopedale, Labrador, and to St. Johns, Newfoundland, 1,000 miles of which 750 are over the ocean.

Fear Arctic Fogs.

The only stretch that worries them is between Reykjavik and Julianhaab because of their fear of suddenly forming fogs which might lead them astray. But as men who have specialized in motorless gliders they feel like "old sea birds who can smell clouds and storms ahead."

The plane weighs 770 pounds with a maximum carrying weight of 902 pounds. It will hold fuel for twenty-two hours for a stretch of 1,406 miles at eighty-one miles an hour cruising speed. It will carry no radio or anti-freezing device to protect against ice, its covering of cellon being deemed sufficiently ice-resisting.

COLOGNE, July 24 (AP).—After an intermediate stop here Wolf Hirth and Oscar Weller took off for Paris this afternoon. They said they expected to spend some time in the French capital before proceeding to Croydon, England.

INDIANS HONOR CADETS FOR BOLIVIAN REVOLT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 24.—For the first time since the Spanish conquest the aboriginal Indian inhabitants are taking a spontaneous share in the country's civic life.

From the remotest sections of Bolivia caciques (heads of clans) are leading pilgrimages of their fellow-tribesmen to the capital to honor the cadets of the military academy, who became the nation's heroes because of their share in blocking the plan of former President Siles to establish a dictatorship.

Bearing gifts and garbed in their colorful native costumes, some fifteen caciques came to La Paz with their followers on one occasion and, in the presence of the members of the Junta, which has been governing the country since the revolution, delivered praise and presents to the student officers in a most impressive ceremony.

The cadets were lined up in the presence of the executives of the Junta and the oldest cacique, in his native tongue, made a speech to the cadets lauding them for their patriotism and recalling to them the ancient glories of the days of the Incas. Finally he placed on the new flag of the military college its new motto, which is "Defenders of the Constitution," and a wreath of cantuta flowers, like red bells, which grow in the bare highlands and from time immemorial have symbolized for the Aymara race the highest recognition of heroism.

Another spontaneous and picturesque demonstration for the cadets was carried out by Indian butchers, who brought along the streets well-fatted young bullocks, brightly adorned with ribbons and flowers, followed by brightly dressed dancing Indians covered with solid silver adornments. The bullocks also were an offering to restore the strength of the cadets.

Not only the Indians, but intellectual societies, working people in the cities and others, are striving to do honor to the youths who are credited with saving Bolivia from a dictatorship.

'Money Ruined My Romance,' Says Lady Owen, Relating How She Shot Paris Doctor's Wife

By The Associated Press.

VERSAILLES, France, July 24.—The failure of a telephone message today appeared as one of the causes of a drama of jealousy in which Lady Owen, French-born widow of Sir Theodore Charles Owen, yesterday shot the wife of Dr. Paul Gastaud, a French radiologist.

Lady Owen, who was questioned by Judge Latrille here today, wounded Mme. Leone Gastaud four times with a revolver. She shot her in the climax of a triangular drama. For a year she and Dr. Gastaud had had a romance.

While her ladyship was telling the magistrate that "the question of money ruined my romance," her maid recounted an unsuccessful attempt to avert any accident.

She said that when she learned her mistress was going to the doctor's home at Mareuil-Marly, near the suburb of St. Germain, she tried to warn the doctor by telephone. She failed, and Mme. Gastaud received the bullets apparently intended for the doctor.

The shooting capped the climax in a lengthy series of "passional crimes" that has kept the public of Paris and its environs more or less excited for months. On the same day a stenographer at the headquarters of the French Boy Scouts organization was brutally murdered by an unsuccessful suitor.

ROYAL GARDEN PARTY HAS DEMOCRATIC NOTE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—Nearly all the notables now in London were crowded this afternoon into the garden of Buckingham Palace, one-quarter of a square mile in area, where King George held his annual party.

Army and navy officers jostled judges, politicians chatted with actresses and bishops battled their way bravely to obtain refreshments for the weaker sex.

Prominent in the crowd were the prelates attending the Lambeth Conference, including twenty-three American bishops, and the American delegates to the Parliamentary and Poultry Congresses.

The King and the Queen walked separately among their guests and shook hands with at least one thousand. The guests also rubbed shoulders with the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester, Princess Mary and Prince George.

Among those attached to the royal party were Jack Hayes, member of Parliament, former police constable and now Vice Chamberlain of the royal household, and King Feisul of Iraq.

The Labor newspaper, The Daily Herald, observes the gathering had an infinitely more democratic air than had the royal enclosure at the Ascot races because "eminence alone had received invitations."

Once a light shower caused almost a stampede to the palace, but the King stood his ground and ignored it.

LONDON, July 24 (AP).—Rain coats and umbrellas interfered with the fashion display today at the royal garden party at Buckingham Palace. Instead of showing off the smartest Summer chiffons and organdies, both the King and the Queen and their guests, fortified with umbrellas, donned heavy coats over their light attire.

The garden party marks the official close of the London season. It is Britain's boast that the royal garden party has never been canceled because of rain.

PLANS TOURIST TRIP TO THE ANTARCTIC

LONDON, July 24.—Seekers after romantic holidays whose imagination has been fired by seeing Rear Admiral Byrd's latest film of the polar regions will soon be able to take a trip to Antarctica in the comfort of a palatial liner.

Lieut. Commander J. R. Stenhouse, who commanded Sir Ernest Shackleton's ship, the Aurora, and later the Royal Research ship Discovery, announced tonight that he was organizing a holiday tour of the Ross Sea in a 12,500-ton ship at a cost of about $2,500 a person. The trip will last about five months.

The start will be made at Southampton on Dec. 10, the outward route being New York, Havana, Panama, the Galapagos Islands, Tahiti, Auckland and thence to the Ross Sea, where a week will be spent cruising. The homeward route will be westward via Australia, Ceylon, the Suez Canal and Mediterranean ports.

January is the best month for visiting Antarctica, according to Lieut. Commander Stenhouse. The attractions of the Ross Sea are a pure germless atmosphere, wonderful visibility, twenty-four hours of sunshine, magnificent views of mountains and a cold, dry, invigorating climate with the temperature around 31 degrees Fahrenheit.

The holiday-makers will also pay a visit to Byrd's headquarters on the barrier to see Mount Erebus, the steaming volcano, and the great whaling fleets in action.

Lieut. Commander Stenhouse figures on carrying 200 passengers and the ship will be specially strengthened to resist ice pressure. No women have ever visited Antarctica and Lieut. Commander Stenhouse says he has found great enthusiasm among them at the prospect of visiting regions never yet touched by tourists.

NEOLITHIC DATA REVEALED.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, July 24.—The Vienna Academy of Sciences, which has been making excavations in the largest known neolithic site of the Nile delta, under the direction of Professor Herman Junkers, has published a communiqué on last season's work on the Merimba settlement dating 5,000 years before Christ.

In an area of 300,000 square meters the expedition found anthropological material giving an insight into the lives and habits of the people. They lived by husbandry and hunting, and ate pig and hippopotamus flesh. They wore little clothing compared to their neighbors in Upper Egypt, but palettes found show they had the habit of painting around their eyes. The few ornaments found include shell pendants and fragments of necklaces of wild boar bone.

The dead were buried near the homes of their living kindred, so they could eat with them. At burial corn was thrown on the bodies to appease their appetites.

RAINBOW VETERANS WELCOMED IN PARIS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 24.—Veterans of the famous American Rainbow Division received a warm welcome today when they landed at Cherbourg on the liner President Roosevelt, and came to Paris en route to revisit the sectors where they saw action in the World War. There were about fifty in the group accompanying Major Gen. M. A. Tinley of Iowa, the Rev. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the division, and Captain James Finn of the Sixty-ninth Regiment of New York.

General Gouraud greeted the Americans on their arrival at the Gare St. Lazare. The General, who as Military Governor of Paris attends almost daily receptions, was in excellent spirits and exhibited genuine enthusiasm at meeting his former comrades of this division with which he has maintained close relations since the war. He was personally acquainted with a number of men in the party, and his first words in greeting to them were, "Where's Jimmy Walker?" The General said he had the pleasantest memories of the New York Mayor's visit to France during the American Legion convention in 1927. He also recalled being a guest of the Rainbow Division at Baltimore last Fall and in 1923.

General Gouraud had the division under his command in the Champagne attack in July, 1918. He will accompany them in their visit to the battlefields. The veterans gave him three rousing cheers when they assembled on the station platform.

The veterans left Paris tonight for Chalons sur Marne, where General Gouraud will be their guest of honor at a banquet tomorrow night. Chalons was the "stepping off" place of the Rainbow Division.

The following day they will continue on to the American Cemetery at Thiaucourt, where many of their comrades of the division are buried. Saturday, Sunday and Monday they will visit the Saint Mihiel and Argonne sectors to view again the scenes of the most violent fighting in which the division participated.

SAILS WITHOUT GRAVE VISIT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 24.—Mrs. Edwin Lange of Oshkosh, Wis., who came to France with one of the Gold Star mother groups, sailed for New York today without having visited her son's grave.

Mrs. Lange in landing at Cherbourg fell on the steamer's deck and had to be taken to the American Hospital at Neuilly, where for more than two weeks she was near death. Three blood transfusions and operations, in one of which a young French soldier gave his blood, resulted in saving her life, and she was pronounced sufficiently well to make the return journey by Major George C. Beach, the army physician, who has been attending her.

Mrs. Lange was the last of eight hospitalized cases among the Gold Star mothers, and at the present time their headquarters here report none seriously ill.

Yale Debaters Leave Peru Today.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LIMA, Peru, July 24.—The Yale debating team will sail tomorrow on the Grace liner Santa Rita for Valparaiso.

SEVERAL OTHERS REMAIN

One Says Communists Are Killing, Robbing and Burning to Stamp Out Capitalism.

SHANGHAI, July 24 (AP).—Once again foreign missionaries are fleeing from interior China as a result of banditry and Communist outlawry.

Accompanied by American and British consular officials, forty-four missionaries long marooned in the upper Min River Valley, near Shaowu and Yenping, Fukien Province, were taken to safety last night at Foochow, capital and metropolis, near the coast.

Withdrawal of these workers virtually ended missionary activity in Northern Fukien Province. Reports from the interior said various missionary properties had been occupied by the native warring factions, making missionary work impossible.

Others were expected at Foochow soon, and some, notably Edwin Kellogg of Portland, Ore., had arrived at Shanghai. Whether four missionaries held at Pochow, Anhwei Province, were released when Nationalists recaptured that stronghold from Northern rebels had not been determined.

Of the forty-four taken to Foochow twenty-one were Americans and the remainder British. The Americans were mostly Methodists and Congregationalists. Among them were the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Bankhardt of Berea, Ohio; the Misses Mary Eide of Des Moines, Iowa, and Fern Sinkey of Centreberg, Ohio, and Mae Baucher, an American, home address unknown. All were stationed at Yenping.

From Kutien, fifty miles east of Yenping, were the Misses Eva Sprunger of Berne, Ind.; Myrtle Smith of Iron Mountain, Mich., and Martha Graf, a naturalized American from Switzerland. From Mintsing, forty miles west of Foochow, were the Misses Lydia Trimble of Sioux City, Iowa, and Florence Plumb of Cleveland, Ohio.

Several other Methodists and Congregationalists remained in the upper Min Valley. Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Skinner of Topeka, Kan., and Miss Mame Glassburner of Woodbine, Iowa, remained at Yenping where a Methodist mission hospital was filled with wounded soldiers.

Congregational missionaries evacuated were from Shaowu. Several others remained to be rescued. These include Miss E. J. Harrison and Miss Nettleton of England. They were captured by bandits near Chungchan.

The missionaries were taken to Foochow in a launch flying British and American flags. They were not molested in the trip down the Min.

Mr. Kellogg said roving bandits and Communists controlled Fukien and Kiangsi Provinces and were killing, robbing and burning ruthlessly. He said they were trying to destroy every evidence of "capitalism and foreign imperialism," and the government was powerless. Missionaries were unable to live there, he said, and worse conditions are expected.

In the Spring of 1927 there was a general exodus of missionaries from the interior due, they declared, to Communist and bandit outlawry. Later many returned.

Not Yet Reported at Headquarters.

BOSTON, July 24 (AP).—Officials at the headquarters here of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions said today that a group of their workers left the mission station at Shaowu, northwest of Yenping, for Foochow about June 7, when activities of Chinese warring factions made further missionary work impossible.

Whether any of the members of this party were in the group of British and American missionaries in the Min River valley was not known here. The arrival at Foochow of the party from Shaowu had not been reported to headquarters.

In the group were Mrs. George W. Shepard and four young children of St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. Edward L. Bliss of Newburyport, Mass.; the Rev. and Mrs. Charles R. Storrs and four children of Boston. The Rev. Edmund D. Kellogg of Cambridge was also thought to be a member of the party.

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

city, who resigned at the time of the American exclusion of Japanese immigrants; General Kawai and Viscount Ishiguro. The last two are former army men.

In addition to the consideration of the treaty itself, the Privy Council, which is the official interpreter of the Constitution, is expected to look into the constitutional controversy which arose over the question of the supreme command and the government's right to accept the treaty in face of the opposition of the Naval General Staff. It is also expected to take account of the verdict rendered by the senior naval officers who reported the treaty to be defective in regard to national defense.

Warm Discussion Likely.

Though the treaty is held to be certain of ratification, warm discussions are to be expected in the Privy Council. It is possible, however, that in approving the treaty the Privy Council may attach a rider censuring the government for not having given sufficient consideration to the naval staff. This would only affect the internal political situation and to an extent which would be determined by the wording of the rider. If it were couched in sufficiently strong language it might precipitate a Cabinet crisis. Indeed, it was a statement of this kind in the ratification of the Kellogg treaty which contributed to the subsequent downfall of the Tanaka Cabinet.

It is notable that the Privy Council has never refused to ratify any treaty submitted to it by the Emperor, but there have been times when the government has refrained from placing treaties before the council when it feared might be disapproved.

The vote of the Privy Council, while actually decided by a majority, is given an appearance of unanimity by the minor dissenting group being led to abandon its position.

There are twenty-six members of the Privy Council, besides the Imperial princes and Cabinet members who are entitled to vote. The princes have never availed themselves of this privilege, but the Cabinet generally does, giving the government ten votes.

General Nara, aide de camp to the Emperor, called upon Premier Hamaguchi last night and informed him of the decision of the Supreme Military Council that the treaty was defective. The Premier is preparing a report for the Emperor, giving his point of view, which is expected to set forth that, although the treaty does not provide sufficiently for national defense, the government intends to make up the deficit by naval expansion within the treaty limits.

The public views with general regret the part played in the discussion by Admiral Togo, venerated as the hero of the Russo-Japanese war. This view is reflected in an editorial in the Japan Times today which regrets his participation in the treaty controversy, saying "His position was almost defied. No god may tread the common path of man without a loss of his sanctity."

URGES AUSTRALIA TO ARM.

CANBERRA, July 24.—Australia's need for better defenses has been increased by the London naval arms conference in the opinion of General Sir Henry Chauvel, whose final report as Inspector General of Military Forces was issued today.

"All these disarmament agreements and gestures tend to reduce British sea power to below the minimum required for safeguarding imperial interests and thus diminish the security of isolated parts of the empire," he declared. "Australia is the most isolated and sparsely populated portion of the empire and therefore occupies the position of greatest danger. Her present armament is not consistent with this unenviable position."

Sir Henry urges the revision of the Australian defense policy as well as the imperial defense policy to which Australia voluntarily contributes.

LONDON, July 24.—It is well known that the Prince of Wales frequently takes control of his airplane when making air journeys accompanied by skilled air force pilots, but some surprise was caused by the announcement in a London paper that he recently made flights unaccompanied by a pilot or any other person.

The Prince's solo flights, according to The Daily Telegraph, have been made at the Northolt Airdrome in a Tomtit military training plane. He did not stray far from the landing field, but in a number of short flights demonstrated marked ability in taking off and landing.

WANG REACHES PEKING FOR POLITICAL PARLEY

"Wang Ching-wei, his wife, Chen Bi-chun, and Ku Meng-yu, members of the second central executive committee and supervisory committee of the Kuomintang, arrived at Peking this morning to participate in the plenary session of the executive committee. A huge crowd gathered at the station to welcome them, including 2,000 representatives of organizations.

"Plans for the establishment of the legal Nationalist Government in Peking are forming and Generals Yen Hsi-shan and Feng Yu-hsiang have urged Chang Hsueh-liang, Manchurian military leader, to adhere to the government.

"The military headquarters at Peking reports the recapture of Pochow (northwestern part of Anhwei) and has verified the occupying of Kwieteh by the Northerners."

The Kuo Min News Agency, 63 Park Row, announced that it had received the following dispatch yesterday from its Shanghai correspondent:

"A late dispatch from the battlefront states that despite the terrific heat of the past three days fierce fighting has been going on along the Lunghai Railway, where more than 5,000 rebels were killed or wounded as the sixth route army repulsed an attack made by two divisions of the insurgents. The government troops pursued the rebels and succeeded in driving them from their front-line trenches, which the government divisions then occupied.

"Military activities during the past week have revised the Peking-Hankow front, as the Nationalist troops are steadily pushing the fighting into the north.

STATE FORCE ORDERED OUT

MONCKS CORNER, S. C., July 24 (AP).—State Senator E. J. Dennis of Berkeley County was shot down and probably fatally wounded on the street here today in the latest episode of this county's bloody history of gun fights, ambushes and assassinations of recent years.

The 54-year-old Senator, long a dominant figure in Berkeley's turbulent politics, was rushed to a Charleston hospital, where it was said his recovery was doubtful.

A report from Charleston quoted the physician who attended the wounded Senator as saying that even should he live he would be blind, as a buckshot had severed both of his optic nerves.

W. L. Thornley, 35-year-old Moncks Corner resident, charged with emptying a charge of buckshot into Mr. Dennis's head as the latter conversed with two friends in front of the postoffice, was taken to the State penitentiary at Columbia for safe keeping. Thornley refused to make a statement, and the motive for the shooting was undetermined.

Extraordinary precautions to prevent further trouble were taken by Governor Richards, who ordered the entire force of twelve State constables here, together with sheriffs and deputies from near-by counties.

Dennis Had Feared Ambush.

Mr. Dennis was a candidate for reelection in the Fall. He has held the Senator's office, with the exception of one four-year term, for about twenty years.

It was revealed that Senator Dennis had informed Governor Richards yesterday that he was positive he would be ambushed at an early date. He had requested the Chief Executive to send National Guardsmen to Berkeley for the Aug. 26 primary to preserve order and to prevent his opponent from "taking the ballot boxes." As head of the so-called Dennis faction, he was opposed for re-election by a leader of the anti-Dennis faction.

Governor Richards conferred with Adjt. Gen. James C. Dozier today regarding the advisability of ordering troops here this afternoon, but he decided that guardsmen would be of little avail against the bushwhacking tactics characteristic of Berkeley guerrilla warfare, if there should be an outbreak.

In 1929 Senator Dennis was tried and acquitted on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. He is a close friend of Governor Richards and was generally credited with being instrumental in the removal by the Governor of the County Sheriff a few months ago, a movement which fed fuel to the smoldering political fires.

Several Recent Shootings.

The shooting of Senator Dennis came within a few weeks of an attempt to assassinate Glenn D. McKnight, reputed king of the bootleggers in the notorious Hell Hole Swamp area of Berkeley County, who for a time served as a Federal prohibition agent. Employment of McKnight was one of the charges made against J. D. E. Myer, who recently resigned as Federal District Attorney for Eastern South Carolina, after an investigation by the Brookhart patronage committee.

McKnight was felled with a charge of buckshot as he stood at his garage door near his home here. He was thought fatally wounded at first, but recovered in a Charleston hospital. A State constable, J. L. Anderson, was arrested and charged with the shooting, as was Jeremiah Wright, Moncks Corner man, who was on parole after having been convicted of participation in a triple killing four years ago in which a brother of McKnight was a victim.

Less than a month before the McKnight attack, Legrange Cumbee, 18-year-old youth, was slain from ambush, and his father, Sabb Cumbee, seriously wounded while riding through Hell Hole. Wilbur Cumbee and Will Kales are in the penitentiary awaiting trial in connection with this affray.

GETS REWARD IN WILL OF RECLUSE FATHER

EASTHAMPTON, Conn., July 24 (AP).—Lillie Wilson today was assured of her reward for fifty-seven years of privation and self-sacrifice in living with her recluse father, Peter Wilson, on a farm in Middle Haddam, which modernity had passed by, when the will of Mr. Wilson, who died at the age of 96 last March, was filed for probate. Mr. Wilson left all of his property to her.

When Lillie Wilson went to Middletown to her father's death-bed, it was reported that she had never been to a city before and had never seen electric lights, trolley cars or any of the other marvels developed in the past half century. Later these stories were shown not to be entirely correct. She had seen electric lights before in her own village of Middle Haddam and once or twice had visited Easthampton.

But on the farm, where she spent by far the greater part of her girlhood and womanhood, things were accomplished much as in Colonial days. Dairying was done by hand, electric washing machines were a scarcely believed myth and hard physical work alone kept the farm and its small farmhouse going.

The amount of Peter Wilson's estate still remains a mystery. The farm itself comprises many fertile acres, and many persons in Middle Haddam believed the aged recluse had a considerable bank account.

Shot by Moonshiners, Boy Dies.

CUMBERLAND, Md., July 24 (AP).—Roy Uphole, 16, died today of gunshot wounds, which his father told officers were inflicted by moonshiners when the two accidentally discovered a still while hunting last Friday. The father, Asa Uphole, said they ran after seeing the still, fearing they would be mistaken for officers.

EATON FORCES LINK PROXIES TO LEASE

They Bring Out That 12,000 Shares Were Voted for Steel Merger After Youngstown Deal

NO MOVE TO DROP PROJECT

Grace Emphatically Denies Wall Street Rumors That the Plan Will Be Abandoned.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, July 24.—Counsel for Cyrus S. Eaton interests, fighting to block the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, centred their attack today on the validity of proxies by which shares of Sheet and Tube common stock were voted in favor of the consolidation.

The contest so far has involved 128,400 shares held by fiduciaries, among them the Dollar Savings and Trust Company of Youngstown, which gave the Sheet and Tube management proxies on 71,058 shares.

The plaintiff today brought out that 12,000 shares owned by the Stambaugh Estates were voted for the merger shortly after a three-year lease had been signed for space in the Stambaugh Building, now occupied by the Sheet and Tube general offices, at $90,000 a year. The plaintiffs introduced evidence that the space had been occupied prior to the three-year leasing agreement on a month-to-month basis.

Elton Hoyt 2d testified that William B. Hall and John Stambaugh 2d, trustees of the estate, had conferred in the East about the lease with Mr. Eaton, opposing the merger, and with Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem. Mr. Stambaugh has since died.

Hall Tells of Visit to New York.

Mr. Hall explained there are three Stambaugh estates—one of John Stambaugh, who died in 1888, and known as the senior estate; the estate of John Stambaugh Jr., who died in 1927, and John Stambaugh 2d, who died about six weeks ago. The Stambaugh building is occupied largely by Sheet and Tube's offices.

"Did you go to New York in connection with the lease?" Harry Crawford asked Mr. Hall.

"No, I went to New York about the merger."

"Did you go to see Mr. Grace?"

"I went principally to see Mr. Eaton."

Mr. Crawford objected to the manner in which the witness answered. He wanted to know why Mr. Hall had mentioned Mr. Eaton's name without being asked.

The witness said that John Stambaugh 2d was a nephew of Hugh B. Wick of Cleveland, who telegraphed Mr. Stambaugh at Pinehurst, N. C., to see Mr. Eaton in New York about the merger. The meeting took place in the Hotel Biltmore April 1.

Mr. Hall said he had a long talk about the merger with Mr. Hoyt on the train, and told Mr. Hoyt his purpose in going to New York.

Grace Denies Abandoning Plan.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, definitely denied last night that the officers of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation are preparing to drop their plans for a merger with the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

Rumors to the effect that the plans were to be abandoned were strong in the financial district all day yesterday and were heightened by similar reports from Youngstown. When Mr. Grace was informed of the reports last night by telephone at his home in Bethlehem, Pa., he laughed.

"The rumor is perfectly silly," he said. "We have no such intention and there is absolutely no foundation for the report. We have no such thought. The idea of dropping the plans never was brought up or even suggested."

"Then the merger will go through?"

"We show every evidence of going through with it, don't we?" was Mr. Grace's answer. "We wouldn't start such a situation unless we meant to go through with it, and you can make that as strong as you like."

WILLED $15,000 TO CHARITY.

Mrs. E. B. Woolverton Left $5,000 to Brooklyn Hospital.

The Free Memorial Library at Alexandria, Pa., receives $10,000 and the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, Sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, Brooklyn, $5,000 under the will of Mrs. Edith Beaver Woolverton, offered yesterday for probate. The testatrix, who was the widow of William Henderson Woolverton, died a week ago at her residence, 1,167 Fifth Avenue. For many years she had been identified with religious and educational work both here and abroad.

Mrs. Woolverton's will directed that the legacy to the hospital be used for the maintenance of the Ethel Woolverton Crib.

The chief beneficiary of the document is a sister, Mrs. Henry Tilge, 1,107 Fifth Avenue, who gets a life estate in the residue, valued in excess of $50,000.

After her death the residue will be divided equally between Mrs. Woolverton's two children, Mrs. Frederick H. Cone, 439 East Fifty-first Street, and William H. Woolverton, 510 Park Avenue, who also share their mother's personal effects.

Willard D. Smith, an employe, of Astoria, L. I., gets $1,000 "in appreciation of his thoughtfulness for me since my eyesight has been impaired." Four nieces and a friend also get small cash bequests.

FASTS TO 38 POUNDS, DIES.

CHICAGO, July 24 (AP).—Miss Dina Schreimer, 55 years old, taken starving to a hospital today, died late tonight. She weighed thirty-eight pounds and doctors said she was 112 pounds under normal weight.

Two men, one of whom recently was released from the State Hospital for the Insane, were found with Miss Shreimer in a small cottage and were arrested.

When the police entered the place tonight they found the woman, who was deaf and dumb, lying on a bed. The two men, Jacob Pfeiffer, 78 years old, who formerly was a patient at the Kanakakee State Hospital, and Joseph Shea, 37 years old, were seated near by, silently watching her.

Pfeiffer, a brother-in-law of Miss Schreimer, and Shea, her nephew, told the police that the woman had refused food for several weeks.

Card Game Settles Candidacy for Sheriff; Two Herkimer Friends Would Not Be Rivals

HERKIMER, N. Y., July 24 (AP).—Fortune lay in the cards tonight for Daniel F. Strobel. He won not only the right to enter the primaries as a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Herkimer County, but also the good-will and support of Fred Sauer, whom he bested in a game of pitch, otherwise known as high-low-jack.

To a little tavern outside this village they went, Strobel, Sauer and followers of each. The two have been friends for a quarter century, and neither would enter a political fight against the other. So they dicided to leave it to the cards.

While self-appointed sergeants-at-arms promptly squelched onlookers who could not refrain from offering advice at intervals, Strobel and Sauer faced each other as grimly as any duellists. Strobel took some friendly jeering when his match hand shook as he attempted to light a cigarette. Sauer was chaffed because he couldn't decide whether to leave his hat off or on. The goal was 11 points. Strobel got there first.

At an adjoining table three other Republicans played pinochle to decide who would next hold the appointive office of county purchasing agent. Maurice Kraus, with 1,000 points, emerged the victor over M. L. Hyde, who had 490, and John Flank, whose total was 380.

Seven other Republicans will run against Strobel in the primaries, but most Herkimer County voters believe Strobel, with Sauer's backing, will win. The Republican candidate is almost certain to win in the general election.

GEHLBECK EXTENDS LEAD IN AIR DERBY

HAMER IS FORCED TO LAND

HOUSTON, Texas, July 24.—Led by Lieutenant Lee Gehlbeck of Little Rock, ten racing planes participating in the All-American Air Derby landed at the Municipal Airport here about noon today, after a flight from Little Rock.

The plane piloted by H. Hamer was forced down in Chambers County, Texas, about fifty miles short of its destination. A relief plane, carrying a mechanic and an extra supply of gasoline, immediately was dispatched to Hamer's assistance.

Swooping down over the finish line at the Municipal Port at 12:05:34 this afternoon, Gehlbeck clipped two and a half minutes from the time of Stub Quinby, second to arrive, and won first money of $500 as the Houston-lap prize. Gehlbeck's time was 3:01:34 hours, and for Quinby, second prize winner, 3:03:06.

The third plane to figure in the prize money was piloted by J. R. Wedell of New Orleans, whose elapsed time was 3:07:55. Other planes in the order of their arrival and their elapsed times were:

S. T. Stanton	3.25.40
Charlie Meyers	3.46.04
Joe Meehan	3.53.54
Bill Cahill	4.10.42
H. Ogden	4.25.23
Larry Brown	5.51.33
Cecil Coffrin	5.53.58

Official timing of the arrival of the planes was supervised by Lee Schoenhair. Major Walter H. Reir served as chief scorer for the derby into Houston. The planes will take off at 8:45 A. M. tomorrow for San Angelo, Texas.

ATTACKS GORILLA FILM IN SUIT TO END SHOWING

"Son of Lady Mackenzie" Gets Show Cause Order on Charge Picture Was Copied.

An order requiring Congo Pictures, Ltd., and William Alexander, producers of the motion picture "Ingagi," a film depicting the sacrifice of native African women to gorillas, to show cause Tuesday why they should not be enjoined from exhibiting or distributing the picture, was signed yesterday by Federal Judge William Bondy on motion of Louis Nizer, attorney for Byron P. Mackenzie, described as the "son of Lady Mackenzie, the African game hunter."

The motion came up in line with a suit filed by Mr. Mackenzie to compel the defendants to account for receipts which are alleged to amount to more than $1,000,000 for showing of the picture, which has raised a storm of protest from mammologists and technical experts on the ground that the gorilla scenes were "faked."

The complaint charges that about half of the film play produced and distributed by the defendants was taken from Lady Mackenzie's play, "The Heart of Africa," based on 20,000 feet of film taken by her in Africa in 1914. It is charged that the defendants obtained many of their scenes from negatives of this film.

Ernest L. Frisbee, president and general counsel of the Lady Mackenzie Film Co., assignor of the plaintiffs, declared in an affidavit that the director of education in Ohio forbade the showing of the film in that State.

"The defendants, in order to continue the exhibition of the photoplay," the affidavit continues, "have inserted a foreword to the effect that actors disguised as gorillas take part in the gorilla scenes."

"Ingagi" was withdrawn from several of the larger circuits after a first showing in houses near New York. On June 2 the Better Business Bureau presented a report of the American Society of Mammologists, saying that the gorilla scenes were "duped."

706 SLOT MACHINES SEIZED

Newark Raiders Charge Mint Venders Were Gambling Devices.

Police seized 706 slot machines in raids in Newark, which were begun on Wednesday night and were completed early yesterday. More than 300 policemen carried out the raids on information supplied by undercover men of the Newark police and the Essex County Prosecutor's office.

At a warehouse at 455 Central Avenue, Newark, said to be headquarters of an agency distributing the machine, 343 machines were taken. The others were seized in individual stores.

The police held for questioning Victor Ernest of Hawthorne, N. J., Jerry Milano of Cleveland, Irving Abrams of 400 Paterson Avenue and Philip Krahower of 268 Hamilton Avenue, Newark.

Most of the machines were of the "mint vender" type marked "N. E. K," for which Nathan E. Krasner of Irvington, N. J., obtained an injunction recently from Vice-Chancellor Church in Newark against interference with the operation of the machines unless used illegally. The authorities were confident they could show the machines were gambling devices.

TRUST INQUIRY ON OVER BULLOCK ROW

DETAILS ARE GUARDED

Broker's Attorneys in Statement Express Hope That "Business Controversy" Will Be Adjusted.

An investigation into a "business controversy" which has arisen between a New York Stock Exchange firm and Calvin Bullock of 120 Broadway was announced yesterday by Assistant Attorney General Watson Washburn, head of the State Bureau of Securities at 64 Trinity Place. The exact details of the matter were not learned, but it is believed they are connected with the purchase of securities by a Stock Exchange firm for two investment trusts, the portfolios of which are supervised by Calvin Bullock & Co.

The two investment trusts are International Carriers, Ltd., with resources of more than $18,000,000, and the International Superpower Corporation, with resources of more than $14,000,000. The name of the Stock Exchange firm was not learned.

Mr. Bullock refused to discuss the matter yesterday, but said he probably would have something to say in the next few days. At the offices of his counsel, Sullivan & Cromwell, however, the following statement was given out:

"The facts as published today in a financial newspaper are untrue. This is a business controversy between Bullock and an exchange house which we still hope to adjust satisfactorily. None of the companies managed by Bullock will show any loss by reason of this controversy."

No details other than that an investigation was under way were forthcoming from the State Bureau of Securities. It was said there that subpoenas would be issued in the investigation should such action be found necessary.

The spokesman for Mr. Bullock's attorneys emphasized that the "controversy" is not between Calvin Bullock & Co. and two Stock Exchange houses but between Mr. Bullock personally and one Exchange firm.

No complaint, formal or informal, has been made to the Stock Exchange, although the matter has been discussed with Exchange officials, it was admitted by the law firm's spokesman. Asked if the cause of the trouble was a misunderstanding over business conducted on the Stock Exchange, he said that such was not the case.

"It is impossible to make public details of the controversy at this time," he said. Asked if any violation of Stock Exchange rules was involved, he replied, "That is what I am not sure of."

The two investment trusts are supervised by Calvin Bullock & Co. for a stipulated quarterly fee. International Carriers, Ltd., investments consist principally of railroad securities, while those of the International Superpower Corporation are mainly securities of public utility companies.

PINCHOT ASSAILS PHILADELPHIA 'GANG'

Opens Campaign in County Where Vote Has Been Challenged by His Opponents.

CHARGES UTILITIES' ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 24.—Gifford Pinchot launched his Gubernatorial campaign tonight by denouncing "certain public utilities," W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and supporters of Francis Shunk Brown of Philadelphia, who are endeavoring to take the Republican nomination from him through court action.

Mr. Pinchot selected Luzerne County for his keynote address because its vote is in dispute before the State Supreme Court, holding up the official nomination of the Republican party since the May primary.

The ex-Governor arrived just as the county Republican convention had adopted a resolution pledging support to his candidacy in the Fall, regardless of the action of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Pinchot was obviously affected by the rousing reception he received and the pledge of support.

"What you have done here today will be remembered by me always," he said. "I appreciate this. The perforated ballots in Pennsylvania will supply the holes for those mixed in dirty politics to get out."

The convention adjourned for the victory dinner, to which invitations had been issued for 1,000 persons, although 1,500 responded, overflowing the open pavilion where it was served.

Outstanding party leaders in Luzerne and a sprinkling from every section of Pennsylvania were on hand. Mr. Pinchot made the most of the opportunity in his address, striking out at his foes in typical fashion.

"The real reason behind the effort to steal the election of Governor is the determination of certain public utilities in Pennsylvania to put their own man in office," he said.

Explaining that because of counterfeit ballots and election frauds in Luzerne County from 1915 to 1926, the County Commissioners were led to perforate the official ballots by special perforating machines, of which there are no duplicates, Mr. Pinchot said:

"There is not now, and never has been, any contention that a single vote was changed either for or against any candidate by reason of the perforations or that the secrecy of the ballot was violated by the perforations. There has been no contention that the recent election in Luzerne County failed to express the honest will of the voters of the county.

"Certain elements in the Philadelphia organization have become famous throughout America and the world for election frauds. After having lost in the primary, their leaders are now attempting to steal the nomination for the Governorship. The attempt is thoroughly in accord with the previous history of these leaders, and with their notorious lack of sportsmanship. Having been honestly beaten, they refuse to abide by the rules of the game and are now attempting to get by the cheapest of chicanery what they lost to an opponent who used only fair and open means."

Error as to A. H. Hanson and W. D. Miller.

A typographical error in an article in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Wednesday reporting the appearance in the Federal Court in Brooklyn of Albert H. Hanson and William Douglas Miller made the article read that they were to have pleaded guilty to indictments brought against them, but that after a conference with the court and the District Attorney their pleas were put over until Monday. The statement should have read that they would "plead" to the indictments, not "plead guilty." Dr. Albert R. Allen and Edward F. Wagner, former vice presidents of the Long Island National Bank, and Albert F. Graff, formerly a director of the bank, pleaded not guilty yesterday on the indictments returned Monday and were released in Brooklyn Federal Court in $5,000 bail each pending trial Sept. 15.

PERUVIAN MUSIC GIVEN ON N. Y. U. CAMPUS

A program of Peruvian music was played last night on the campus of New York University by the Goldman Band, Edwin Franko Goldman conducting. All of the selections were composed by Daniel Alomia Robles, Peruvian archaeologist and student of the folklore of South America. Despite threatening weather, a large crowd attended the concert, including Mr. Robles and a number of South Americans.

At the conclusion of the first half of the program Mr. Robles, who is also a sculptor, presented a bust of Mr. Goldman to the conductor. In a short address, delivered in Spanish, he pointed out that Mr. Goldman was the only American conductor who had made extensive use of Peruvian music. The bust, which is now a plaster cast, is to be later cast in bronze, he said.

The compositions by Mr. Robles were "March Peru"; a waltz, "En Los Andes"; a melody, "Hymn to the Sun," and two short compositions, "Cashua" and "Fondero." Several of his compositions were based on ancient Inca melodies, and the music from which "Hymn to the Sun" was arranged is estimated to be about 3,000 years old. The "March Peru" was dedicated to Augusto B. Leguia, President of Peru, and to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim. The waltz was dedicated to Mr. Goldman.

The second half of the program was devoted to popular selections. The soloist of the evening was Del Staigers, cornet soloist of the band, who played his "International Fantasie." The composition, written last year, utilizes the strains of various national anthems and contains several extremely difficult passages.

BEETHOVEN GIVEN AGAIN.

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with soloists and chorus of the Choral Symphony Society of New York was repeated last night at Lewisohn Stadium of City College by the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, Willem Van Hoogstraten conducting. The first performance of this season at the stadium was played on Wednesday.

Due to cloudy weather and a rain earlier in the evening, the crowd last night was somewhat smaller than usual, but excellent weather for outdoor music prevailed throughout the concert. The soloists, as on the previous night, were Jeannette Vreeland, soprano; Nevada Van der Veer, contralto; Arthur Hackett, tenor, and Nelson Eddy, baritone. The Ninth Symphony was preceded by the overture to "Leonore" No. 3, by the same composer.

The program announced for tonight consists of Rossini's overture to William Tell," Smetana's symphonic poem, "The Moldau"; Bach's "Air for Strings," Kodaly's suite from "Hary Janos" and Beethoven's Eighth Symphony.

SITTERS AND RIDERS IGNORE DOWNPOUR

FACE BAN IN WESTCHESTER

Tree sitters, non-stop bicycle riders and other endurance contestants remained true to their art in the metropolitan area yesterday despite the fierce downpour and the play of lightning. Boys pedaled through the storm and took their wetting like martyrs, and the tree-sitting devotees merely blinked at the electrical display without budging.

In Westchester County, however, the public officials were preparing to haul down the boy crop of tree sitters. Dr. Matthias Nicoll Jr., county health officer, said a number of accidents had been reported, and he warned parents to exercise their authority to prevent their sons from squatting in the boughs. He said that if the appeal is unsuccessful he will attempt to have an ordinance passed to put a stop to endurance contests.

In Yonkers an agent for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children pulled John Nedley, 12 years old, from a tree in Cox Avenue where he had perched thirty-four hours.

Jersey Title in Dispute.

In Camden, N. J., Vincent Morrissey and Anthony Scotti held fast to their roost in the city park after passing the 216-hour mark and claimed the world championship, but their right to the title is disputed by Calvin Neill of Harrisburg, Pa., who has been up since July 14 and passed his 241st hour at 9 A. M. yesterday.

Miss Elsie Slater, 15 years old, was grounded in Riverside, N. J., while trying for a tree-sitting record, the town authorities deciding she had violated an ordinance forbidding destruction of trees by nailing a board to the branches and using it as a seat. In National Park, N. J., Mrs. Edna May McKnight entered her third day of tree-sitting and said she liked it, that she had gained three pounds living among the leaves.

In Closter, N. J., Robert Parsells, 13, clung to his place on the bough, despite the storm that broke as he passed his 170th hour, and all over Bergen County young tree-sitters bloomed by the score, intent on setting a record. They were bothered by owls and mosquitoes, but were more fortunate than L. T. Brumagen of Lexington, Ky., according to The Associated Press. Brumagen had 56 hours marked up when a skunk moved into the tree, compelling him to make a forced landing.

Bicycle riders kept trundling away in various parts of the country, apparently oblivious of the fact that public interest in their endeavors seems to be waning. Little Ferry, Hackensack and Hillsdale, N. J., still have teams in the field, all striving to pass the 384-hour record set by Jimmy Dooley's original Hackensack wheelers, who were forced out Tuesday night when their bicycle collapsed.

In Brooklyn Raymond Cummings and three other Greenpoint boys in their early teens were pumping away at the pedals, passing their ninetieth hour at 9 o'clock last night. A block in Monitor Street has been roped off for them by order of Alderman McGuinness and two policemen keep motor traffic out of their way. Bloomfield, N. J., has a team that has gone 219 hours, and Hillside, N. J., has a team proud of its 190-hour record, and still going. In New Brunswick the leading team alternated between the saddle and the barber's chair, a barber rewarding them with free haircuts for their efforts to bring fame to the community.

Carteret, N. J., has a team of four that started last Tuesday and is still awheel, and Morristown, N. J., has another that has passed the 72-hour mark. Newark's Goble Street team of six aspirants had ridden 106 hours at 6 o'clock last night, but had to keep a watchful eye for blue uniforms, since the police have definitely banned the sport and are driving tree sitters and non-stop hopefuls from the streets.

Bloomfield, N. J., cropped up with a new kind of endurance contest yesterday. Eight boys, the youngest 14, are keeping a baseball in motion on James Street Bridge, there, by tossing it around from one to another. They work in short shifts.

In Rockaway Mrs. Myrtel Huddleston and Miss Corinne Rossberg are staging an endurance swim in a private pool. They started on Wednesday morning and were still at it last night. Their attempt is purely professional, since they have contracted for a certain amount of the gate receipts. Most of the boy addicts are satisfied with free ice cream, free haircuts and publicity.

SLAIN RESISTING HOLD-UP.

Insurance Collector Shot When He Defies Thug in Hallway.

Robert Avalon, 31 years old, an agent for the Prudential Life Insurance Company attached to the 149th Street branch, was shot and mortally wounded in the hallway of a tenement house at 636 East 137th Street, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon when he ignored an armed robber's command to "stick 'em up." Avalon died last night in Lincoln Hospital. He was to have left the city today on his vacation.

The insurance man had called at an apartment in the house and after collecting a premium had stepped out, when the robber confronted him. Avalon tried to brush past the man, whereupon the latter fired twice. Only one bullet took effect.

The robber fled. Avalon followed him out into the street and collapsed. An ambulance was called and Avalon was rushed to the hospital. Several men in the street pursued the robber, but he escaped. Avalon was married and had one child. He lived at 2,276 Creston Avenue, the Bronx.

BANS SPORTS FIELDS FOR CENTRAL PARK

The playground is the form of encroachment now most seriously threatening Central Park, according to former State Senator Nathan Straus Jr., president of the Park Association of New York City, who sounded a warning last evening against the threatened encroachment in an address broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company's Station WJZ. Mr. Straus appealed for the preservation of the integrity of Central Park and other parks. At the same time he advocated more playgrounds, but suggested that they be kept out of the city's parks.

"Parks versus playgrounds is an old conflict," said Mr. Straus, "and as long as Central Park exists there will probably be people who want to use part of it for museums, part of it for stadiums, part of it for taxicab stands and other parts of it for every other use that has been suggested in the years of its history. But the poor old park has weathered many a fight in the past, and it is apt to weather many more in the future."

Would Retain Traditional Motive.

Mr. Straus cited the opposition that developed against Central Park when it was first laid out, referring specifically to the report of City Fathers Mother, Varian, Husted and Donoho of March 13, 1854, proposing to pare down the size of Central Park, and calling it a superfluity inasmuch as New York needed no park for nobility to strut and display their dazzling equipages. Mr. Straus then recalled scores of proposed encroachments, including everything from amusement parks to cemeteries. He continued:

"The form of threatened encroachment today is the playground. We are told the city needs more playgrounds, and that these playgrounds cannot be had on Manhattan Island except in Central Park. The restoration of the thirty-four acres of the old disused southern reservoir to park purposes is suggested as an ideal opportunity to put baseball fields, a running track and a stadium into Central Park.

"Baseball fields, tennis courts and running tracks are needed on Manhattan Island, as elsewhere in this city. They will be provided on the reclaimed land being constructed as a result of fill-in on Riverside Drive from Seventy-second Street to 129th Street, where approximately sixty acres of new land is being made. The thirty-four acres on the southern reservoir should be returned to the Park Department from the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity and should be landscaped as an integral part of Central Park. Friends of the parks must stand on the creed laid down by Olmstead & Vaux, who drew the original plans for Central Park, and who, in a letter to the president of the Department of Public Parks, dated January, 1872, stated:

"* * * the park throughout is a single work of art, and, as such, subject to the primary law of every work of art, namely, that it shall be framed upon a single, noble motive, to which the design of all its parts, in some more or less subtle way, shall be confluent and helpful.'

Shrubs to Screen Playgrounds.

"In fact, the association of which I am president considered the landscaping of the southern reservoir tract, worth over $30,000,000, of sufficient importance so that any plans for it should be considered in detail. Commissioner Herrick, who gave of himself effectively and unselfishly for the betterment of the parks, received our suggestion enthusiastically. The cooperation of the New York Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects was enlisted. The landscape architects have prepared a beautiful plan, embodying their best collective judgment, and they have donated it to the City Park Department. The central feature of this plan is a large oval field, 1,300 feet long by 800 feet wide.

"Modern methods of irrigation now so successful on certain of the parks will nevertheless permit that this oval field be used for play on many afternoons during the Summer months.

"Concealed from the general view are two sanded playgrounds of over one-half acre each. These will be adapted to the use of small children. Each will contain a wading pool, 350 feet long and from 40 to 80 feet wide. The plan has been so ingeniously worked out that these playgrounds will be completely screened by plantings of shrubbery. Footpaths winding about through the shrubbery are a part of this plan.

"An attempt is made to meet changed conditions squarely and effectively in the landscaping of the thirty-four-acre reservoir tract. Woodland footpaths, as remote as possible from vehicular highways, are offered those who delight in a quiet and shaded walk. This will be one distinctly novel feature of the landscaping of the lower reservoir tract.

Deplores Attitude of Opponents.

"While the Park Association for which I speak believes that landscaping of Central Park must always take into consideration the original design of the park, we would hesitate to impugn the motives of others who disagree with us. We think that in this defense of the park we are right. We would, however, not be guilty of heaping upon those who honestly disagree with us vituperation and bitter criticism.

"Moreover, we do not believe that if it is decided we are wrong in this defense of Central Park, the population should be incited to lawlessness so that our point of view may be maintained. A New York newspaper, which is rather given to loose talk in regard to the park, has written only this week:

"'We will invite or pay groups of kids to enter on the restricted "great lawn for play" and some real playing. They will be encouraged to stage baseball or football games, track events and any other athletic pastimes they can think of before the police arrive. We will make test cases out of any arrests that may occur. Retaining the best lawyers we can find, we will carry those test cases through the highest courts having jurisdiction of them. That is one fight which we can and will put up. We ought to be able to think of other devices in due time.'

"Those methods are not the methods of park friends. There is something about park protection and park development, if sincerely pursued, which stimulates good citizenship and good manners, and makes that type of thinking and that type of talking an impossibility."

Model to Be Exhibited.

Mr. Straus praised the Walker Administration and Controller Berry in particular for the acquisition of nearly 3,000 acres of park lands at a cost of $10,000,000 in the past five years. He pointed out that the park-purchase program now under advisement by the Berry committee, a program advocated by the Park Association at its dinner at the Hotel Commodore on Feb. 25 last, involved the purchase of an additional 700 acres of land at a cost of approximately $25,000,000. Mr. Straus then said:

"We believe we are right in preserving Central Park as a great park not for any group of ball players, not for any group of ball game watchers, but for all of the people who seek rest and peace within the city. If you think we are right, we ask your support. A model of the plan of the New York Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects has been made, and will be shown, commencing Friday morning, July 25, in the Forty-third Street and Seventh Avenue window of the Times Building. You are invited to view it.

"We believe we are right in urging that $25,000,000 be spent now for additional parks and additional playgrounds throughout the greater city. If you think we are right, we ask your cooperation and support, expressed by membership in the Park Association of New York City."

vouchers for all purchases over $5 and for competitive bidding on purchases over $100.

Although no allowances have heretofore been made for expenses of American foreign service officers, these officials have had to defray them out of their own pockets or with the use of their own embassy or legation buildings.

In contrast, the British Ambassador to the United States receives a salary of $12,118 and $95,698 annually as allowances, exclusive of embassy rental, the embassy being owned by the British Government. Ambassador Dawes in London receives a salary of $17,500, but has had no allowance heretofore.

American Ministers receive salaries of $12,000 and $10,000, depending upon their stations. Twenty-three British missions receive an average allowance of $15,000. British secretaries receive an average of $2,000 and eighteen British consular officers in the United States $4,000.

The $94,000 now available for official expenses will be distributed among fifty-three diplomatic and fifty-two consular missions in amounts as determined by the Secretary of State.

"The purposes for which representation allowances are granted," the Executive order states, "are the assistance in the establishment and the upholding of the official prestige of the United States in the communities in which its representatives are stationed, and the furthering of its interests abroad in the ways recognized as customary in various parts of the world."

The legislation specifies that the funds may be used for the following purposes:

Receptions on American national holidays.

Functions, formal or informal, such as receptions, dinners and luncheons given upon special occasions such as the usual official receptions incident to visits of United States naval vessels, of special commissions, or upon some important happening, providing the means of reciprocating official courtesy received, either at a representative's home or at public places.

Tips and gratuities in accordance with custom in the various countries where such gratuities are, in the opinion of the representative, necessary or desirable for the maintenance of the prestige of the United States.

Purchases of flowers, wreaths, etc., upon appropriate occasions such as weddings, births and deaths of important personages.

Expenses for entertainment of other kinds than provided for above when considered reasonable and desirable by the Secretary of State, provided that such expenses are shown to be for activities of representative importance.

Any other expenses, which, in the discretion of the Secretary of State are of a character to promote the representation of the United States abroad.

Officials of the State Department said today that they were unaware how many American diplomats observed prohibition at the stations abroad, but it is known that the serving of liquors in some instances has been a considerable personal expense to envoys. Under the Executive order this expense must continue to be borne personally. This ruling means no change for Ambassador Dawes, who announced last year that no liquors would be served at the Embassy in London during his tenure.

8TH AV. MERCHANTS BACK 57TH ST. SPAN

The Eighth Avenue Association, through its Hudson River bridge committee, will actively press the application of the North River Bridge Company before the War Department for permission to build a suspension bridge at Fifty-seventh Street, according to plans adopted yesterday at the first meeting of the committee in the Hotel Lincoln. A proposal to enlist the support of other organizations to obtain the government's approval was held in abeyance pending the results of the committee's first move for the early construction of the span.

While the War Department denied the original application of the company, headed by Gustav Lindenthal, on the ground that no bridge having a clearance of less than 200 feet would be considered, it recently reopened hearings on the application, and, according to Francis Lee Stuart, consulting engineer of the company, it is now felt that the government will consent to a clearance of 180 feet.

Discussing plans for the project at the meeting yesterday, Mr. Stuart pointed out that practically all of the ships having masts too high to clear the structure even at 160 feet were foreign-built vessels. Only three American-built ships, because of the height of their masts, would be unable to pass under the bridge if it had a clearance of only 160 feet, he declared.

Although Mr. Stuart believed that 135 feet was sufficient, his estimates were based on a clearance of 160 feet, and he said the company was willing to accept 170 feet as clearance. He added that the difference between 170 and 180 feet represented the difference between success and failure of the project.

The company, Mr. Stuart said, has offered to bear the cost of telescoping the masts of all ships unable by such construction to clear the structure. The average cost of these alterations, he said, had been estimated at from $3,000 to $4,000 a ship, while the greatest cost for the work on any one ship would amount to $8,000. He said there was no American ship whose masts would not clear the proposed bridge.

The terminal of the bridge, which would be a union station for several railroads now unable to enter Manhattan, would form one corner of a triangle, the two other corners being the Pennsylvania Station and the Grand Central Station. In this section, Mr. Stuart said he could foresee rising real estate values and a rejuvenation of the whole midtown area by virture of the convenient approach to the district from New Jersey.

Mr. Stuart believed that vehicular tubes under the river would only add to the congestion of automobiles on the streets, but by means of rapid transit lines across the bridge more customers could reach the shopping district in comfort. He thought that, while the vehicular traffic had not been discussed with the city government, the city would be in accord with the project.

The Eighth Avenue Association is on record in favor of the bridge provided its terminal is built west of Eighth Avenue and that no tracks are carried either in the air or on grade. Mr. Stuart explained that the height of the bridge would affect the length of the approaches, and said that if the clearance were 170 feet it would not be necessary to build the approaches east of Ninth Avenue. Five years would be required to build the bridge, he said.

Edward N. Goldy, chairman of the association's bridge committee, presided. The discussion was led by James W. Danahy, managing director and secretary of the association. The committee will shortly call on Colonel G. M. Hoffman, chief of Army engineers for this district, to urge favorable consideration of the lower clearance.

Christian Gross's Action in Chicago Countered by Wife Here.

Christian Gross, member of a wealthy Chicago family, who was a Captain in the army in the World War and later was assistant secretary of the American Embassy in Paris, has filed suit in Chicago to restrain his wife, Virginia Harrison Gross, daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, former Governor General of the Philippines, from collecting a $250,000 trust fund held by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company and Harry L. Haas as trustees. This was learned yesterday when Mrs. Gross applied here for an injunction restraining her husband from prosecuting the Chicago action. The case will be heard today.

Mrs. Gross had sued here to enforce an agreement by which Mr. Gross was to return $250,000 of $850,000 she says she gave him in July, 1923, to keep him from abandoning her and their infant child. The case was heard recently by a referee, who ruled that the New York courts have control over the fund, although Mr. Gross claimed residence in Chicago, and could direct the trustees to pay the $250,000 into court for the benefit of the plaintiff. Mr. Gross then retaliated with the Chicago suit, asserting that his rights were being invaded here.

THREE JOIN HOSPITAL STAFF

Three new appointments to the staff of the Montefiore Hospital for Chronic Diseases were announced yesterday by Dr. E. M. Bluestone, director of the institution, in his Summer report. The hospital is one of ninety-one institutions in the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies.

Miss Lenna F. Cooper, former chief dietitian and consultant at the Battle Creek Sanitarium, dean of the School of Home Economics at Battle Creek College, and chief dietitian of the United States Army during the war, has been appointed supervising dietitian at the hospital. William J. Overton, who was chief of construction of the Medical Centre of Columbia University, has been made chief engineer, and Miss Lillian B. Wiener, formerly connected with Mount Sinai Hospital and the X-Ray laboratory of Dr. Leopold Jaches, is the new medical librarian.

COURT FREES DAVIS IN BOND FRAUD CASE

NO CONSPIRACY, HE HOLDS

Two County Detectives, Charged With Releasing Liquor Trucks Improperly, Also Cleared.

TOMS RIVER, N. J., July 24.—James Mercer Davis, prosecutor of Ocean County, and County Detectives John A. G. Grant and Alexander J. Miller were acquitted here today on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the county through the release of alleged bootleggers' trucks under improper bonds. The indictment also charged that in one instance Mr. Davis failed to take proper action for the forfeiture of a bond.

Supreme Court Justice Peter F. Daly directed the jury to bring in a verdict of no cause of action at the close of the State's case early this afternoon. He held that the State had failed to produce sufficient evidence of a conspiracy. While expressing the opinion that the defendants had failed to follow the exact letter of the law in bonding seized vehicles, he said that the statute was "absurd" in that it permitted State troopers to draw bonds.

Justice Daly announced his decision after Robert H. McCarter, special prosecutor, and former Circuit Court Judge George A. Haight, counsel for Mr. Davis, had occupied half the morning debating a motion by Mr. Haight for a direct acquittal. Mr. Haight contended that the indictments did not charge a crime and that the act with which the defendants were charged was not inconsistent with innocence.

The State contended that the three defendants had conspired to release an alleged bottlegger's truck worth $7,000 on a bond of only $2,000 and that the three persons who signed the bond were not financially responsible.

A fourth defendant, Corporal Francis J. Ruggiero of the State police, was named in the indictment but the charge against him was nolle prossed by the special prosecutor.

Mr. Davis is a brother of Judge J. Warren Davis of the United States Circuit Court, and conducted the recent prosecution of the Evans murder case in Lakewood, which led to death sentences for Mrs. Hattie Evans and Marine Private Lester Underdown and prison terms for three other marines.

H. H. BOYCE, BANKER, SUED FOR ALIENATION

Harrison H. Boyce, who has been head of the investment securities corporation of Harrison H. Boyce & Co., and has made his home at 277 Park Avenue, has been sued for $1,000,000 for alienating the affections of Mrs. Jacqueline Athana by her husband, John J. Athana. This was diclosed in the Supreme Court yesterday when Mrs. Athana applied to vacate a notice for her examination before trial on the ground that she is not a party to the suit and that the proposed examination is for the purpose of annoying her.

Mrs. Athana, who was asked to testify concerning her present residence, the receiving of gifts and other presents from Mr. Boyce, and on allegations of taking trips with him to Brunswick, Ga., and of accepting improper attentions from him, declared that she is now living at 41 Fifth Avenue and was formerly the ward of Mr. Boyce.

Mr. Athana alleges that the defendant has harbored Mrs. Athana since February, that he has induced her to consent to divorce the plaintiff, and that in March his wife and Boyce took a trip on the latter's yacht, the Alone. Mrs. Athana, who was Jacqueline Hawthorne, daughter of Westbrook Hawthorne of Orange, N. J. married the plaintiff in the Municipal Building in September, 1926. At that time it was said that Mr. Athana was a resident of London and was in the real estate business with Mr. Boyce, brother-in-law of Mrs. Athana. The Athanas lived at Westbury, L. I., after their marriage.

VAUSE DENOUNCED AS PREYING ON POOR

DEFENSE CHARGES POLITICS

Shaking his head from side to side and mumbling inaudibly, former Kings County Judge W. Bernard Vause listened in the Federal court yesterday to United States Attorney Tuttle, who denounced him as a member of a band of "financial cracksmen" preying on the ignorant and the poor.

Summing up for the government in the trial of the former judge, his brother Louis and five others for using the mails to defraud in the failure of the Columbia Finance Corporation, the United States Attorney excoriated the former jurist for his part in the corporation's activities and demanded his conviction as well as that of the others to preserve "standards of common honesty in our community."

Nathan D. Perlman, who delivered the argument for Mr. Vause, pictured him as the victim of Mr. Tuttle's political ambitions and avowed three officials of the Columbia who pleaded guilty had testified against Vause to save themselves and "hang" him. Mr. Tuttle closed his address to the jury with a denial that politics had anything to do with his direction of the prosecution.

Jury to Get Case Today.

The jurors who have listened to the evidence for almost six weeks will receive the case this morning after Judge Alfred E. Coxe has delivered his charge at the opening of the court session. Besides Vause and his brother, the defendants are Samuel Schuchman, William Rayman, Max Barmak and Harry and Samuel Cruso.

Mr. Tuttle reviewed in detail the formation of the Columbia and directed his fire particularly against former Judge Vause and Schuchman, who has been characterized as the "master mind" of the company. He demanded the conviction of the lesser defendants on the ground that they were all involved in a conspiracy and asserted that Louis Vause should be convicted as well for acting as a "dummy" in receiving a salary which in reality was for the former judge.

"I have listened with interest to the apologies for a situation the like of which was never known before in this city," Mr. Tuttle said. "The fair name of this city has never known the stigma of a bank failure so complete. There was $480,000 put in by poor residents of the east side, and there is only $600 to show for it.

"I am aware that as prosecuting attorney I am fair game," Mr. Tuttle continued. "My motives are impugned and my purposes are suspected. I was prepared to listen to an attempt to drag politics in. They have no fair defense. They have not dared to offer a fair defense but they have put counsel forward to hit me low-foul.

"My answer to that attack is that in this case for the first time in the history of the city have the county District Attorney and the Federal District Attorney joined in prosecution of a case.

"While this case is going on, an assistent of mine is next door trying the case of a prominent Republican on trial for fraud."

Mr. Tuttle referred to the trial of Charles Shongood, former government auctioneer, in the adjoining court room. Turning to the jurors, he said:

Presents Question of Honesty.

"What are the standards of fair play and honesty which we expect those in high places to observe in respect to the unfortunate? That is the real question here. If we wish to have in our community common honesty—not as something unusual—but as something which all citizens have a right to expect, you gentlemen have it in your power to have it understood."

Declaring that the Columbia officials had attempted to disguise their enterprise as a bank, Mr. Tuttle assailed the type of men with whom Vause associated himself, and referring to Austin H. Montgomery, ex-convict and disbarred lawyer who testified for the government, said that the others had attempted to place all the blame on him.

"I have never seen so many double-crossers collected together as defendants," said Mr. Tuttle. "They not only double-crossed the public, but they double-crossed themselves, and then all of them combined to double-cross Montgomery. Montgomery was too smart for them, however, and after he had heard that Vause had made three appearances before the grand jury, he decided it was time for him to talk. You are dealing with a band of financial cracksmen."

Changed Shirt Three Times.

Mr. Perlman roused himself to such a pitch during his plea that he was forced to change his shirt three times. Mrs. Perlman went across the street to purchase the needed wearing apparel. He attacked the defendants who pleaded guilty as unworthy of credence, and said:

"I ask for no sympathy but I do ask for fair play. I ask for the liberty of my client that he may live down the mistakes he may have made." Then taking up his charge of politics, he continued:

"Woe be to the man who stands in Mr. Tuttle's path, whether he be a prosecutor or whether he is seeking some other place. This, however, is not election day. It is a hot day in July and not until November will we all sit in political judgment. If this defendant was named John Jones and not Judge W. Bernard Vause, I doubt very seriously if he would have been brought to trial in June after having been indicted in May. I believe that in ordinary cases the trial would have been late in the Fall at least. An early trial was Mr. Tuttle's right, however, and so he has brought the proceedings, and by innuendo and sideshows he has attempted to blacken and besmirch the reputation of Judge Vause.

"Headlines in the newspapers are very important in July. Perhaps they are not so important in December.

"You may recall that the first name in the indictment is W. Bernard Vause. Why is that? Surely not because he is the most guilty, but because he was the most prominent."

Emil K. Ellis, delivering a short plea for Louis Vause, insisted that his client had given bona fide services for the $125 a week salary which he received from the Columbia, and denounced also the testimony of the three defendants who pleaded guilty.

Supreme Court Justice Humphrey in Brooklyn yesterday adjourned for two weeks the hearing on an order requiring former County Judge Vause to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for failure to appear for an examination as to assets in a proceeding in the Brooklyn court.

MEYERHOLD COMPANY TO PLAY HERE IN FALL

Sidney Ross Cables He Will Offer Soviet Director and His Actors in Repertory.

Vsevolod E. Meyerhold, probably the best known theatrical director to emerge from Soviet Russia, and his company from the Moscow State Theatre will visit New York in the coming theatrical season, according to a cablegram yesterday from Sidney Ross, which was made public by his representative here.

Mr. Ross, who has been associated in a number of Broadway theatrical ventures and plans to become an independent producer next season, will return from Europe on the Ile de France, due here the middle of next week. On his arrival he will probably make known the date of Meyerhold's arrival and the plays in his repertory. Mr. Ross was interested in the sponsorship of Meyerhold's recent Paris season, in which the modern production of Gogol's "Revizor" or "The Inspector General" attracted particular attention.

Ever since the revolution of 1917 Meyerhold has been in the front rank of Russian directors. A charter member of the Moscow Art Theatre, he left that company to follow his own ideas and at the start of the revolution was a producer in Petrograd. Meyerhold's theatre has for some time been regarded as the home of the most extreme dramatic ideas in Soviet Russia.

END OF DICTATORSHIP SEEN.

LISBON, July 24 (AP).—Four Portuguese Army officers, imprisoned last week on charges of plotting against the dictatorship, were released tonight by the government. They were found innocent. The men are Colonel Tamagnini Barbosa, Colonel Ribeiro de Carvalho, Captain Augusto Casimir and Lieutenant Lima.

An official note issued tonight lent color to reports during the past few days that the dissolution of the dictatorship of President Oscar Carmona, elected in 1928, was imminent, and that Portugal would revert to parliamentary government. The note read:

"Immediate steps are being taken for the forming of a civilian organization destined to guarantee the transition of the government from the dictatorship to constitutional normalcy, which will assure the continuance of the work begun by the dictatorship.

"The government has convoked the civil government and the municipal authorities from every district of Portugal to attend a meeting next Wednesday so that they may be informed of the basic principles of the aforesaid organization."

TWO KILLED ON COASTER.

OMAHA, July 24 (AP).—Two persons were killed and seventeen were injured tonight when a roller coaster train at a park here plunged through a gap in the track and dropped thirty-five feet to the ground.

The train, composed of four cars, was being pulled up the first incline by the cog chain, Ben Meister, an eyewitness said, when the trestle collapsed. The cog chain pulled the train over the edge of the gap.

C. H. Stout, 50, and Ruth Farrell, 14, died in a hospital.

Sentenced for Thefts From Bank.

A sentence of from two and a half to five years in Sing Sing was imposed by Judge Rosalsky yesterday in General Sessions on Frederick W. Brooks, 38 years old, of 507 Vanderbilt Avenue, Brooklyn, for the theft of $32,000 from the Union Square branch of the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company, where he had been employed as a note teller for twelve years.

Baked Fairways at Hamilton Help the Scoring—Ten Equal or Go Below Par.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

ANCASTER, Ont., July 24.—With neither the heat nor Bobby Jones to worry them, the professionals competing in the Canadian open championship at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club today were able to devote their full attention to the business of scoring. The results were almost stupefying, for at the conclusion of the first eighteen holes of the Dominion classic there are ten scores of par or better.

The most stupefying score of any, however, was that of a golfer who is a year past the 50 mark. Despite the presence of such masters of golf as Macdonald and Horton Smith, Tommy Armour, Leo Diegel, Johnny Farrell and Walter Hagen, the leader of the field of nearly 200 players is Nicol Thompson, home club professional, who reeled off a scintillating 66.

Even with that he is closely pressed by Al Watrous, a former titleholder, who turned up unexpectedly and clicked out two 34s for a 68 without even so much as a practice round, and by Diegel, the defending champion; Tony Manero of Elmsford, Ed Dudley of the Concord Club in Wilmington, Del., and Charles Lacey of Pine Valley, all of whom turned in 69s.

Mac Smith, Hagen, Jim Heaney of the Brooklea Club in Rochester, N. Y., and Charles Murray, pro at the Royal Montreal Club, are bracketed at 70, while Jim Barnes, Fred Lyon of Lambton and George Von Elm, now registered from Los Angeles, come next with 71, and then follow Horton Smith and four others with 72s, Farrell, Tommy Kerrigan and fifteen others with 73s and Armour, Ross Somerville and nine more with 74s.

Armour's Chances Dubious.

Judging by today's scoring Armour's chances of repeating his 1927 victory are not particularly bright, for it looks tonight as if all those who have a two-round total of more than 140 tomorrow might just as well pack up their golf clubs and go home. Even Horton Smith is none too sanguine of his chances. After his round today Horton said he'd hate to be any higher.

Thompson's round established a new record for the Hamilton course in spite of the fact that two other 66s have been made over it in the past. The late J. Douglas Edgar had a finishing round of 66 when he won in 1919, the year that Bobby Jones tied for second place, while Andrew Kay equaled that mark in winning the Ontario open two years ago. But in neither instance was the course exactly the same as it is today, so Thompson's score will go down as an official record.

The course is one on which putting is practically the whole thing. It measures only 6,470 yards, but today, with the fairways baked, it didn't, in golfing language, play even that long. Both the 500-yard par 5 holes were reachable in two strokes, and there were many holes, like the ninth, which measures 425 yards, where the players had only short pitches left after their drives. The real par today was 68.

Thompson Home in 32.

Thompson, who played with Armour, was out when the wind was almost at its height, and, everything considered, it was a great round. There was nothing sensational about his work on the first nine in which he scored two birdies, but offset one of them by having to play two shots from the rough on the second hole, which cost him a 5.

But from then on he went like the wind and holed everything within sight, getting four birdies in the first five holes. After taking a 5 on the eleventh, his only mistake came when he bunkered his drive on the sixteenth, but he offset the loss of the stroke there by chipping dead on the seventeenth. Par on the last hole brought him home in 32, a figure than only Tony Manero equaled.

Contrasted with Thompson's, Armour's game was sadly off color. Tommy lost three strokes to par on the first two holes and on the third had a 6. Notwithstanding, he was out in 36 and should have been back in the same figures, but his second shot to the home hole caught a bunker and he came out short and then chipped far past the pin to take another 6.

There was nothing startling about the round played by Diegel, the defending champion, nor about Hagen's, excepting perhaps a 6 on the 400-yard fifteenth, where Walter took a bad 6.

On the other hand, there were some things worthy of note in the rounds played by Dudley, recent winner of the Shawnee open, and by Johnny Farrell, the New York State open champion. Dudley, getting away to a bad start, was one over par on the first nine and only managed to stay up with the leaders by dint of a 33 on the last nine.

Farrell went out in 34 but after that his putting touch deserted him and he took 39 on the final nine, almost as bad as C. Ross Somerville, former Canadian amateur champion, who went out in 33, the best score made on the outward half, and came home in 41.

The field will play another eighteen-hole round tomorrow, after which it will be cut and the survivors will play two eighteen-hole rounds on Saturday.

PERKINS ALSO ADVANCES

CHICAGO, July 24 (AP).—Don Moe of Portland, Ore., was toppled from his Western amateur golf championship throne today by Johnny Lehman, Chicago star, who defeated him, 1 up, after thirty-seven holes in their quarter-final match at the Beverly Country Club.

Lehman, former Big Ten champion, led most of the way in the long duel and ended it by sinking a 35-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the extra hole.

T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion, reached the semi-finals by defeating Jack Westland, Chicago district titleholder, 2 and 1, after shooting par-breaking golf. Another Chicagoan crowded into the semi-final bracket when Ira Couch defeated Charlie Fish of Rockford, Ill., 6 and 5.

McCrary Stages Comeback.

Moe was 1 down to Lehman at the quarter-mark of the 36-hole quarter-final match. Both players shot poor golf for the nine holes, Moe taking 43 strokes, seven over par, and Lehman 41. Lehman retained a 1-up lead at the end of the second nine, which each shot in 36.

After play see-sawed on the afternoon round, Moe found himself 2 down with four holes to go. The champion squared matters by winning the fifteenth and seventeenth, the others being halved.

Moe's Putt Is Short.

Moe shot a sparkling 33, two under par, coming back for an eighteen-hole total of 72. Lehman shot a 35 and a 74 for the entire round.

Moe split the fairway, 250 yards, with his drive off the extra tee, while Lehman hooked to the fringe of the rough. Moe pitched his second to within thirty feet of the pin, while Lehman dropped his thirty-five feet away. After a long and careful examination of the long, winding putting course, Lehman putted and his ball circled into the cup for a birdie 3. Moe's putt was two feet short the match was over, and the champion was dethroned.

Westland shot a sparkling 73 to gain a 4 up lead over Perkins at the half-way juncture of their match. Westland's rounds were 38, 35—73; Perkins had 41, 36—77.

Perkins came back with a great score of 34, two under par, on the first nine holes of the afternoon fight to square the match. He shot two birdies on the first four holes and a par on the fifth to square. The rest were halved in par.

Manhattan College and Oglethorpe University of Atlanta completed details yesterday for the metropolitan district's first night college football game to be played at the Polo Grounds on Oct. 10, it was announced last night.

Powerful arc lights will be used to illuminate the Polo Grounds to daytime brilliance for the game, which not only will be the initial college night gridiron contest in this section, but also will mark the first appearance of a Manhattan College eleven on one of the major league fields in New York City.

The game furthermore will be the first major gridiron encounter for the Manhattan College team under the régime of John Law, its new head coach, who captained the unbeaten Notre Dame team of last season and who was one of the country's leading guards.

Oglethorpe's eleven, coached by Harry Robertson, former Syracuse centre, always ranks well up among the leading Southern teams. Robertson has produced some good combinations at Oglethorpe, one of which defeated a Georgia eleven that had conquered Yale.

The novelty of the metropolitan district's first night college football game is expected to draw thousands of fans to the Polo Grounds on Oct. 10. Night football met with considerable success in the Middle West last season and a number of teams there are scheduled for night games this Fall.

MISS BROOKS GAINS IN RYE GOLF PLAY

Eliminates Mrs. Federman, 3 and 2, to Reach Semi-Final of Women's Invitation Tourney.

MRS. STEVENS ADVANCES

Defeats Miss Pietsch, 4 and 2—Miss Parker and Miss Williams Also Victors.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., July 24.—Playing almost flawless golf over the difficult west course of the Westchester Country Club, Miss Jane Brooks of Rockland eliminated Mrs. Leo Federman of Fresh Meadow, the Long Island champion, in the quarter-final round of the women's invitation tournament today.

Tallying an outgoing round of 42 and an inward score of 39, Miss Brooks dropped four strokes under women's par for the course to defeat Mrs. Federman, 3 and 2.

Miss Brooks will face Mrs. Edward Stevens of Round Hill, the Bermuda titleholder, tomorrow, while in the upper bracket of the semi-final two youthful holders of metropolitan and Eastern crowns will contest when Miss Martha Parker and Miss Frances Williams meet.

Miss Pietsch Loses, 4 and 2.

Mrs. Stevens advanced by defeating Miss Betty Pietsch of Tamarack, 4 and 2, and Miss Parker, who had conquered Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow yesterday, disposed of Mrs. Barlow's daughter, Mrs. V. N. Beig, 8 and 6.

A scintillating outward round of 39 was the greatest contributing factor in the victory of the metropolitan and New Jersey champion. In the other match Miss Williams played steadily to vanquish Mrs. J. H. Lapham, 4 and 3.

In her encounter with Miss Brooks Mrs. Federman staged an uphill fight after being 3 down at the termination of the first four holes to square the match on the ninth, only to lose on the inward trip when Miss Brooks annexed the tenth, eleventh, fifteenth and sixteenth holes. Although the match ended on the sixteenth green, Miss Brooks was playing so well that she finished out the last two holes to complete her card of 81.

Out—
Par	4	4	5	4	3	4	3	4	5	36
Miss Brooks	3	5	5	6	3	6	4	4	6	42

Miss Brooks wins, 3 and 2.

Miss Parker had little trouble with Mrs. Beig, who won only one hole, to be 6 down at the turn. An even hole on the tenth and two winning performances on the eleventh and twelfth ended the match there.

The cards:

Mrs. Beig	4	5	7

Miss Parker wins, 8 and 6.

Success with her approach shots gave Miss Williams a triumph over Mrs. Lapham, who was off to an early lead, but Miss Williams squared accounts on the fifth and was 2 up at the turn. Mrs. Lapham fought hard on the inward trip, but so well did the Eastern champion perform that Mrs. Lapham failed to take a hole as the match ended on the fifteenth green.

The cards:

Out—
Miss Williams	4	6	6	5	3	4	4	4	6	42
Mrs. Lapham	5	5	4	5	4	5	4	5	6	43

LLOYD'S 73 LEADS FIELD AT GREENWICH

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.
Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 24.—When dusk was settling over the Greenwich Country Club course at 8:30 o'clock tonight, the last of the field that competed in the annual invitation completed the qualifying play, four hours after a severe thirty-minute thunderstorm had thoroughly drenched most of the players.

The thunderstorm was responsible for ten of the competitors who had battled through the deluge replaying their rounds by special permission of the tournament committee. One of those who had posted a first round score after coming to the club house looking as though he had plunged into a near-by lake was Laurence Lloyd of the home club.

It was Lloyd later who returned the low score of 73 on his second trip, but he would not accept the medal, as he had previously informed the tournament committee of which he is a member that he would forego the prize were he fortunate enough to win on his second trip around the course.

Consequently, those who finished with 76s, George Voigt, the Walker Cup star, who played brilliantly despite the lightning and rain that ruined most scores; Fred Mayer of the Westchester Club and Sidney Noyes Jr. of Ardsley, who finished before the downpour, are technically tied for the qualifying honors.

Jones and Held Get 79s.

Of the ten in the field of 161 entrants who made the second journey around the course, only two qualified besides Lloyd. They were Richard A. Jones Jr. and Eddie Held, the Canadian titleholder, whose 79s gained them a place in the first sixteen.

Robert Moffett, the metropolitan junior champion, fell short of the mark. His 80 entitled him to match cards for a place, but he lost, and Dan R. Topping of Greenwich, instead, gained a chance to compete in the match play rounds.

The rain swept down with such intensity during the half-hour that Moffett, playing in a threesome with Jones and T. Suffern Tailer, came to the eighteenth green garbed somewhat like a prizefighter, with knickers and shoes but no shirt. Tailer had also pulled off his drenched shirt that interfered with his swing, but they found it almost impossible to hold on to their clubs.

Voigt was out in 39 and had started back 3, 3, when the storm broke, but he managed to lose only a stroke to par at the twelfth and thirteenth and holed his par 5 at the fourteenth. A good put brought a 3 at the short hole, but he three-putted the sixteenth. When the rain ceased he finished with two 4s for an incoming 37, two over par.

Lloyd Gets 84 on First Trip.

Lloyd, after an initial 84, went out in 38 but then holed the second nine in 35. He started the second half with birdies at the tenth and eleventh, a 2 and a 3, picked up another birdie at the fourteenth, but missed puts for pars at the sixteenth and seventeenth.

Among the other qualifiers were John Merwin of Concord and John E. Parker of Essex County with 77s. Richard Chapman, the interscholastic champion; John Graham and J. G. McMahon tied with 78 each.

MISS HELEN JACOBS,
Who Will Play No More Tournament Tennis This Year.

MISS JACOBS QUITS TENNIS FOR SEASON

WILL RETURN HOME SUNDAY

California Star, Wightman Cup Player Since 1927, Also Withdraws From Other Tournaments.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., second ranking woman player of the country, member of the Wightman Cup team since 1927 and the leading rival of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody for the honors in the forthcoming women's national championship at Forest Hills, has been forced out of tennis for the rest of the season owing to poor health, and will return to her home Sunday evening.

Reports of Miss Jacobs's weakened condition, which had emanated from abroad prior to her return last week and which were repeated from Montclair, N. J., where she is staying temporarily, were confirmed yesterday afternoon by the California girl at Seabright, N. J.

Questioned after playing a practice match on the courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, where she was expected to lead a brilliant field into action next week in the club's invitation tournament, Miss Jacobs stated:

"I might as well admit that I am through for this year, anyhow. My endurance is gone. When I was in England I had a little trouble with pleurisy and quinsy."

Prentice Advised of Withdrawal.

Miss Jacobs stated that she would continue to play tennis for her amusement but that she would not undergo the strain of tournament competition again until her strength returns. Bernon S. Prentice, president of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, has been advised of her withdrawal from the invitation tournament there, and she will be missing also from the lists in both the East Hampton tournament, starting Aug. 4, and the national championship, beginning Aug. 18.

Mrs. John F. Ballou of Montclair, N. J., whose guest Miss Jacobs has been since her return from her annual visit to Europe, stated yesterday that the California girl had contracted an infection of the throat while on the Riviera in France.

"A physician in England," said Mrs. Ballou, "advised her to refrain from tournaments, as her resistance was low. When she arrived in New York a physician on Long Island also advised her to take a rest. The English physician wired Miss Jacobs's mother in California, warning her not to permit her daughter to play for a while. As a result, Mrs. Jacobs wired Helen, and it is for this reason that she has withdrawn from play."

Lost in Final Round.

The throat infection which Miss Jacobs contracted on the Riviera forced her to withdraw from several tournaments, but by the time of the French championships, late in May, she felt herself sufficiently mended in health to compete and entered for the title. Her victories over Mrs. Phoebe Watson, the strongest player in England, and Señorita de Alvarez of Spain, whom she defeated at 6—1, 6—0, appeared to indicate that she had fully recovered, although Mrs. Moody allowed her only three games in the final.

Crossing to England, Miss Jacobs engaged in the Wightman Cup matches and lost to Mrs. Watson at 5—7, 6—3, 6—1, before defeating Miss Joan Fry at 6—0, 6—3, and less than two weeks later was overwhelmed by Fräulein Cecilie Aussem of Germany at 6—2, 6—1 in the English championships. This decisive defeat was totally unexpected, in spite of the improvement the German champion has shown this year, and apparently pointed toward a slump in Miss Jacobs's game.

On her return to the United States the California girl gave no inkling that she was contemplating retiring from the courts for the remainder of the season, and it was expected that she would play at both Seabright and East Hampton before making another bid for the national crown at Forest Hills.

Miss Jacobs has ranked second to Mrs. Moody since 1928 and was given the sobriquet of "Helen the Second." She first came into prominence on the courts in 1927 when she won a ranking at No. 4 and played on the Wightman Cup team for the first time. As the No. 3 singles player she lost to Miss Betty Nuthall at 6—3, 2—6, 6—1.

In 1928, when she was advanced to No. 2 in the ranking, Miss Jacobs defeated Miss Nuthall in the Wightman Cup matches at Wimbledon by the convincing margin of 6—3, 6—1, and last year repeated her victory at Forest Hills, but lost to Mrs. Watson. In the 1929 Wimbledon championships she reached the final and there was beaten by Mrs. Moody.

U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM FACES FRANCE TODAY

LOTT WILL MEET COCHET

FRENCH PLEASED BY DRAW

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, July 24.—French tennis fans openly boasted tonight while the native officials agreed with them in less boisterous fashion that the luck of the draw bids fair to bring France two victories in the opening pair of singles matches of the challenge round for the Davis Cup tomorrow afternoon.

Big Bill Tilden, ace of the United States team, drew Jean Borotra, the bounding Basque, for the opening match which will start on the courts at the Roland Garros Stadium at 2:15 P. M. (9:15 A. M. New York Time).

George Lott, Chicago youth who will help the American veteran with the singles burden, faces Henri Cochet, world ranking star, in the second match. The doubles teams, which will be drawn after the matches tomorrow, will clash on Saturday with the final singles, Lott against Borotra and Tilden against Cochet, on Sunday afternoon.

Cochet Outstanding Favorite.

While the French are bubbling over with optimism, the American colony feels sure that Tilden's oft proven supremacy over Borotra—seven consecutive victories on grass and hard courts—will be shown again tomorrow, giving the challengers an even break in victories for the opening day. No one, either French or American, appears to grant Lott a chance against Cochet.

The French are satisfied with the draw for if Tilden had been picked to meet Cochet on the opening day he would have been conceded an even chance of victory. As the matter now rests, Tilden will oppose Cochet on Sunday and it is felt that by then Tilden will be tired from his match against Borotra while Cochet will be fresh as he has drawn an easy opponent for his opening match.

Incidentally, four out of five Frenchmen believe that Tilden's spell over Borotra will be broken tomorrow. They point for support to the bounding one's duel with the top ranking American at Wimbledon where Borotra evened the count in sets at 2-all and led in the fifth set four games to two without the advantage of the ten minute rest which he will get tomorrow if the match goes beyond three sets. Tilden pulled that battle out of the fire but the French do not believe that he can do it again.

Tilden appears to feel heavily the responsibility of his eleventh hour selection as a member of the American Davis Cup squad. Likewise the morale of the younger members of the team seems hardly to have been improved by the selection of Tilden. Although they openly welcomed Big Bill into the fold the youngsters seem to feel that the United States should sink or swim with the youthful element in the 1930 play.

Allison Is Unimpressive.

Wilmer Allison, partner of John Van Ryn in America's first string doubles combination, made a particularly poor showing in practice today and the shoddy work of the young Texan buoyed the French up to the pitch where they no longer are willing to concede the doubles victory to the United States. They likely will give Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus, the French-second string doubles pair, orders to go against the American doubles team.

Tilden and Lott again played three hard sets against each other in today's practice and Tilden once more outclassed the Chicago boy.

Cochet played five sets against Boussus and the French professional, Martin Plaa. Henri, at the top of his form, reeled off thirty games against the youngster and professional who shared the court together and could only win seven games.

The only serene player on the courts was Cochet and he seemed blissfully unconscious of what was at stake either for France or for himself. He seems likely to electrify the crowded stands tomorrow with a complete reversal of the form that brought about his defeat at Wimbledon.

In the meantime the box office cash registers clicked along merrily. The advance sale already has passed the million franc point, breaking all records since the cup came back to France in 1927.

Police, Coast Guard and Private Boats Go to Rescue of Small Craft When Squall Breaks.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., July 24.—Police, Coast Guard and private boats went to the rescue of smaller yachts as a heavy squall swept Long Island Sound, bringing rain in torrents and making visibility almost impossible, as the fourth regatta of the Larchmont Yacht Club's thirty-second annual race week series was in its final stage here today.

Fortunately, however, the wind kept down to a moderate blow. The squall broke just after the New York Yacht Club forty-footers, some of the Larchmont O Class entrants and the Class M boats had crossed the finish line. Before this the wind had died out entirely and within five minutes, while dark clouds crept from the north, the wind, preceding the rain, came out of the northwest and increased rapidly.

Soon rain was coming down in torrents and it grew so dark that power boats lying near the committee boat put on lights.

Wind Drops in Half Hour.

Within half an hour the wind dropped and for several minutes the boats still racing drifted in a straight downpour of rain. Then the wind shifted to the south, bringing clear weather and the sun.

From the other side of the Sound came small sloops such as the Atlantic one-designs and international star boats in tow. A police boat and the Coast Guard cutter 204 brought in four sloops. Many private yachts also picked up young skippers out in the deep water and brought them safely through the storm.

The entire fleet of junior one-design boats was picked up by George Chapel, junior sailing instructor, in the Stormalong. None of these small boats was permitted to ride out the squall, though as soon as it lifted several skippers left tow and set sail again before the Stormalong had reached the Larchmont shore.

No Serious Damage Done.

Although the squall was threatening there was not enough wind to cause any serious damage. There were no reports tonight of lost masts or torn sails, such as there were after last Monday's terrific blow.

Bob Mahlstedt's Larchmont O Mirage was first to finish in her class. She came home before the squall broke and sailed for her anchorage in Larchmont Harbor. The second O Class boat, Robert Jacob's Nimbus, and William Bell's Mistral, winner in the N. Y. Y. C. forty-footer class, were the next of the larger boats to finish, all coming in under a good wind.

Other boats crossed the finish line in almost no wind at all. Kenneth Whiting sailed C. B. Alker's Nautilus to victory in the ten-meter class just before George M. Pynchon brought his Istalena over the line to defeat two other Class M boats.

Floyd Carlisle's Avatar, the second Class M sloop to finish, went immediately to her tender, Mr. Carlisle's black schooner Michabo anchored outside the club harbor, and put in astern as the squall broke.

Wood Visits Miss Carstairs, Rival in Harmsworth Race

GRAVENHURST, Ont., July 24 (Canadian Press).—Gar Wood of Detroit, holder of the Harmsworth Trophy for speed boat racing, visited Miss Marion B. Carstairs, the Englishwoman whose speed boats Estelle IV and V will oppose his at the races in September, yesterday.

For the international competition Wood is building a new boat, Miss America IX, almost the same as his Miss America VIII, with which he attained a speed of ninety-three miles an hour to win the Harmsworth Trophy last year.

After a brief tryout, Miss Carstairs's new boat, Estelle V, was pronounced satisfactory by her designer, A. H. Hawker, and was removed from the water in order that changes might be made in the exhaust stacks.

Painting Also Finished, and America's Cup Boat May Go Overboard Today at City Island.

Conditions of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club's two-day run from Greenwich, Conn., next week were announced yesterday by the club's race committee, composed of A. E. Luders, chairman; Edward McFarlan, Cornelius W. Middleton, J. R. Johnston and B. F. Fitch. This is the dual event that will take the yachts across the Sound to Port Jefferson, L. I., next Thursday, and from there to New London the following day, affording them an opportunity to arrive in New London in time for the rendezvous of the New York Yacht Club cruise.

Only yachts with cruising accommodations will be eligible, but that would include Resolute and Vanitie, the old America's Cup boats, should their owners decide to make the runs.

The start the first day will be at 10 A. M. off Great Captain Island, and the finish at a mark off the entrance to Port Jefferson Harbor. The distance is 24 miles. The run to New London will start at 8 A. M., the distance being 49½ miles, and the finish will be at Sarah's Ledge.

Provision has been made for classes of schooners and sloops, including the New York Yacht Club "thirties," the international eight-meters, first division of the handicap class, ten-meters, Larchmont O boats, N. Y. Y. C. "forties" and "fifties," twelve-meters and Class M sloops.

Whirlwind, the America's Cup defense yacht, which is having her mast again stepped further forward to make her handle easier and to do away with the drag of her weather helm, may be put back in the water today at Robert Jacob's shipyard in City Island. After her mast was taken out, she was hauled out on land to give her underbody a smoothing and painting.

While out of water, the work of building a new mast step in her and doing away with the old was carried on by ship's carpenters. The painting and carpenter work were finished yesterday.

When she is put overboard the mast will be set up again and the yacht rigged. She may be out under sail tomorrow morning. It is planned to give her several tests on the Sound before taking her East to New London next week for the New York Yacht Club cruise, on which the cup boats will compete during the squadron runs.

ENGLAND PLAYS TODAY IN 4TH CRICKET TEST

MANCHESTER, England, July 24 (Canadian Press).—England and Australia meet again in a cricket test match at the Old Trafford Grounds beginning tomorrow. The match will last for four days, and is the fourth of the series of tests this season for the "Ashes," representing the international cricket championship now held by England. Each country has won a game, while one has been drawn.

England started off with an impressive victory at Nottingham, but was crushed under a mountain of runs at Lord's and was lucky to get a draw at Leeds. The English selection committee has been experimenting with new players. Prince Duleepsinhji earned a place on England elevens by a great 173 at Lord's. R. W. V. Robins, after a good showing at Nott's and a failure at Lord's, was dropped at Leeds, but has been reinstated.

The committee has invited three new men to be ready to play tomorrow. They are I. A. R. Peebles, Middlesex and Oxford University bowler; M. S. Nichols, Essex professional all-rounder, and T. W. Goddard, Gloucestershire profsseional bowler. Among others chosen are A. P. F. Chapman, captain; Jack Hobbs and Herbert Sutcliffe, England's opening pair; Wally Hammond, Maurice Tate and Maurice Leyland.

The Australians have not yet announced their team, but it is reported W. H. Ponsford and A. Fairfax, who were absent at Leeds, will be on deck.

JERSEY CITY SEES NIGHT LEAGUE GAME

NEWARK BEATS HOME TEAM

Drives in Seven Runs in Tenth Inning to Conquer Rival by 18 to 11.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

Night baseball invaded the metropolitan area for the first time as an attraction of organized baseball when International League teams representing Jersey City and Newark engaged in a contest upon a brilliantly illuminated field in Jersey City last night.

A gathering of 10,000, including a host of men prominent in the two major leagues, witnessed the event. It jammed the grand stand, but did not quite pack the park to capacity, a fact largely attributed to the rainstorm which had flooded West Side Park during the afternoon and had made the playing of the game uncertain up to 7 o'clock in the evening.

But once the word passed that the game would be played, all Jersey City seemed to make a belated rush for the park to attend the inaugural.

Jersey City, in a grand midnight rally, counted two runs to tie the score. But not even the high-powered lights were sufficient to lighten the gloom of the crowd that followed when, in the upper half of the tenth, the Newark Bears drove in seven runs to win the game, 18 to 11.

Col. Ruppert Is Interested.

Prominent among those in the crowd was Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, who, sitting in a box behind first base, appeared to be taking a keen interest in the show. He stated, however, that he thought that night baseball was still a trifle too early in its development to pass judgment upon it or determine how far it will go in supplanting baseball under sunlight.

"From what I heard and what I see here," said the Colonel, "I imagine night baseball will prove a great benefit to the minor leagues, and if it becomes definitely popular in the minors I don't see why some day it should not become part of major league baseball."

Others prominent in the majors who sat in the crowded stands were James J. Tierney, secretary of the Giants; Dave Bancroft and Irish Meusel, Giant coaches; Manager Jewel Ens and Max Carey of the Pirates; Business Manager Dave Driscoll of the Robins, and about a score of players from the Giants, Robins, Pirates and Reds, all of whom at present are engaged in games at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field.

Baseball in Strange Setting.

As for the spectacle itself, though it obviously placed baseball in a strange setting, making it look something like a cross between a midsummer night's festival at a public playground and a Tom Thumb golf course, it cannot be said that the mechanical phases of the game suffered to any extent.

Performing under the glare of lamps totaling 300,000 watts and illuminating both the stand and the playing field sufficiently for all to see what was going on, the players at no time appeared to be in the dark as to the location of the ball, save in the sixth inning, when Arndt Jorgens, Jersey City catcher, propelled a homer over the left-field fence and into the outer darkness beyond the park.

Jess Petty, former major league star left-hander, pitching for Newark, appeared to have no difficulty locating the plate and deceiving the opposing batters during the early innings, and in the sixth, when the one-time cunning of the silver fox suddenly deserted him, the Jersey City batsmen appeared to have no difficulty gauging the ball and hammering it to all corners of the field, until Petty was forced to follow Jorgens's homer beyond the glare of the lights. It being essentially a Jersey City crowd, this pleased the gathering tremendously.

From the grand stand behind home plate the outfielders could not be discerned as clearly as they might, due chiefly to the fact that their uniforms seemed to blend into the coloring of the advertising signs that grace the fences of the left and right field bleachers, but the outfielders themselves never appeared to have any trouble getting a clear vision of the ball. In fact Walker, Jersey City centre fielder, made several fine catches of drives that soared deep into his territory.

Flashlights Startle Crowd.

But what seemed to startle the crowd most were the intermittent explosions of flashlights as newsphotographers kept snapping their cameras to take pictures of plays at third and first.

Toward the latter part of the game, however, some of the players did seem to bog down slightly under the strain and several plays were missed that obviously ought to have been made. It was noted that low line drives to the outfield seemed to give the outfielders the most trouble, but that flies that soared high in the air were easily seen.

Henry J. Gaisman, inventor of Kodak's autographic device, AutoStrop Razor and Probak Safety Razors and the shock-absorbing Probak double-edge blades.

He banished bending shock from the double-edge blade

HERE'S the reason for Probak's swiftly won popularity. Henry J. Gaisman—inventive genius—famous authority on safety razors and blades—discovered and banished bending shock and edge-distortion. After years of experiment he perfected a double-edge blade that always lays its keen edges straight and true along the guard.

Probak's butterfly channeling and duo-tempered steel absorb all bending shock and strain. Distortion vanishes before it reaches the shaving edges. Prove the amazing difference. Buy a package of guaranteed Probaks. Use two in your double-edge razor (old or new model). Compare them with your present blades. Giants Defeat Pirates; Robins Divide but Keep League Lead; Yanks Triumph

HIT BY LINDSTROM SINKS THE PIRATES

By JOHN DREBINGER.

The Giants and Pirates, opening a five-game series at the Polo Grounds yesterday, had an excellent opportunity of availing themselves of a first-hand demonstration of night baseball when a gigantic cloud blotted out the sun a good twenty minutes before a deluge of rain enveloped the scene.

However, as there were no lights, there was no experiment whatever, and after time had been duly called because of darkness in the upper half of the seventh inning, the downpour several minutes later finished the job, and all idea of further play was abandoned. Officially the end of the game reverted to the close of the sixth inning.

It was all very unfortunate and to none more so than the Pirates, for, back in the first inning when it was still light enough for any one to see without the aid of a lantern, Freddy Lindstrom had stroked a home run against the upper left-field tier.

One Tally Decides Issue.

Subsequently that one tally decided the issue, thereby giving the Giants, with Carl Hubbell on the mound, a 1-0 victory over Remy Kremer and all of Remy's Pirate pals.

But what made the Pirates doubly annoyed was the fact that had the affair gone just a few minutes further it is quite possible they might have made a number of serious alterations in the result. Indeed, at the moment when hostilities came to an abrupt halt, it looked reasonably certain that Hubbell's position in striving to maintain his one-run margin had suddenly become untenable.

For six innings the left-handed Hubbell had held the Pirates in a grip of iron, holding them to one hit and allowing only one man to advance as far as second. Once, in the fifth, Hubbell had a close call, as the Pirate on second seemed well on his way toward home only to be turned back when Roettger turned in a spectacular catch of a mighty wallop in right centre by Suhr.

Pirates Attack Vigorously.

But in the seventh the Pirates went back to attack with even greater vigor. With one out, Grantham singled, Comorosky doubled, and when Traynor drew a pass the bases were filled. But at this tense moment came darkness as black as night. Rain followed swiftly, so that what the Pirates might have done to Hubbell and the Giants will ever remain a mystery. Needless to say, it is not one that will cause John McGraw to waste many moments trying to solve.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24 (AP).—The Cubs defeated the Phils today, 19 to 15, in a free-hitting game. Each team made seventeen hits, but the Cubs took advantage of the early Philly pitchers to pile up a 13-to-3 lead in the first three innings. In the eighth the Phillies scored seven runs but fell three short at tying the count.

There were many arguments throughout the battle and Umpire Jorda sent Klein, Hurst and Thompson to the clubhouse at the end of the eighth inning.

ROBINS BLANK REDS AFTER BEING BEATEN

RAIN CURTAILS NIGHTCAP

By ROSCOE McGOWEN.

A pall of darkness that spread over Ebbets Field at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, making the players only dim shapes on the field, ended the second game of a double-header between the Robins and Reds in the fifth inning, with the league leaders on the long end of a 9—0 score after losing the opener, 4—3. The even break, while the Cubs won, reduced the Robins' lead to half a game.

A downpour, accompanied by lightning flashes and roars of thunder, sent more than 20,000 fans scurrying for cover within ten minutes after Umpire Scott stopped the contest.

An exhibition of team tactics designed to speed the game into the official four and one-half innings to insure victory was staged by Del Bissonette, Glenn Wright and Eddie Moore, when the Robins took their turn at bat in the fourth inning holding a two-run lead.

With the idea, of course, of getting out as quickly as possible, Bissonette tapped the first pitch out to Frey and trotted leisurely to first. The Red pitcher reluctantly threw him out. Wright followed by swinging wickedly three times, the final pitch being rather wide.

Moore Lays Down Bunt.

Moore laid down a nice bunt and then, starting full speed for first, fell flat on his face. Stripp deliberately dropped Frey's easy throw, but Moore promptly got himself trapped off first and achieved the third out in spite of the Reds.

Babe Phelps, who held the Reds to three hits in the five innings he had to work, set Heilmann, Ford and Durocher down in order in the fifth to make the game official.

The rain still held off and, although darkness was descending, the Robins went to bat and scored seven runs on six hits and two bases on balls. Al Lopez, who began the inning with a beautiful bunt for a hit, drove in the last two runs with a crashing double against the right field wall.

The Robins got their two other runs in the first on a single by Frederick, Babe Herman's triple, which landed near the flagpole, and Rube Bressler's single.

Robins Miss Two Chances.

The opening game, in which the defeat was charged against Dazzy Vance, was a tough one for the Robins to lose, as they missed two great opportunities in the eighth and ninth to win.

Vance gave up two runs in the first inning when Curt Walker bounced a single off Vance's glove and Bob Meusel scored Walker with a double. With two out, Harry Heilmann drove Meusel home with a single to centre. In the second, again with two out, Ray Kolp, Red pitcher, hit a homer into the right field seats and Dazzy was removed.

Jim Elliott replaced Vance and pitched fine ball, the Reds getting their fourth run in the fifth on Sukeforth's single, a pass to Kolp and two sacrifices.

Bissonette hit over the right field wall in the fourth after Herman's single, and in the eighth Brooklyn tallied once on two walks and singles by Gilbert and Herman. Ike Boone hit into a double play to end the inning.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 24 (AP).—Behind the splendid pitching of Ira Smith, Rochester scored a 9-to-2 victory over the Buffalo Bisons today. Smith blanked the Herd for the first seven innings, but in the eighth successive doubles by Sax and Mueller accounted for the visitors' two rallies.

SMITH OF BRAVES CHECKS THE CARDS

Wins by 5-4 Despite Hafey's 2 Homers, Double and Single for Perfect Day at Bat.

BOSTON, July 24 (AP).—Despite the efforts of Chick Hafey, St. Louis Cardinals' left fielder, who hit two home runs, a double and a single in four trips to the plate, Bob Smith pitched the Boston Braves to a 5-to-4 victory over the visitors today in the first game of the current series with the Westerners.

Hafey drove in three of the visitors' four runs. His two homers brought his four-bagger total to fifteen for the season. Walter Berger, sensational Braves' recruit, was another who had a perfect day at bat. His twenty-seventh home run of the season, which came in the first off Haines, brought Maranville in ahead of him. Haines was charged with the loss of the game.

YANKS WIN AS RUTH HITS 36TH HOME RUN

SHERID TAMES TIGERS, 5-2

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.
Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, July 24.—The transfer of Yankee activities to the City of the Straits today was featured by the resumption of Babe Ruth's statistical work, namely his concoction of No. 36 in the home-run drive he has been waging since he hurt his left thumb some three weeks ago.

The Yankees, in tune with the Babe's swinging, resumed their winning ways, adding the opening game of the series with the Tigers, 5 to 2. The game was a pitching duel between Roy Sherid and Guy Cantrell and the Yanks won because every one of their eight hits took part in the scoring of runs.

The Yankees wasted not a single wallop, unless it was waste for the Babe to cuff a Cantrell curve into the right-field bleachers in the eighth inning with the bases empty and the Yankees already holding a 3-2 lead. They did not need the home run nor the tally they gained in the ninth on Dickey's double and Lary's single, but those surplus runs were welcomed with loud acclaim from the Yankee dugout.

Ruth's homer put him twelve games and seventeen days ahead of his 1927 program. That year his thirty-sixth homer came on Aug. 10, in the 106th game of the season.

Reese's Play Is a Feature.

Besides the Babe's homer, the chief features were Sherid's steady pitching and the tremendously improved play of Jimmie Reese at second base. Reese was a tower of strength, particularly as pivot man in the double plays which slapped down the Tiger rallies in the third and fifth.

Lary, too, came in for kind words from the management. In the eighth, with a man on base, the acrobatic shortstop turned his back on the infield and scampered far into centre field to capture Stone's low fly.

The game was close from the start until the moment Ruth hit his homer. The Yanks had no hits at all until Lazzeri singled to centre with two out in the fourth. Gehrig followed with a fly to midcentre, which fell safe because Funk had come all the way in from the bleachers and neither Stone nor Koenig could get under the ball in time. Lazzeri, running hard all the way, scored from first on the single.

Hayworth's Single Ties It.

Detroit promptly tied it in their half on McManus's pass, his steal, and Hayworth's single. Dickey opened the fifth with a single. Lary followed suit, and when Funk kicked Lary's hit away Dickey scored and Lary took third. Combs's single scored Lary.

Stone's long double in the sixth scored Alexander from first base and created considerable tension, but that was the last of the Tiger scoring, whereas Ruth had not even started hitting homers yet.

Detroit fans have become quite fond of Koenig and Hoyt, both of whom have given eminent satisfaction in their work here. Bucky Harris celebrated the arrival of the Yankees in town by promoting Koenig to his old batting order position, No. 2.

MY CORNWALL BOY SCORES

By BRYAN FIELD.

The best field of the six at Empire City yesterday started in the first race and James Butler's popular silks came down in front only to be followed by the first disqualification of the meeting. Nine juvenile fillies matched their speed, and Musing, the Butler horse, backed into favoritism at 7 to 5, was considerably the best of the others as the race was run.

Musing was ridden by Raymond Workman, and it was the rousing finish Workman put on with Musing that caused the disqualification. He gave his horse the call in the stretch when Joanne E. was in the lead with Regina H. second. At the same moment Jockey Ed Kennedy on Flamma challenged. He went up straight, to the outside of the two leaders, while Workman and Musing, further out, bore in with terrific force.

Kennedy, who was knocked from the saddle when Flamma was caromed into Joanne E. and Regina H., clung to the mane of his horse, although hanging with his feet dragging on the track. If Kennedy had let go he no doubt would have been trampled on by the horses following behind, but he scrambled back into the saddle and, with extraordinary coolness, rode his horse out to the finish, although he was far out of the money and finished seventh.

Kennedy Claims Foul.

Meanwhile Workman had ridden Musing on to win by two lengths from Joanne E., with Regina H. third. As soon as he could get to the steward's stand Kennedy claimed foul. Charles Kurtsinger and R. Wholey, riders of Joanne E. and Regina H., respectively, also claimed foul.

Action was not long in following, Musing's number being taken down and the others moved up. Choisan was third in the new placing.

The thunderstorm which broke over the track later in the afternoon added excitement for the spectators and gave plenty of trouble for the placing judges, not to speak of the uncomfortable time the riders and horses had. It was so dark when the field paraded to the post for the fifth race that the saddle cloth numbers could not be seen without the aid of binoculars. In the backstretch at the start even colors were indistinguishable. Then the rain came down in sheets and blotted out horses and riders.

When next the horses were seen they were in the stretch, a quarter from home. It was impossible to tell who was in front and even when the field splashed past the judges the numbers were almost impossible to see.

Maurice Placed Second.

The judges held a long consultation and posted the numbers of My Cornwall Boy as the winner and Calamity as the second horse. No third was posted, but after further consultation, the numbers were changed. My Cornwall Boy was left as the winner, but Maurice and Wig were established as the second and third horses, respectively.

There are few tracks where a horse ten years old and long past his racing prime can win a race, but the Yonkers course became one when old Ceylon Prince scored in the Equality Purse.

This ancient gelding has been a game and sturdy racer for W. C. Clancy these many years and he paid 12 to 1 to win yesterday. Two lengths back of him finished Torpointer, while Seta was third. St. Otis, the 4 to 5 favorite, was lucky to get fifth. Ceylon Prince went to the front on the bend and won easily.

OWEGO TRACK MARK SET BY BETTER WIN

OWEGO, N. Y., July 24.—One of the best programs ever presented in the Orange County circuit races pleased a large crowd today and it was a day for the favorites, three out of four winning. The exception was the 2:08 pace in which Highland Scott, the Arden Homestead Stable star, disappointed his admirers by placing third when Better Win captured this race in three straight heats. The winner's best time was 2:04¾, by which he set a track record.

In the two-year-old trot, Protector from the K Stable of Auburn scored another victory, his sixth out of seven starts this season.

In the three-year-old trot, Peter Ingomar another favorite had little trouble in defeating his two nearest rivals, Guy June and Enchantress.

F. S. Righeimer Jr. won three matches and lost one, J. F. Potter and J. R. Huffman split even in four matches, and C. C. Shears dropped three out of four for the Americans. For England, J. C. Lloyd won four matches and lost none, Major A. D. Pearce won three and lost one, M. J. Badington-Smith won one and lost three and Major P. G. Doyne lost all four of his matches.

MY DANDY IS FIRST IN TEXAS HANDICAP

CHICAGO, July 24 (AP).—My Dandy, the 5-year-old gelded son of Porte Drape—Sceptre and Staff from the stable of W. C. and W. E. Reichert, scored his second straight victory when he was home first in the Texas Handicap, the best offering on today's program at Arlington Park. Pansy Walker, from the Three D's Stock Farm, was second, with Morsel, from the Le Mar Stock Farm, third. Dinah Did Upset was the only other starter. It was one of the hardest fought races staged at this track.

The event was a dash over the six furlongs for 3-year-olds and upward, and was worth $1,300 to the winning stable. The six furlongs were covered in 1:10 4-5, just one-fifth of a second slower than the track record established a year ago by Brown Wisdom. My Dandy paid $5.30 for $2 in the mutuels.

My Dandy, starting from the outside position, was forced to race wide while setting the pace to the first quarter and was in third place entering the stretch. He responded gamely to hard urging, however, gradually wearing down the leaders, but was doing his best to win by half a length.

Scratched—Play 'Em and Show.
Musing was much the best. She broke a bit slowly, was rated along to the stretch, where she was brought to the outside, swerved over to the inside, interfering with Joanne E. and Regina H., for which she was disqualified for fouling. Joanne E. raced along in front in the early part, displayed good speed and held on well. Regina H. did not have her usual early speed and tired badly after being bumped. Cho-San was kept with the pace all the way. Bright Comet had no excuse. Flamma lacked speed.

Ceylon Prince, showing startling improvement over her recent races, moved up very fast in the backstretch, came around the field and, taking the lead, won going away. Torpointer broke fast, showed speed for three furlongs, was crowded back, but came again in the stretch to finish fast. Seta trailed far back in the early part, but closed a big gap. St. Otis was never a serious contender. Attamart had early speed. Fire Opal also had plenty of early speed.

LIKELY LADY FIRST AT STAMFORD SHOW

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 24.—Likely Lady, the grand mare from the stable of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Palmer of Grosse Pointe, Mich., captured the $500 three-gaited saddle-horse stake for horses over 15 and not exceeding 15.2 hands, at the thirtieth annual Stamford horse show today, and thereby established herself as the most likely winner of the Grand National saddle championship on the final day of the exhibition.

Likely Lady will have to meet and defeat Star Blossom, which won the stake for Charles F. Hubbs in the smaller division yesterday, but unless there are unseen developments, the Garden champion hardly can be defeated. This victory made Likely Lady the horse of the show.

Second money of $100 went to the Polka Dot Farm's chestnut mare Lady Mildred and third of $75 to Edwin C. Feigenspan's chestnut mare Prudence.

Wood Pigeon Is Winner.

There were several attractive events for the hunter division. Hunter hacks, judged by hunter and saddle judges, were first shown under saddle and then were put once over the hunter course in the ring. There was a big field out for the money and the competition was close.

First honors were taken by Miss Page Lewis-Stranahan with her black mare Wood Pigeon, which thereby accounted for her second blue ribbon to date. Second went to Bernard F. Gimbel's young gelding Trolly and third to Miss Elizabeth K. Downes's bay gelding Sport Model.

Only one event was run over the outside course today, this being for registered thoroughbred hunters. There was a small but strong field, although performances did not average high. Two had clean scores and their work over the jumps was confirmed later in the judging for conformation in the ring. Honors were taken by the nice bay mare King's Rifle, shown by William S. Gray Jr. of Greenwich, which was placed on conformation over Miss Page Lewis-Stranahan's bay gelding Watch Hand. Third went to the Warfield Farm's well-known hunter, Prince Charming II.

Trolly Takes a Blue.

Most of the morning session was devoted to the breeding classes, in which interest is keen among the hunting devotees through a large country hereabouts. Classes were generally small. In the event for 4-year-olds suitable to become hunters, the chestnut gelding Trolly brought home another blue for the Bernard F. Gimbel Stable of Port Chester, N. Y., later taking a red in hunter hacks.

Minot Howard of Port Chester, star of the amateur show riders, accounted for two blues during the morning with his fine hunter Katinka. The big chestnut mare topped the class for thoroughbred brood mares and then gained the honors in the class for thoroughbred brood mares judged on suitability to produce hunters. In both events she was placed over Joseph A. Hale's chestnut mare Princess Edgar. Alhaja, Mrs. Harry Frank Jr.'s good jumper, was placed at the top of the class for mares, not thoroughbreds, suitable to produce hunters.

Thoroughbred type saddle horses over 14.2 brought out a good entry, with the blue going to Henry L. Salisbury's chestnut gelding Red Harvey and the red to the Green Valley Stable's imported chestnut gelding Bachelor's Hope. After this class had been judged it was discovered that the ribbons had been awarded by the saddle judges, whereas conditions for the event called for judgment by the hunter judges. The class will be rejudged on Saturday at 12:20 P. M.

LIEUT. JONES SHOWS WAY

By VERNON VAN NESS.

Special to The New York Times.

RUMSON, N. J., July 24.—The United States Army polo team, resuming its game against Jock Whitney's speedy Greentree combination in the semi-final of the National Junior Polo championship today, won its way into the final round by triumphing, 19 to 7.

The match had gone five periods on Tuesday when halted by rain, with Army leading at the time at 9 to 5.

By virtue of the victory Army meets the Whippany River Riders for the junior championship on Sunday instead of Saturday through a revision of the draw.

As a result of the draw for the Herbert Memorial Cup tourney, the loser of the Army-Greentree match today was pitted against the Rumson four in the second match of the series and, of course, Greentree drew the assignment. However, when plan was halted Tuesday and it became obvious that one or the other of the teams would have to double up today, it was agreed that only six chukkers would be played and this was adhered to.

Greentree Has 9-6 Margin.

At the end of the six sessions the Greentrees had a margin of 9 to 6 after having conceded three goals to Rumson. Thus Greentree broke even on the day but lost its most cherished desire to gain the final round for the national junior title.

Greentree and Old Oaks now will meet in the third or semi-final match of the Herbert Memorial series on Sunday.

Chief interest in the play today naturally centred around the Army-Greentree battle. Lieutenant McDonald Jones, riding at No. 1 for Army, showed the way throughout the three periods today, again playing the chief rôle of scorer to the passing game of Captain Peter P. Rodes and Captain C. A. Wilkinson. Counting the game in which Army triumphed over Elkwood in the opening match of the junior title play, Lieutenant Jones scored eighteen goals in sixteen periods of polo.

Greentree being a 19-goal combination, was forced to give three goals to Rumson and had some little difficulty at first in making up this disadvantage. However, by the end of the third period the riders had caught their rivals and evened the score, and they went on after that in a methodical manner to win.

Dominate Greentree Play.

The play of the Greentrees was dominated once more by the combination of Cooley, Whitney and Iglehart. Whitney played a smashing game from the third period on, whereas Iglehart had done his best offensive work previously.

The line-ups:

Junior Championship.

U. S. Army (19).	Greentree (7).
2—Capt. C. Wilkinson	2—J. C. Cooley

SCORE BY PERIODS.

Army	3	2	3	0	1	4	1	5	—19

Goals—Army: Jones 9, Wilkinson 7, Rodes 3; Greentree: Whitney 2, Cooley, Iglehart 4. Referee—Captain Wesley J. White. Time of periods—8 of 7½ minutes each (5 played Tuesday, 3 played today).

Herbert Memorial Tournament.

2—J. C. Cooley	2—Capt. C. Gerhardt
3—S. B. Iglehart	3—B. K. Gatins

Goals—Greentree: Whitney 4, Cooley 2, Iglehart 3; Rumson: Gerhardt 2, Gatins 1, by handicap 3. Referee—W. J. White. Time of periods—6 of 7½ minutes each.

LINE-UP FOR POLO REMAINS UNCERTAIN

Selections for Sunday's Test Match Expected to Be Announced Today.

A heavy shower early yesterday morning resulted in the postponement of the polo matches listed for the Meadow Brook Club last night, leaving the Hempstead and Wheatley Cups games still in their semi-final stage.

It was not decided when these matches will be played, the arrangements depending to a great extent on the course of play at Rumson in the junior tournament, but it is probable that they will form some part of tomorrow's weekly Saturday games, to which the public has been invited this year.

The line-up for Sunday's test match at Fleischmann Field has not been announced, this being expected today. It is still uncertain whether young Earle A. S. Hopping will return to action on Sunday, following his bad spill at Piping Rock last Wednesday.

The young internationalist remained at the Piping Rock Club overnight after his fall and yesterday remained away from business, driving into the city late yesterday afternoon with his father. He was still stiff and sore from his shaking up, but experienced no other ill effects and apparently requires only time to recover. It is regarded as possible he will be included in Sunday's test.

The arrival date of the international visitors, the remarkable family team of the Ashtons from Australia, was announced yesterday by the United States Polo Association. They are aboard the S. S. Minnewaska and are expected on Monday. The four brothers who form the team, James H. Jr., Philip S., Geoffrey G. and Robert R., are accompanied by their father, James H. Ashton Sr.

Hornsby Not to Join Cubs in East.

CHICAGO, July 24 (AP).—Rogers Hornsby, the Cubs' injured second baseman, did not join his mates today at Philadelphia as he had intended. An examination of his left ankle, fractured in the morning game Memorial Day, revealed almost complete recovery, but it was decided additional rest would be beneficial. He will join the club when it returns from the East next week.

Germans Bar Miss Aussem From U. S. Title Tennis Play

BERLIN, July 24 (AP).—The German Tennis Association today refused Miss Cecilie Aussem permission to compete in the American national tennis championships on the ground that the American event coincides in date with an international women's team match between Germany and Great Britain at Berlin.

Miss Aussem had planned to compete in the United States in mixed doubles with Bill Tilden and in women's doubles with Miss Elizabeth Ryan.

2 ON ENGLISH FOUR GET NEW HANDICAPS

Balding, No. 2, Is Raised From 7 to 8 and Capt. George, No. 1, Cut to 7.

LONDON, July 24 (AP).—Two of the British players on the international squad which is going to America for the Cup matches in September have had their handicaps altered by the Hurlingham Club, it was announced today.

Gerald Balding, who has been so successful at No. 2 in the test matches, has had his rating increased from seven to eight goals, and Captain Richard George, the latest choice for No. 1, is reduced from eight to seven.

Thus the total rating of the British line-up, as it appeared in the test match yesterday, remains unchanged. With Captain C. T. I. (Pat) Roark, No. 3 man, and Lewis Lacey, back, each rated at nine goals, the total is 33 goals.

Further changes affected the Australian team of the four brothers Ashton, now en route to America. Captain James Ashton is raised from six to seven goals, and the youngest of the four from four to five goals. As the other two brothers each are seven-goal men, the team total now is 26.

Strongest Since the War.

Great Britain's combination for the international polo matches is the strongest mustered since the war for this classic of Anglo-American sport, The Associated Press pointed out yesterday.

Seven goal handicaps are listed for each of the three alternates on the British squad—Captain Charles H. Tremayne, H. P. Jennings and Aidan Roark, younger brother of Pat and a rival of Captain George for the No. 1 position.

The highest ranking American quartet that can now be mustered for the cup defense totals 34 goals.

America has the only ten-goal player in the world, Captain Tommy Hitchcock, but since Winston Guest was reduced from nine to eight goals, no other rider in this country has a handicap higher than eight. Of the international squad, Guest, Earle A. S. Hopping, Eric Pedley and Elmer Boeseke all have this rating.

MISS ROBERTS WINS GIRLS' TENNIS FINAL

Defeats Miss Hirsh, 6-2, 7-5, for Met. Championship at New Rochelle Club.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 24.—Miss Carolyn Roberts, 17-year-old local player, triumphed against Miss Millicent Hirsh of New York today in the final round of the girls' metropolitan tennis championship at the New Rochelle Tennis Club.

Miss Roberts displayed soundness and effectiveness in every department of her game to defeat her 13-year-old opponent, 6—2, 7—5. Miss Roberts and Miss Hirsh were not forced to play their semi-final matches, as their intended opponents defaulted.

The first set was all in favor of Miss Roberts, who was runner-up in the Lake Mohonk tournament last week. The New Rochelle star led from the start, but in the second set Miss Hirsh put up a stubborn battle and for a while it appeared as though she might break through to victory.

THE SUMMARIES.

Semi-Final Round.

Final Round.

Miss Roberts defeated Miss Hirsh, 6—2, 7—5.

Sports of the Times

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

BY the time the village clocks are striking high noon along the stern and rockbound coast of New England, there should be important news from Auteuil. Our expeditionary force is due to attack the French tennis stronghold, the Stade Roland Garros, with the object of securing and transporting to these shores a valuable bit of silverware known as the Davis Cup.

The first wave, represented by Mr. William T. Tilden 2d of Philadelphia, will go over the top at 2:15 P. M., Paris Time, which is shockingly early when translated into Eastern Daylight Saving Time. Big Bill will storm the Borotra Redoubt. The next wave will consist of G. Martin Lott, who will hammer away at that famous French strong point, the Cochet Corner.

Those who know a foot fault from a twist service say that Big Bill should carry the Borotra Redoubt, and that G. Martin Lott—he was George Lott when he played ball for the University of Chicago—will be repulsed with heavy losses, if, indeed, he isn't made a prisoner and held for ransom.

Advance Information.

This advance dope is based on tennis tradition and past performances. Bill Tilden has made a habit or custom of defeating the chap who is known as the Bounding Basque. G. Martin Lott has not made a habit or custom of beating Henri Cochet.

It was only a short while ago that M'sieu Borotra met M'sieu Tilden on the historic turf of Wimbledon and the result was in strict accordance with accepted traditions. M'sieu Tilden won. These gentlemen met last year at Auteuil and there in the Stade Roland Garros M'sieu Borotra bowed in defeat before the tall Philadelphian.

So it is expected or at least hoped that this laudable custom will be continued today. If there is to be any breaking of tradition or trampling on custom, let George do it. Let G. Martin Lott be the iconoclast. If by any chance he should topple Henri Cochet into defeat, the whole superstructure of French tennis would come down with a crash.

The Vacant Space.

The international polo trophy is here. The America's Cup has been anchored in this country for more than half a century. Bob Jones brought to these shores the British open and British amateur golf titles and trophies. But the Davis Cup, a tennis trophy donated by one of our own highly respected citizens, has been missing from our collection since the Battle of Germantown in 1927.

The absence of this trophy has been noted and commented upon from time to time. Expeditions were sent to retrieve but the quest failed. Perhaps it will fail this time, too. Much depends upon William T. Tilden and that is why the first dispatches from Auteuil will be scanned with great eagerness. If M'sieu Borotra so far forgets himself as to defeat the tall veteran from Philadelphia, there will be woe, unutterable woe, in the hearts of tennis fans on this side of the water.

It will be taken as an indication that the vacant space in our trophy room will remain vacant, for who can win for us if Big Bill loses? That's the feeling at the moment. What the feeling would be if Big Bill lost and G. Martin Lott won, deponent saith not. Few people take the trouble to prepare answers to the unexpected.

Setting the Stage.

Win or lose, it should be a good show, because Bill Tilden is in it and that famous Thespian always puts on a stirring performance. But a little stage direction might help. The play should be built up to a climax in the last act, with Big Bill staggering through the storm, to burst in and pay off the mortgage on the jolly old cup just as the villain, Henri Cochet, was about to lock it up once again in a foreign coffre-fort. Mille tonnerres, that would be an ending!

That would be hard for Big Bill to take, wouldn't it? After all the scars he gathered in the battles over his amateur status, after his defeats at the hands of Lacoste and Cochet, after being consigned to the Home for Aged Tennis Stars, after the younger generation had failed, after hope had been abandoned, to come along, not in the eleventh hour but in the eleventh year, and grab the cup by both handles to carry it in triumph back to this country! What a spot for a great player! What an opportunity for a great actor!

The stage is set. The spectators are waiting. In the words of D'Artagnan: "En avant les grands coups!"

Helping Hands.

Of course, even the greatest actor usually appears with a supporting cast. Even in his palmy days Big Bill couldn't carry off a Davis Cup final single-handed. He had to have somebody to poach on in the doubles. What with advancing years, his recently sprained ankle and a slight lessening in his court-covering agility, Big Bill may need a little help if this Davis Cup campaign is to have a happy ending.

It is expected that he will get help from Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn. These lads, unless all signs fail, will play in the doubles for our side. They won last year and if they don't win this year it will be a bitter disappointment and there will be gnashing of teeth all over the State of Texas, where Allison was first presented at court.

Another helper is G. Martin Lott, and it's odd to find that most tennis observers agree in picking Lott to finish a good second in both his singles matches.

The Real Chance.

Why so dolorous about Lott? He is a good player and usually does well on clay. He has his off days and his good days. On a good day there's no reason to concede him second place to Borotra or Cochet in advance. It's true that they have beaten him, but Borotra isn't so much superior that the result of their meeting is a foregone conclusion. And Cochet fell before Allison at Wimbledon. It appears that Cochet can have his bad moments, too.

At a safe distance from the battlefield, this observer refuses to give up on Lott before the firing starts. He is a good, stalwart lad. He has a well-rounded game and plenty of courage. Possibly he figures to run second, but if he should surprise the critics and win, that would be our real chance to haul the Davis Cup back to these shores.

SHIELDS IN LEAD IN MET. NET PLAY

Takes First Set From Jones and Has Edge in Second When Rain Halts Match.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

With three matches under way and the fourth about to start, rain interrupted the program for the second time in the metropolitan turf court championships at the Crescent A. C. in Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, yesterday, and forced a postponement of the quarter-finals until this afternoon.

Frank Shields, New York State champion, had won the first set from Dave Jones of Columbia at 6—2 and was leading at 1—0 and 15—30 in the second; Ellsworth Vines, California, was leading William Einsman at 6—4, 1—all, and E. W. Feibleman held an advantage of 2—1 in the first set of his match with Edward Burns when rain halted play.

The first two matches will be resumed at the point of suspension, while Feibleman and Burns will begin anew, and Frank Hunter and Donald Cram of Nashville, Tenn., will go on in the fourth match.

The semi-finals will be held tomorrow and the finals in both the singles and doubles will be played Sunday afternoon, it was announced by Arthur R. Neill and Ermond F. Brunn of the tournament committee. The doubles play was at a standstill yesterday.

The match between Shields and Jones, as far as it went, brought forth a superlative exhibition on the part of the young State champion. The ordeal of adapting his game to the change from clay to grass had been undergone and for the first time in his three days of competition Shields went on the court with every stroke functioning perfectly.

MRS. STENZ GAINS TENNIS SEMI-FINAL

Eliminates Mrs. Pritchard in Love Sets in N. Y. State Title Clay Court Tourney.

Two women reached the semi-final round of the singles play in the women's New York State clay court tennis championships yesterday at the Jackson Heights Tennis Club before a severe rainstorm late in the afternoon put a halt to the tournament and forced a postponement of the other two singles contests and all of the doubles matches until this morning.

Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz, Florida State champion, seeded No. 1, conquered Mrs. William H. Pritchard of the New York Tennis Club, in love sets, and Miss Grace Surber, Jackson Heights, seeded No. 4, earned the second semi-final berth with a three-set victory over Miss Helen Gerkin, also of Jackson Heights.

MERCUR ADVANCES IN CANADIAN TENNIS

Defeats Delara, 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, 4-6, 6-3, to Gain Semi-Final of Title Play at Toronto.

TORONTO, July 24 (Canadian Press).—G. Lyttleton Rogers of Dublin defeated C. W. Aikman of Montreal in three straight sets, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4, in the quarter-final round of the Canadian tennis championship tournament at the Toronto Tennis Club today.

Slow to start, the Irishman increased his pace after losing the first four games, and thereafter Aikman was strictly on the defensive. Rogers varied deep drives with soft drop shots, while Aikman relied on lobs to a considerable degree, occasionally advancing to the net to angle away short returns. Both men had fine service.

Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa., qualified to meet Rogers in the semi-final by defeating J. Delara of the University of California in five brilliant sets, 6—4, 6—4, 2—6, 4—6, 6—3, in the best match of the tournament so far.

Gilbert Nunns of Toronto defeated his fellow Canadian Davis Cup player, Marcel Rainville of Montreal, 6—3, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3.

J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., won his quarter-final match from Walter Martin of Regina, 6—1, 3—6, 6—0, 6—3.

Mrs. E. F. Coke of Toronto defeated Miss B. Symons of Toronto in their quarter-final match in the women's singles after one of the hardest fights of the tournament. The scores were 7—5, 6—8, 8—6. She will meet in the semi-final Miss Jean Burritt of Toronto, Eastern and Ontario champion, who eliminated Miss Hope Leeming of Victoria, B. C.

Miss Marjorie Leeming of Victoria defeated Miss M. Brock, Toronto, 6—2, 6—3, and entered the semi-final, where she will meet Miss Olive Wade of Toronto, the Canadian champion, who defeated Mrs. H. L. Beer of Ottawa, 1—6, 6—2, 6—3.

WIN JUNIOR DOUBLES TITLE.

William Bromfield and Harold Gerkin defeated Roy Smith and Julian Wishik in five sets to win the doubles title in the Long Island Centre junior tennis championships at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, yesterday by 6—3, 6—8, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3. Bromfield and Gerkin took an early lead, but met with stern opposition throughout.

In a junior singles semi-final match between Morris Adelsberg and Ray Palmer, the latter staged an upset by winning from the Boys High School star in straight sets, 6—1, 6—1. Palmer's victory gained him the right to meet E. R. Donovan in the final today.

A hard-fought match in the boys' singles was taken by Richard Gilder, who turned back Ernesto Fernandez, 9—7, 6—2. Gilder will meet Marvin Freudenheim in the final of the boys' division.

KUNKEL GAINS SEMI-FINALS.

Beats Taylor, 6-3, 6-2, in West Virginia Tennis Play.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 24.—Paul Kunkel of Cincinnati, seeded No. 1 and already holder of two legs on the championship cup, became a semi-finalist today in the West Virginia open tennis tournament when he defeated Earl Taylor, Austin, Texas, in a spirited battle, 6—3, 6—2.

A minor upset occurred when Jake Hess of Austin, Texas, defeated Robert Elliott, Baltimore, 6—2, 6—2, to gain the semi-finals.

MISS MORRILL WINS IN ESSEX NET PLAY

MISS GLADMAN ALSO VICTOR

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 24.—Miss Marjorie Morrill of Boston and Miss Marjorie Gladman of California gained the final round of the seventh annual women's invitation tournament at the Essex County Club today.

Miss Morrill, Massachusetts State champion, swamped Miss Dorothy Weisel of Sacramento, California State champion, in straight sets, 6—0, 6—2. Miss Morrill played a brilliant offensive game, forcing the Pacific Coast star at all times.

Miss Weisel appeared on the verge of a rally in the first game of the second set and won Miss Morrill's serve. However, the Boston girl's faster pace gave her the set with the loss of only one more game.

Miss Gladman, 1929 intercollegiate champion, was forced to a three-set match by Miss Josephine Cruickshank, who won the intercollegiate crown this year, 1—6, 6—4, 6—1. Miss Cruickshank seemed unbeatable in the first set, which she took, 6—1. She led 4—2 in the second set, but the determined Californian evened the score and took the set, 6—4.

In the final set Miss Cruickshank fell into errors and Miss Gladman, pushing her advantage with speedy drives and brilliant net work, took the match with the loss of only one game in the final set.

The match tomorrow between Miss Gladman and Miss Morrill should be very even if both girls play as they did today. Miss Gladman holds ninth place among the women in the United States, Miss Morrill ranks only two below. This is the first time they have ever met in a tournament. Miss Morrill has four tournament victories to her credit this year and Miss Gladman three, one being the Southern California championship.

Rum-Running on St. Pierre

SOUTHWEST of Newfoundland, a little way from the fishing banks, lies the lonely isle of St. Pierre—a penal colony in the eighteenth century, then a fishermen's rendezvous, now centre of a highly organized system of supplying liquor to the bootleggers of the American seaboard. A correspondent of The Times, recently returned from a visit to the island, describes the methods of the rum-runners and their organization.

THE FLOW OF GOLD TO FRANCE.

Shipments of gold to Paris have again begun to win the attention both of economists and of practical financiers. Gold is always apt to move in large quantity between the different markets after a world-wide financial and industrial reaction, but it usually goes to markets which are in need of bank resources, or else flows from debtor to creditor countries, reflecting recall of capital previously invested abroad. France is not rated as a creditor country on the basis of her trade balance, visible or invisible, and the reserve of the Bank of France not only far exceeds the 35 per cent ratio to liabilities imposed by the Stabilization Act of 1928, but has long been rising faster than was desired by the bank itself. A month ago the French bank already held nearly $300,000,000 more gold than at the same date in 1929 and $600,000,000 more than in 1928; yet, since the present month began, $16,000,000 more gold has been engaged for Paris on the London market and $22,000,000 at New York.

It will be observed that it is London whose central bank has needed to replenish its gold reserve after the heavy losses of 1929, and that London is now losing gold again to Paris. This seeming anomaly has elicited the charge, in London's market, that the French bank is deliberately "hoarding" gold, if not maliciously crippling the British market by drawing upon it. A section of British economists has insisted that France is "sterilizing" gold by heaping it up unused in the Bank of France, and is thereby aggravating the world's economic reaction. This, it will be recalled, is precisely the accusation launched at our Federal Reserve when the gold holdings of that banking organization increased $1,000,000,000 during 1921 and 1922.

However, this movement of foreign gold to France has occurred only when foreign exchange rates were such as to render shipments the cheapest form of remittance against the indicated balance in the French market's favor. The Bank of France, in its recent annual report, officially disposed of the contention that gold was being artificially accumulated. "We have confined ourselves," the report declared, "to accepting across our counters "gold which was offered to us from "foreign sources in exchange for "francs, without intervening at any "moment on the exchange market." It assured the public that the bank "will not depart from this attitude"; that, on the contrary, if exchange were to move against Paris, the bank would "allow gold to pass "out of our possession as freely as "we have allowed it to enter."

This naturally shifts the question to the reasons for an exchange market so persistently favoring France that other countries are forced to meet their remittances with gold. That aspect of the matter, which is not at all new, cannot be separated from the remarkable position occupied by France in the international market since the franc was stabilized. Precisely in order to avert the unlimited rise in the franc's exchange value which might have accompanied return of French capital sent abroad when the currency's future was distrusted, the Bank of France issued new bank-notes at the stabilized valuation in favor of the bankers who were bringing home their foreign credits. Thereby acquiring as an asset of its own the credits thus exchanged, the bank has ever since possessed foreign balances, ranging around $1,000,000,000.

It has recalled them, in the intervening period, only to a slight extent; but the accruing proceeds from the foreign investment have been very large, private French capital has been freely loaned abroad, and at times reduction of the account appears to have been necessitated. Such recall would naturally be accelerated when money rates at New York and London declined to the present all but nominal level. The situation is undoubtedly peculiar; not less so when the French financial market has itself grown uneasy over the abnormally rapid increase of the bank's note circulation, through its automatic payments for the imported gold. Perhaps the only obvious solution is the expedient already on the eve of introduction—removal of all existing obstacles to absorption of new foreign securities on the grand scale by the French investment market.

QUITE UNINTENTIONAL.

With one consent the foreign governments that have been raising their tariff rates explain politely that they have no thought of reprisals against the American tariff. What has happened is purely incidental. Just as Washington has explained to Paris and Rome that our tariff intentions are the most benevolent conceivable, so we are getting assurances that foreign customs duties which seem to be aimed specifically at American exports are accompanied by the kindest of thoughts about us. It is like the old story of the Quaker and the burglar, the former explaining that it was against his principles to kill anybody, but that if his friend the burglar was in the corner where he was preparing to shoot, the poor man might get hurt. Both Australia and Canada are putting into effect rates on goods from the United States which undoubtedly will have the effect of limiting our trade, at least temporarily; but both make haste to protest that they have not the slightest animus against us, and that their raising of rates has no relation at all to what we ourselves have done in that line.

Such preliminaries, it may be noted, are the usual ones in all tariff wars. Anything like an aggressive move against another nation is disclaimed. Whatever is done both parties assert to be purely in the national interest, without dreaming of injuring anybody else. It is like the plea of defense in war. That is always made. It is the other country that is the attacker. In 1914, for example, Germany took anxious pains to assure the world that her violation of Belgian territory and her invasion of France were solely defensive measures. These military analogies have a way of forcing themselves into tariff wars. Everything that makes trouble in international trade is attributed to the other fellow. Great care is taken to avoid any ugly word like "reprisals." But if the thing is done, it does not greatly matter what it is called. Attempts to make a tariff war smell sweeter by another name are usually futile. All concerned would do well to give that up. For Americans the unpleasant but now well-established fact is that our new tariff has provoked not only irritation abroad, but action which may be injurious to both sides unless both sides see the folly of the course upon which they have entered, and set about retracing their steps.

A BOSTON CENTENARIAN.

The Boston Transcript was 100 yesterday. That is a comely age for a newspaper, however juvenile for a Boston "institution." Of the journals in the three-hilled city of 1830, The Advertiser, The Post, The Traveler survive in name, but have undergone a transformation in which their once distinguishing qualities have been lost. The wit and gayety of Colonel CHARLES G. GREENE of The Post, the encyclopedic knowledge of C. C. HAZEWELL in The Traveler's most distinctive period, the "respectable daily" Advertiser—with the accent on the penult—organ of Harvard College and the patrician clans, are a part of the antique furniture in the memories of antiquaries.

The successors of those elders, yielding to force of environment, have followed other paths. So has The Transcript, developing from the little sheet of those reserved days, when newspapers were too haughty to submit to the handling of newsboys, into the comprehensive and sometimes vast register of news and opinion and criticism in every field which the modern newspaper must be. The Transcript cultivates genealogy as one of its numerous avocations. Probably it gives advice to the farmer, so multitudinously favored with it, though it has no department of Geoponics, as JOSEPH T. BUCKINGHAM of The Courier used to call his bucolic counsel.

Under the ownership of one thrifty family it has managed to preserve a tone and temper of its own. It is tolerant. It is intelligent. It is eclectic. It is well bred. It is no inconsiderable achievement to last and grow and prosper through a century of surprising political, economic and social changes. Born in a decade when rowdyism and rioting and hatred of "the Irish" was too common among certain classes of Bostonians, it was the steady friend of the immigrants who were doing and were to do so much to build up the State and city. So it was prepared by a natural liberality of mind for its continuing honorable place in the city of many tongues and races which "the Irish" rule.

The good old Whig that was, the Republican that is, is comfortable and at home in "AL SMITH'S State." It views with alarm nobody but WILLIAM MORGAN BUTLER. Its familiar ascription to "the tea table" recalls the Boston custom, abandoned or largely abandoned in quite recent days, of dining not later than 1 P. M. Of its progress, policies, editors, its catholic-minded "Nomad" has written an authoritative account. We can here find room only for a lady. Miss CORNELIA M. WALTER, sister of the first editor, was his competent successor for five years in the '40s. Her salary was $500 a year. In 1852 the paper had two reporters, at a cost for both of $11 a week. Years later the treasurer thought that $20 a week was "a normal newspaper salary." Such were the ancient simplicities of the city room. We don't care for plain living ourselves, but we have always liked The Transcript.

For all its fire-new adaptation to the modern state of things, it is a precious bit of tradition of the Bostonian inheritance. In our heart it is a sort of younger brother or grandson of the Old South, Faneuil Hall, the Lion and the Unicorn on the old State House.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS INOCULATION.

Dr. ALBERT CALMETTE, defending before the Microbiological Congress at Paris his anti-tuberculosis serum for infants, was really addressing a world-wide audience. The issue transcends many public questions that have received a hundred times the space accorded by the press to "BCG"—the Bacillus Calmette-Guérin. Its sponsor insists that if injected within ten days after birth through the digestive tract, BCG establishes immunity over a period of six months to five years against the tuberculous germ universally present in human beings. The opponents of CALMETTE, among whom some American investigators are in the forefront, maintain that BCG, far from being a blessing to humanity, may turn out to be a curse. It carries the peril of infecting the race with tuberculosis, and so more than undoing the notable strides which have been made in subduing the ravages of the white plague. The danger, acccording to the anti-Calmette case, rests in the fact that BCG is a living organism even though it be employed in attenuated form. There is no guarantee against the avirulent bacillus suddenly turning virulent.

What happened at Lübeck, in Northern Germany, last Spring seemed to lend substance to this warning. Infants injected with BCG began to die of tuberculosis. By June 19 forty-one deaths were reported, and the number subsequently rose to fifty-seven. Less serious incidents were reported in mid-May from Berlin with eight deaths and from Hungary with five. Dr. CALMETTE's defense of day before yesterday seems to have followed closely the lines of a letter he addressed in June to the editor of Action Française. His explanation is simple. The Lübeck children were the victims of tragic error or incompetence. The serum with which they were injected was prepared at Lübeck out of a culture obtained from Paris in July, 1929, but the injections were not administered until February, 1930. According to CALMETTE, a virulent human bacillus was allowed to mix with the original Pasteur Institute avirulent bovine micro-organism. German savants who came to Lübeck to inquire into the tragedy found that the original cultures, both from Paris and Lübeck, had been destroyed, and were forced to make delicate tests on the bodies of the poor infants. From these, according to CALMETTE, the agency of a human bacillus was established.

Against the Lübeck tragedy and minor setbacks elsewhere, CALMETTE cites nearly 260,000 children of tuberculous families injected in France since 1924 with BCG and showing a notable reduction in mortality. He also speaks of a large-scale and highly successful experiment conducted in Rumania. Our own Health Department must be among those acutely interested in the debate. On May 1, Dr. PARK reported favorably on the results of an experiment conducted during the last three years with 600 children of tuberculous families, of whom about one-half were given the BCG treatment. The vaccinated children showed during the first year of life a mortality rate of 5 per cent, against 25 per cent for the unvaccinated infants.

The debate is a familiar one in the history of bacteriology and human disease. PAUL DE KRUIF, with characteristic animation, describes the scientific congress at Geneva, almost fifty years ago, when ROBERT KOCH baited LOUIS PASTEUR on the results of his anti-anthrax vaccination. For it would seem that after the first triumphant results, sheep all over Europe began to die, not from natural anthrax but from the Pasteur vaccine. It is on a much lesser scale the story of salvarsan. It is related to the puzzle of sharp fluctuations in the virulence of diphtheria as marked by a varying efficacy in the antitoxin. Science, in fighting for human life, is never the infallible, invincible champion of popular belief. But with all its disappointments and defeats, its gains have been splendid.

WORK ADDICTS.

Another accuser of women who work without being driven to it by necessity springs up in the August issue of The Forum. Herself a Vassar graduate and a worker, Miss POPPY CANNON turns fiercely on the college women who make a fetish of the "job." She calls them "pin-money slaves," and invokes the aid of Miss FRANCES PERKINS in reproving them for accepting $20 a week from an employer and an allowance from home, while women who are in need of a small weekly wage look in vain for work. No one can deny that a woman has a right to earn money if she can find some one to hire her, nor would any one deny her right to lead a life of leisure if her funds will support her. But many are likely to agree with Miss CANNON'S argument that women who choose the latter course when they can afford it are being made to feel "abashed and shamefaced among their energetic sisters."

Those with stamina enough to stand out against the feeling that women should work for money are few. There was the young society woman who had a job in the office of a large hospital. It required tact and some knowledge of psychology, and she was well fitted for it, but because it paid nothing in cash she left it for a routine clerical position paying $25. She insists that there is a "certain something" about money she earns which makes it quite different from money her father gives her. Anyhow, she simply couldn't endure seeing other girls of her set brandishing their pay envelopes while she had no reward but the consciousness of a good deed.

Many pin-money workers are perhaps goaded by the spur of public conscience. They cannot enjoy their leisure, because it is a sin of such recent origin as to be in the unpopular stage. Miss CANNON says that they are "congenital frontiersmen," and if they cannot be uncomfortable in a covered wagon they will discommode themselves in the subway. But that cannot be the deepest urge. Some women, it is true, make very contented martyrs, but the great majority have common sense. It is a sense of guilt that makes them take up gainful employment. Not only the example of other women but the general attitude makes a girl blush when she confesses that she is not working—"just staying at home." She may be keeping her own or her father's home and garden, leading a life in which household duties and books, music, art and friends play a delightful part, but her father, her husband or her acquaintances will call her old-fashioned and lazy. The women she knows will pity her because she is not earning anything, and will not conceal from her their conviction that she is something of a parasite.

Unfortunately, there is nothing to be done about it. A young and healthy woman with no children lays herself open to the charge of parasitism, husband or no, if she tries to lead a life of gracious leisure. Her housework cannot take all of her time unless she deliberately relinquishes the modern labor-saving devices, and no sane American girl is going back to pumps, brooms and a wood cook-stove. If she is bored without a job for her spare hours, part-time work will not help her much; for, as Miss CANNON says, the only sure cure for boredom is shooting. But filing cards for four hours a day will relieve her of the contempt of a world that believes work for pay is a panacea.

AUGUST F. JACCACI.

It could perhaps have been said more truly of AUGUST F. JACCACI than of any other American citizen that he was the Old World incarnate in the New. He had his early education in several countries, including the land of his mother, Italy. But the strain of the nomad in his blood led him into many, strange and far places: digging amid the ruins of Carthage; venturing into the homes of Sahara Desert tribes; penetrating even the forest of the Congo; sailing the Carib Sea; decorating a church in Martinique; tarrying in Cuba long enough to paint the ceiling of an opera house; traveling as a wandering artist in Mexico, and then making a career as a painter and art authority in the United States, of which he became a zealous, public-spirited citizen. And when the greatest undertaking of his life was frustrated (the monumental work on "Noteworthy Paintings in American Private Collections") by the oncoming of the war, he went back to Europe to care for the homeless children of the invaded districts.

This last service, in which he persisted though death had its hand on his shoulder more than once, crowned a remarkable life with a unique ministry which only such a gentle soul touched with imagination and equipped with concrete practicality could have achieved. The artist's career was swallowed up in devotion to suffering, starving children. Mr. BRYSON BURROUGHS of the Metropolitan Museum of Art has said that Mr. JACCACI'S "remarkable judgment of pictures "and his wide knowledge of the "subject won for him the friendship and esteem of collectors and "artists who were most sensitive "to the development of nineteenth "century art, which in his opinion "was bound to be recognized as one "of the great epochs of painting." But he gave up all this to lose himself in saving the lives of children.

One act of his even more accurately illustrates the spirit which showed itself in his every enterprise. He felt that the Spanish-born artist VIERGE should have the opportunity to make as his "crowning achievement" the illustrations of CERVANTES'S immortal romance. To make this possible, he himself furnished the text for a book entitled "On the Trail of Don Quixote," written around the pictures of VIERGE. JACCACI was in CERVANTES'S own phrase the "soul of fiber and the heart of oak" in the loyalty of his friendships. He pursued no "molinos de viento," but gave himself as fiercely and single-mindedly as the Knight of the Mournful Countenance to the causes he espoused, yet with the greatest gentleness of heart. America has reason to be proud of this adopted son who brought varied talents out of many strains and cultures to the enrichment of her life.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Proximity Not the Factor. It is always news when a fire breaks out in a fire-engine house. Or when a robbery occurs near a police station. Or when a politician fails to carry his own precinct in an election. In the same category falls the drug store hold-up in the apartment building where Police Commissioner MULROONEY has a flat. It adds piquancy to the hold-up that the commissioner was at home at the time.

If the Police Commissioner's apartment had been robbed while he was asleep in it, that would have been an even more curious bit of news. If burglars had penetrated to his bedroom and taken valuables from him, that news would have come into the classification of "important." But his mere presence, asleep or awake, five floors above the scene of a hold-up by no means makes the undertaking substantially different from any other hold-up in the city.

Had the burglars known of the commissioner's proximity, doubtless they would have chosen another store to invade. So strong is the power of suggestion. The very security which private citizens feel when in the neighborhood of a representative of armed force often persuades them to take fewer precautions. But the fact is that unless the representative of that armed force is right at hand, his physical nearness gives no protection.

Better Rural Roads. During his swing around the waterways Governor ROOSEVELT has had time also to observe the roads. "Every farm in time should have a hard-surfaced route to market," he remarked the other day. The Legislature has already increased the State aid for the maintenance of rural roads; and with the gasoline tax producing a large revenue, there should be no lack of money.

In many remote villages poor local roads are due not so much to the lack of money as to the lack of intelligent road-working. No one who travels the dirt roads from village to village and from county to county can help observing how radically the workmanship differs. Some towns plan their road-work systematically, endeavoring to make lasting improvements. By merely patching roads from year to year, other towns constantly lose the value of the money put into the work and never have their dirt roads in first-class condition.

The local road superintendent is a person of importance. He has a considerable amount of money to spend each year and enjoys a considerable local independence. He is frequently elected more for his good-fellowship than for his knowledge of road-building. It is often difficult to determine where his road-work leaves off and his distribution of petty patronage begins.

Too Much "Listening." Teachers College has started an experimental class in music designed to promote its actual playing. This is an indirect criticism of modern life. That radio broadcasting is encouraging what Professor P. W. DYKEMA calls "the listening habit" and discouraging "the playing habit" has its evidences outside of music. It is a question whether children are not in danger of losing a part of the impulse to create simply because so much of the creating is done for them.

Not so long ago the child was forced to invent amusements for himself. Instead of rushing to a movie, he assembled a circus in the back yard, or built Swiss Family Robinson houses in the apple trees, or cut out railroad cars with his jig-saw. Now he begs for an automobile, and cannot understand the joy his father took in owning a pony and grooming it himself. If he takes to the water it is a gasoline speed-boat he wants and not the sailing yacht that would call for physical exertion and test his mental alertness and ingenuity.

Early acquaintance with mechanical devices, it is true, may breed a taste for engineering. The natural inventiveness of a youth cannot be entirely stifled, and it may be stimulated by his automotive contacts. But when one turns from the individual to the mass, there can be little doubt that the extreme mechanization of today blunts the constructive imagination. Always "listening" and never "playing" can lead only to a certain sponginess of mind.

Life Among the Blueberries. New Yorkers are getting blueberries for breakfast, but not that prize of the species, the Maine blueberry, because the crop is not quite ready for harvesting. In two weeks the market will be brimming with the fruit of the only plant that gives Maine a valuable crop with no cultivation.

Blueberry farmers, according to The Portland Press Herald, can busy themselves with their crop from August to the middle of September, but it is only the work of gathering and packing that engages their attention. They never have to seed the fields nor plow nor hoe, nor pick off bugs, nor spray. Year after year the bushes produce their little globes of dusty azure without the urging of man's hand, and in Maine they yield a million dollars to farmers and canners.

Other vegetation, much of it taller and stronger than the little fruit bush, likes the soil and situation in which blueberries flourish, and if it is not removed the number and size of the berries will be greatly diminished. The blueberry farmer is not disturbed by this fact. He burns his fields over every third year. The intruding plants are destroyed, and the sturdy berry bushes thrive in their ashes. A burned-over field will produce from 50 to 100 bushels to the acre, dropping off the second year to 10 or 20. Lucky the vacationer who goes blueberrying in Maine!

A PLEA FOR RECIPROCITY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An editorial in THE TIMES urged the taxpayers of the town of Oyster Bay to cede lands owned by the township to the State, for the enlargement of Jones Beach. May I call the attention of the proponents of this plan to a means of furthering their proposal?

The people of Oyster Bay township have heretofore ceded lands sought by the State for the purpose of public parks. It was thought by many inhabitants of the township who favored these measures that the creation of these State parks would divert transient pleasure-seekers from local beaches, enabling local inhabitants to use the local beaches. Accordingly, the town of Oyster Bay made application to the State Land Board for a grant of land under water at Glenwood, for the purpose of creating a town park.

I understand that the subcommittee of the Land Board has reported against the granting of the application to the town, and has favored granting these lands to private interests: (1) a grant for commercial beach exploitation which utterly negatives the advantage to local inhabitants of State parks, and (2) a grant for private club purposes.

Again, the village of Sea Cliff, acting under the authority of the special act of the Legislature, made application for a grant of its beach front from the State, so as to control it for the use of its inhabitants. I am informed that the Attorney General has ruled against this application, with the result that the State Land Board has taken no action on it.

The State Park Commission, under the leadership of Mr. Moses, has done splendid and far-reaching work, which should be supported by the people of our suburban towns, and the latter, in turn, should have reciprocal treatment from the State authorities.

The State Land Board, and perhaps the Attorney General, not being aware of the public need for our restricted shorefronts, adheres to the old system of granting these valuable rights, for no consideration, to private interests. Too many miles of Long Island shorefront go unused during the Summer while the owners are elsewhere employed in the pursuit of pleasure, and too many enterprises have blackened our shores and polluted our waters, to permit a continuance of this policy.

We should enable the State to maintain parks for all the people and, reciprocally, the State should give the control of local beaches to the villages and towns which make State parks possible.

Noisy Flushing Machines.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May one suggest that the present method of flushing the streets before 5 A. M., rendering sleep impossible because of the noise made by the machine, which can be heard for blocks, be modified? The question arises as to the conscience and consideration of the Street Cleaning Department for tired workers needing what little sleep the noisy city allows.

FOR A TORRID DAY.

To mitigate the tropic woes
Of urban Summer simmering,
I'll think of Byrd's Antarctic snows
And stars on ice floes glimmering.
I'll watch, as Fancy turns the reels,
How Eskimos now wade about
In furs that once helped shiny seals
To wiggle and parade about.

Of shadowed caves and stalactites
I'll muse on subway wanderings;
To chilly fjords and Northern Lights
I'll dedicate my ponderings;
Through wastes of polar outer zones
I'll drive my dog-sled teams ahead
And take past thermometric groans
My comfortable dreams ahead.

But tethered, earthbound wight am I
Whom dreams will not deceive for long;
A thought that meets a copper sky
Cannot, alone, relieve for long.
And so I'll take, Manhattan mouse,
My bit of cheese judicially:
I'll creep into a movie house
And cool off artificially.

FOR WORKING GIRLS.

Vacation Society Needs Funds to Continue War on Tuberculosis.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Because of the very evident interest of the public in these days in the war on tuberculosis, it seems a propitious time to tell of a modest effort that has been quietly at work for the past thirty-six years. It was initiated by the late George E. Dodge in 1894. That year he gave to the Working Girls' Vacation Society, through his niece, Miss Grace Dodge, who was a member of the board, a house he owned at Santa Clara in the Adirondacks.

So great was the need of this place, which at first accommodated only sixteen girls, that he enlarged the house to double its capacity the next year. Then the following year he bought a second house, which he also gave to the society, so that now fifty-nine girls can be accommodated there. Not only did Mr. Dodge give the houses, but he equipped them with sleeping porches and fully furnished them, so the gift was an exceedingly generous one.

The work at Santa Clara is unique, as the houses are open only during the Summer for working girls in the early and curable stages of consumption, or those with a tendency toward that disease may go during their vacations and acquire enough strength to go on as bread-winners on their return. It is often necessary for a girl to go several years before she is pronounced "a cure," or, as the girls call it, "a graduate"; then she must let some other girl have the privilege. The girls love their vacations there in the bracing air of that beautiful country—one girl wept when she was told she could not go again, although she knew that meant she was well.

Besides the Santa Clara houses, the Working Girls' Vacation Society conducts during the Summer months two houses at Hadlyme, Conn., for girls who are ill but not with tuberculosis, and also a house at Green's Farms, Conn., which is open all the year to girls who are recovering from illness or who are on the verge of a break-down.

The Working Girls' Vacation Society will gratefully acknowledge gifts of any size for the Summer's work. Checks should be made payable to the Working Girls' Vacation Society and sent to the United Charities Building, 297 Fourth Avenue.

FEEDING A FAMILY ON $13.72

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was interested in the press dispatch from Chicago that food for a family of four now costs $13.72 weekly, and I wish the American Research Foundation would tell us just what kind and the quantity and quality of the "nutritious foods" this family gets for that price.

I am a housekeeper myself and I, too, have a family of four to feed. I am not extravagant, as I have a limited sum on which I run my home, and if I can be shown—and I'm willing to be—how it can be done on $13.72, I shall be everlastingly grateful, as it might be the means of my saving a tidy sum.

But common sense tells me that the amount mentioned is simply ridiculous, as the prices which I pay for foods prove positively that it cannot be done for even three times that sum. I do my own marketing and I've never yet, in my experience of over sixteen years in running a home, got any bargains in food.

At the height of the season, when these articles are plentiful and prices should be lower, I paid 15 cents a head for lettuce, 19 cents a pound for tomatoes, 19 cents a pound for peas, 19 cents a pound for beans, 45 to 50 cents a pound for fish, 55 cents a pound for lamb, 55 cents a pound for beef, 52 cents for chopped meat, 45 cents for soup meat and 55 cents for broilers.

QUOTING JOB HEDGES.

That Astute Person Wrote of Common Sense and Honesty in Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Twenty years ago the late Job E. Hedges published a book entitled "Common Sense in Politics," in which he said in part:

"It may be pertinent to remark that the political crime of the present decade is not larceny but hypocrisy.

"Political honesty does not differ from any other kind * * * mental honesty is oftentimes more important than financial integrity. The instant a man takes public office he becomes impersonal and has no right to think or act except for the public. It is his duty to advise the public in mental honesty, whether it redounds to his personal popularity or not."

In days like these, when too many of our citizens exercising political influence are either tarred with oil or alcohol, and occasionally with both, it is wise to recall what Mr. Hedges wrote.

Dr. Angelescu Not in Office.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your today's issue there appeared a telegram from Bucharest stating that an attempt was made on the life of "Constantin Angelescu, Under-Secretary of the Interior and former Minister to Washington."

Evidently your correspondent has made a confusion of names, the present Under-Secretary of State for the Interior having no connection with Dr. C. Angelescu, who was the first Rumanian Minister in Washington. The latter is a member of the Liberal party, now in the Opposition, and does not hold any government office.

SEEKS POTENT X-RAY TO ATTACK CANCER

New Institute for Radiological Research Incorporates to Stimulate Progress.

RADIUM SUBSTITUTE SEEN

Incorporation in Delaware of the Radiological Research Institute, organized several weeks ago, was announced yesterday by Dr. Edwin Charles Ernst of St. Louis, acting president.

"One of the first objectives of the institute," Dr. Ernst said, "is to develop X-rays of a larger penetrating power than is now available. We now produce X-rays of from 6,000 to 250,000 volts. If we could make them as high as 300,000 or even 400,000 volts, we would be practically producing radium rays from an X-ray tube, and we know that results would be better.

"For the present we cannot go that high, for we have not yet developed the tubes that could stand such high voltages. In seven years there has been no real improvement in American X-ray tubes, though in the meantime science has gone beyond the capacities of most domestic tubes. We want tubes with deeper penetration and faster action, so that the rays can be used to stop the image of a moving internal organ, which now appears as a blur.

"X-rays are finding rapidly extended uses. They relieve infections, skin conditions, pneumonia and asthma. They are the most effective treatment for common pimple afflictions and for boils and carbuncles. They also help some kinds of cancer. The production of a more powerful X-ray may turn out to be a substitute for radium treatment of cancer, the chief present obstacle to which is the scarcity and costliness of radium.

"Accurate measuring of X-ray dosage is becoming a vital problem. There is no more powerful poison than an overdose of X-ray or radium. For safety the rays should be standardized under government regulation, but we cannot do this with tubes of the present irregular performance.

"One man gets a desirable result by the use of X-ray, while another, trying the same treatment, fails, sometimes because of this irregular output from tubes. It is our aim, one of several, to use research to help produce better American tubes. Europeans are far ahead of us in this respect."

Other objectives of the institute include the production of cheaper radium, American control of its own radium supply, establishment of a central radiological research laboratory, fostering pure radiological research in colleges, cooperation with the National Institute of Health created by Congress, and an advisory board of fifty scientists to extend the uses of X-ray research to all common walks of life. All profits are to go to further radiological research.

POSTHUMOUS AWARD MADE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Distinguished Service Cross was awarded posthumously by the War Department today to John M. Black of Hollidaysburg, Pa., formerly a sergeant in Company G, 110th Infantry, Twenty-eighth Division.

The department cited his extraordinary heroism in action near Villette on the Vesle River, France, on Aug. 29-30, 1918, when he commanded a patrol which drove back enemy outposts, and for bravery on Sept. 7, 1918, when in an exposed position he directed the fire of his platoon on the enemy and was killed.

A citation for gallantry in action was awarded to Kenneth P. Culbert of East Orange, N. J., formerly a Second Lieutenant of marines, serving as observer with the First Aero Squadron of the Air Service.

He successfully photographed enemy second line trenches under heavy fire from an altitude of 500 meters in the Toul sector on May 15, 1918.

HOOVER RECEIVES ENVOY.

Assures New Peruvian Ambassador of Cooperation in Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Señor Dr. Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander presented his credentials to President Hoover today as Ambassador of Peru.

"The sincere friendship," he said in part, "which has existed unbroken between our countries for over a century will render the task confided to me by my government a pleasant and an easy one." He bespoke the cooperation of both countries in "a new spiritual and material development contributing to the peace and progress of America."

ADMIRAL ROUSSEAU DIES ABOARD SHIP

HEAD OF NAVY OIL RESERVES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Rear Admiral Harry Harwood Rousseau, one of the leaders in the building of the Panama Canal, died of apoplexy aboard the steamship Cristobal this morning on the way to Panama Canal Zone, where he had planned to carry out inspections as a director of the Panama Railroad. He was 60 years old. The Cristobal is due to stop at Charleston, S. C., tomorrow morning to land the body.

An officer in the Civil Engineer Corps of the navy, Admiral Rousseau was director of the naval petroleum reserves and chief coordinator of the Bureau of the Budget. As director of the naval petroleum reserves he had supervised the policy of the department toward oil reserves since they were turned back to the navy from the Interior Department after the disclosures surrounding the administration of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall. His services in that connection had been universally described as being of the highest efficency.

For his services in the building of the Panama Canal, when he was a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission under the late Major Gen. George W. Goethals, he was elevated from the rank of Commander to Rear Admiral in 1915 by special act of Congress. He was then 45 years old and thus became one of the youngest officers to attain the rank. Two other officers who were similarly honored were the two explorers, Admirals Peary and Byrd.

Was Born in Troy, N. Y.

Admiral Rousseau was born in Troy, N. Y., on April 19, 1870, and was graduated from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1891. He first engaged in structural engineering work in New York and Pittsburgh and then entered the navy as a civil engineer with the rank of Lieutenant in 1898. His first eight years of work in the navy included a four years' tour of duty in the Bureau of Yards and Docks at the Navy Department and four years of duty at nevy yards, most of which was spent at Mare Island.

In the latter part of 1906, when he was a Senior Lieutenant, he was appointed by President Roosevelt chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks with the temporary rank of Rear Admiral by virtue of that post.

He had been chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks for only three months when he was appointed a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, which was headed by General Goethals, then a Lieutenant Colonel. When he accepted this position Admiral Rousseau reverted to his permanent rank of Senior Lieutenant. In addition to performing the duties of Commissioner, each member of the Commission was in charge of one of the departments under General Goethals as chairman and chief engineer.

In Charge of Design of Terminals.

When the canal was turned over to General Goethals as the first Governor he continued to serve as engineer of terminal construction.

In 1911, in addition to his other duties, Admiral Rousseau was placed in charge of the design and construction of the canal terminals, including dry docks, ship repair shops, piers, coaling plants, fuel oil plants, breakwaters and floating cranes. He remained at Panama until the terminals were successfully completed within the estimated cost and estimated time.

After returning from Panama Admiral Rousseau was appointed a member of the Commission on Navy Yards and Naval Stations and served on many other important boards and commissions.

In the World War he was manager of the shipyards plant division of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He was also in charge of plant extension work of the navy at many industrial establishments where naval funds were utilized. For the latter work he received the Navy Cross "for exceptionally meritorious service in a duty of great responsibility."

PARCEL POST PACT ENDS CUBAN SNARL

MONTALVO HAILS NEW ERA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Ending a long controversy over tobacco shipments, a new parcel post convention between the United States and Cuba was signed today by Postmaster General Brown and Señor José A. Montalvo, Cuban Director of Posts.

Under the new convention Cuba is permitted to import cigars and other manufactured tobacco without limit of number that can be contained in a single package. It is provided in that the maximum weight for parcel post between the two countries be twenty-two pounds instead of eleven.

Except for these changes the previous convention remains intact.

The new convention will become effective Sept. 1, 1930.

Today's ceremony took place in the anteroom of the Postmaster General's office, and was attended by a distinguished gathering. In addition to Señor Montalvo, the Cuban Government was represented by Señor Don José T. Baron, counselor of the Cuban embassy, who was present as the representative of Ambassador Ferrara.

The American Representatives.

There were also present Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union; Francis White, Assistant Secretary of State; Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of customs, and J. B. Frisbie, assistant in the Foreign Commerce Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce. In addition to the Postmaster General, the Postoffice Department was represented by Assistant Postmaster Generals Glover and Tilton, also Eugene B. White and George H. Grayson, director and assistant director of the division of International Postal Service, and Horace J. Donnelly, solicitor of the department.

Señor Montalvo, in an address, welcomed the restoration of the right to export freely to the United States his country's "only mailable production."

"In spite of criticisms, mostly originating in ignorance," he said, "I have always believed in the inherrent moral greatness of this country. This is an instance of such greatness, for you have not failed to recognize our rights to negotiate a convention with mutual reciprocal advantages.

"We could not be satisfied with the expansion of commercial relations if these contacts failed to develop a better understanding and a more comprehensive and sympathetic view of the lives and the problems of our peoples. * * *"

"We are pleased with the signing of the parcel post convention, and we must be allowed to express our appreciation and recognition, not only to the men of the present American administration whose efforts were decisive in favor of the signing of this convention among whom President Hoover, Postmaster General Brown and Assistant Postmaster General Glover stand foremost, but to other men of the past administration, former President Coolidge and Postmaster General New, who recognized the justice of Cuba's demands."

Brown Explains Old Provisions.

In response, Postmaster General Brown said in part:

"I need not speak of the good-will existing between this country and the republic to the south of us and to express the wish and hope that these pleasant relations may continue, as I know they will.

"It is only proper for me at this time, however, to point out that the law which has been the insurmountable obstacle to the existence of a parcel post convention between the United States and Cuba was passed prior to the entrance of Cuba into the sisterhood of republics."

A copy of the convention was sent to President Hoover, who fostered the present agreement, for signature and to Secretary Stimson.

AMESBURY RESTORES 'THE CAPTAIN'S WELL'

AMESBURY, Mass., July 24.—The pledge of Valentine Bagley, given to a burning sky on a waterless Arabian desert many years ago, was recalled today in the rededication of Captain Bagley's well to the service of the people of Amesbury and of visitors to the town.

In 1793, Captain Bagley, cast away with twenty-seven other Yankee sailors in the East, pledged himself to "dig a well fo rthe passer-by" if he survived to return to his home.

The people of surrounding towns joined with those of Amesbury in ceremonies marking the restoration of the well the captain dug. Governor Tobey of New Hampshire, Secretary of State Cook of Massachusetts, Colonel Ned Arden Flood, New York financier; members of the State judiciary and legislative branches, soldiers, sailors and clergy participated in the exercises.

A message of congratulation from President Hoover on "the perpetuation of a historical tradition" was read to the gathering.

The location of the well is now the lawn of the Amesbury High School. There Colonel Flood, the speaker of the day, told the story of Captain Bagley's pledge and its fruition and quoted from the poem of John Greenleaf Whittier, which immortalized "The Captain's Well."

GOLDING NOT SUSPENDED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Captain George W. Golding, prohibition agent at Albany, has not been suspended, but is on leave pending investigation of charges against him which were forwarded to Washington about a week ago, according to Howard R. Jones, assistant prohibition director.

Beyond stating that the case is a "personal matter," officials today refused to discuss it, declining to confirm or deny the report that complaint of misconduct on the part of Captain Golding had been made by a stenographer in the Albany office.

The report that Captain Golding had come to Washington was confirmed by Mr. Jones, who stated, however, that there had been no discussion with him of any complaints.

WARNS OF CRIME MENACE.

Federal Attorney Reports on Prosecutions in New Jersey.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 24.—In making public his annual report today, Philip Forman, United States Attorney for New Jersey, asserted public apathy to law enforcement is reaching the point when the great mass of law-abiding citizens will find themselves at the mercy of "racketeers."

For the fiscal year ending June 30, according to his report, there were 883 convictions, as compared with 797 in 1929 and 438 in 1928. The number of acquittals for the year in criminal cases was 11, as compared with 13 for the previous year and 18 for 1928. The report lists 895 criminal cases pending, as compared with 1,029 last year. Of the pending cases 469 are against violators of the national prohibition law.

Fines collected in criminal cases were put at $169,889.01 for this year, as compared with $115,031 for last year.

75 CONTRACTS UNDER FIRE

Charges that contractors have engaged 400 painters to repaint city schools at less than half the prevailing wage rate will be heard next Tuesday and Wednesday by First Deputy Controller Frank J. Prial in Room 500, Municipal Building. Preliminary hearings have already been held on the complaint filed by District Council 9 of the Brotherhood of Painters.

Condemning the letting of contracts to "unfair contractors" who pay their help, mainly non-union painters, $6 per day, when the prevailing rate is estimated variously at from $12 to $13.20 per day, Philip Zausner, secretary of the New York District Council, in a long written complaint filed with the Controller's office, enumerated the union grievances. A principal contention is that contractors, anxious to obtain the city contracts for repainting schools, bid so low that they are unable to meet the prevailing wage rate.

Charges Contracts are Broken.

Mr. Zausner's complaint alleges that the contractors have broken their contracts with the city by violating Subdivision Three of Section 220 of the State Labor Law, calling for the payment of prevailing wage rates on all municipal work. He declares further that the unemployment situation in the painting trade, where 40 per cent of union painters are idle at what is considered the peak of the season, is further aggravated by the hiring of non-union painters at "less than a living wage."

The painters' union gave the controller a list of seventy-five public schools where it contends painting is being done in violation of the State law.

The complaint says the work is being done "by contractors who, we are reliably informed, are habitual offenders in the respect that they have failed to pay the prevailing rate of wage. These contractors constitute but a small a number of those who should be investigated.

"In fact, we are reliably informed that there is not a single contractor, under contract with the city of New York for this character of work, who pays the prevailing wages to his painters, despite the fact that schedules filed with you would indicate the prevailing rate of wage to be paid."

Scores "Cut-Throat" Competition.

Mr. Zausner calls attention to what he describes as a novel development in bidding on the part of contractors for city work.

"In the past," he declares, "there was complaint about collusive bidding by contractors, causing the city to spend more money for its work than was properly warranted. In this case, however, the city would seem to be benefiting by a cut-throat competition maintained by a certain group of contractors who are able to bring down their bids a great deal below the city's own estimated cost.

"While upon the surface it would seem that the city is saving money on this underpayment of labor, a proper inspection of the type of work done by these contractors would reveal the fact that, because of inferior workmanship, the city is receiving a good deal less than what it is paying for."

Police Capt. Ayers to Go to Camp.

Acting Police Captain John H. Ayers, who ranks as major in the Officers' Reserve Corps, will command the 310th Military Police Battalion when it goes on active duty for two weeks, beginning Sunday, at Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., it was announced yesterday by Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commandant of the Second Corps Area, at Governors Island. Inspector Thomas M. Fay, retired, will be in command of the 321st Military Battalion during the same period and other officers at Plattsburg will be Major Morris Joseph and Major William T. Davis.

Wisdom and Folly Are Very Near Neighbors

It was Josh Billings who said the trouble with some educated people is not that they know so many things, but that—they often "know so many things that are not so." Truly, "all is not gold that glitters" nor can we receive as actual truth everything that passes current in conversation by the way. To repeat innocently the commonplaces of the day can only be done safely in a guarded way. We must carry a good, clear head with us all the time.

"You say this is a 'Buyer's Market' For Furniture

What does that mean?"

JUST this, Madam: It means that the 1930 buyer of furniture—you, we hope—will get more for her money than she did last year, or will have to spend less for what she gets. For instance:

A certain chair in our stock, equal in every way to one selling for $150 last year, now sells regularly for $100, and our August Sale price is $68.

A couch, equal in every way to one selling for $236 last year, now sells regularly for $183, and our August Sale price is $146.

The lowering of the regular price is due partly to the effect of market conditions on furniture manufacturers, and partly, we believe, to a re-adjustment of values in the furniture industry, whereby new low levels of price and new high levels of quality will prevail.

The low sale prices are the result of our being able to buy in such enormous quantities. Our two stores together are offering during August over four million dollars' worth of furniture at 20% to 50% less than regular prices.

This combination—market situation and Wanamaker buying power—works to the good of those who want to buy furniture. It is to their advantage to buy now. It is, literally, their market. It is your market, Madam, and we hope you will prove this for yourself by a thorough investigation of the furniture values on our floors.

REPUBLICANS DEFER REPLY TO WALKER

NEW GRAFT DATA SOUGHT

But Socialists Announce They Will Press Demand for Inquiry by a State Agency.

KURTZ SUBPOENA MONDAY

The Republicans will defer until a "more opportune" time their reply to Mayor Walker's recent radio address in defense of his administration, occasioned by the demand for an investigation of New York City affairs, either by some agency designated by Governor Roosevelt or by a committee of the Legislature, it was learned yesterday.

At the headquarters of the Republican advisory committee of New York County, of which General James G. Harbord is chairman, it was said that there was no immediate prospect of General Harbord coming to the front in an attempt to break down Mayor Walker's defense. The committee, it was said, was not, for the time being at least, interested in Mayor Walker's offer to permit use of the city's broadcasting station for that purpose. It was suggested in one quarter, however, that any new disclosure of material importance might occasion a change of policy on the part of the Republicans and possibly give rise to a new demand for a city inquiry.

Socialists to Press Attack.

Socialist leaders, according to announcement made last night, will continue their efforts to create sentiment throughout the State for a New York City investigation under State auspices. Louis Waldman, who will be the Socialist nominee for Governor and is chairman of the Socialist party committee on public affairs, it was announced, would reply to the recent letter of Governor Roosevelt pronouncing a State inquiry unnecessary, in an address Mr. Waldman is to deliver tomorrow evening at the annual picnic of the Socialist and Progressive labor organizations, which is to be held at Ulmer Park in Brooklyn.

Senate Leader John Knight, when questioned over the long distance telephone at his home in Arcade, N. Y., yesterday, said he knew nothing about a proposal to have the Baumes Commission, which is to meet today at the rooms of the New York City Bar Association, take up an investigation of the New York City Administration, and placed no credence in the report to that effect.

At the most, according to an opinion expressed in Republican circles, the Baumes Commission, under a liberal interpretation of the legislative mandate under which it is operating, might be empowered to take up an investigation of the local courts. Attempts to reach Senator Caleb H. Baumes, chairman of the commission, by telephone at his Newburgh home last night failed.

Kurtz Subpoena Monday.

James A. Higgins, Commissioner of Accounts, announced yesterday that he would subpoena Irwin Kurtz, chairman of the Republican Speakers Bureau, on Monday for any testimony he may offer in support of his charges that Tammany favorites received low assessments on their property from the Department of Taxes and Assessments.

In summoning Mr. Kurtz, a former candidate for City Court Judge, the Commissioner of Accounts will not only force a show-down on his allegations, but will also test his right to call witnesses who are not in city employ. Mr. Kurtz has disputed this right, saying that he would not heed the summons from Commissioner Higgins because he wanted to show how ineffectual the latter's investigation of the Dock Department and the Board of Standards and Appeals is.

If the Republican leader refuses to appear Commissioner Higgins said he would ask Corporation Counsel Hilly to obtain a ruling from the Supreme Court. If the court decides Mr. Kurtz must answer he will be compelled to appear or be adjudged in contempt of court.

George H. Payne, Republican Tax Commissioner, who demanded that Mr. Kurtz be required to substantiate his charges, will be welcome at the hearing if he chooses to appear, Commissioner Higgins said, but no subpoena will be issued for him.

"I am glad that Commissioner Higgins is going to call Kurtz," Commissioner Payne said. "He made this specific statement of rumors of improprieties and he will now get an opportunity to make good."

The investigations of the Dock Department and the Board of Standards and Appeals have not yet reached the point where public hearings can be begun, Commissioner Higgins said. He went to the Appeals Board offices in the Municipal Building yesterday to supervise the investigation there, explaining that he wanted to keep in personal touch with it.

Halleran Replies to Thomas.

John J. Halleran, Acting Borough President of Queens, declared yesterday that the charges made by Norman Thomas, former Socialist candidate for Mayor, of irregularity in connection with the work of the Highway Bureau were based on misinformation and were made as a "blatant attempt at cheap political innuendo."

Commissioner Halleran replied to Mr. Thomas's letter to Borough President Harvey demanding an inquiry into the financing of the paving of certain streets in the Rockaways. He explained that he had not received Mr. Thomas's letter until yesterday as Mr. Harvey is in Plattsburg, N. Y., at the United States Army Reserve camp.

Ransom of $100,000 Paid, Victim 'Laughs Off' Kidnapping

PEORIA, Ill., July 24 (AP).—William Urban, pool hall proprietor and operator of a baseball pool, returned to his home unharmed today after three days in the hands of kidnappers. Urban was ambushed near his country home Monday by five men, who drove him away in his own automobile, setting his child free several miles from home. Urban telephoned Sheriff Grant Minor that he was not hurt and "laughed off" the incident.

The Peoria Journal said it had information that $100,000 ransom had been paid for his liberation. Urban is reputed wealthy.

SOURCE OF ORDER MYSTERY

Concessionaires' Default on $21,000 Privilege Fee Revealed—Woman Arrested as Test.

Sitting on the Coney Island beach in a privately owned chair was still a misdemeanor yesterday, although everybody from Mayor Walker and Borough President Hesterberg to the lowliest prospective chair-sitter expressed indignation at police action in resurrecting the ancient ordinance which made it so.

Police Captain John J. Gillen at the Coney Island station insisted that he had his orders and would continue to enforce the old law until told otherwise. Meanwhile, it remained a mystery as to who issued the order and why.

The Mayor announced he would confer with Commissioner Mulrooney and that the existence of the ordinance had been kept a secret from him. Mr. Hesterberg also denied knowledge of the anti-beach chair law, although it was reported at the police station Wednesday that the enforcement order had come through his office.

A rumor spread that the order had originated with Herman Hessberg, superintendent of public buildings and offices, who is in charge of the Boardwalk at Coney Island, and that the police had confused him with Mr. Hesterberg. This was not confirmed.

Mrs. McLaughlin Invites Test.

Complaints flooded the Borough President's office all day. The M. and C. Corporation, which controls the beach chair concession, denied all knowledge of the matter, but it was revealed that the corporation had defaulted on its $21,000 annual payment to the city, citing police failure to enforce the ordinance as the chief reason.

In the meantime nineteen women and one man were arraigned before Magistrate Maguire in Coney Island court on charges of having violated the city ordinance by bringing chairs to the beach without a permit from the Borough President. They pleaded not guilty and the cases were adjourned until Aug. 6.

During the day police served four more summonses, one of them to Mrs. Helen McLaughlin, a relative of the former Police Commissioner, who is 38 years old and lives at 2 Washington Square, Manhattan. Mrs. McLaughlin announced that she had brought her chair to the beach expressly to receive a summons, and would make a test case of the matter.

The three others who received summonses were only a fraction of hundreds of picnickers who violated the ordinance. Police shooed the rest away, following orders to use force only when the chair sitters became balky. Mrs. Grace Gaylor, 38 years old, 6 Seyfried Court, Coney Island, received a summons returnable July 29. Isadore Beninowitz, 40, 3,100 Lakeland Place, Brighton Beach, and Mrs. Bertha Resnick, 35, 307 Brighton Beach Avenue, will appear in court today.

"Bootleg" Rentals Charged.

In court Benjamin Bronowitz, counsel for the twenty accused, moved that the charges be dismissed on the ground that Section 286, Chapter 23, of the city ordinance covering the beach chair question, was unconstitutional. Magistrate Maguire denied the motion.

The lawyer argued that it was improper to summon private citizens to court for bringing chairs on the beach while a corporation was permitted to rent chairs there. At the time the Boardwalk was built, he reminded the magistrate, the city paid $20,000,000 to provide more adequate beach surface for the public.

The M. & C. Corporation is owned by Samuel Beyers and Frank Collins and has the exclusive right to rent chairs at the beach. The rental is 10 cents for the first two hours and 5 cents an hour thereafter. The corporation has charged that bootleg operators have been working in the side streets, renting chairs for 15 cents a day. A committee of women and newspaper men made the rounds of the beach and side streets and reported no sign of the illicit traffic.

After several hundred persons had visited Borough Hall to protest against the edict, Mr. Hesterberg announced that he would "take every step possible to see that the ordinance is revoked or amended so that the people may bring their chairs to the beach."

Mr. Hesterberg revealed that one woman who visited him had been ordered by her physician to lie on the beach as a treatment for arthritis. He said he would grant her a license immediately.

It was learned that the disputed law had been passed during the administration of former Borough President Edward Riegelmann, in 1923, and that it contained another clause restricting the use of cameras on the beach.

Over in Far Rockaway Edmond J. Powers of the local Chamber of Commerce announced that residents and civic organizations were prepared to fight any move by the police to extend the crusade there.

R. C. A., OPTIMISTIC, TAKES ON 7,000 MEN

Proceeding upon the conviction that there is nothing wrong with business or the country, the R. C. A. Victor Company has just added 7,000 employes to the payroll at its Camden (N. J.) plant, expecting to bring the total number of employes up to 20,000 by Aug. 1, E. E. Shumaker, president of the company, announced yesterday.

A daily output of 9,000 radio sets is the production goal the company has set for itself, Mr. Shumaker said. It had been hoped, he declared, to achieve this mark by Aug. 1, but it will not be reached until later in the month.

The 7,000 additional employes, 60 to 70 per cent of whom will be on a piece-work basis, are evenly divided among the various departments, such as the cabinet-making, radio and electrola divisions. Like the older R. C. A. Victor employes they will enjoy the five-day forty-hour week which was introduced at the plant four years ago.

Millions of dollars are being put into increased production, Mr. Shumaker stated, in the belief that the present depression is psychological and a false indication of the American public's buying power.

"If the pessimists will go back to work, they will realize there is nothing fundamentally wrong with business or the country," Mr. Shumaker declared. "People will spend more. We are going to proceed on that basis until we are convinced that we are wrong."

It was said at the R. C. A. Victor plant yesterday that such signs of confidence on the part of large-scale business would reassure the small business man. The R. C. A. Victor officials are convinced, it was declared, that the industrial depression has run its course. It was said that it was not necessary to wait for prosperity to return in full force before preparing to take advantage of the restoration of normal conditions.

The American habit of chewing gum is responsible for keeping one of the largest factories in Long Island City working day and night, according to a statement yesterday by A. A. Masterson, treasurer of the American Chicle Company. The main offices of the company and one of its largest plants are on Thomson Avenue, Long Island City.

"Because of an avalanche of orders our company has been compelled to take on a night force," said Mr. Masterson. "This force is large enough to operate between thirty and forty machines and it augments the regular staff of between 600 and 700 employes working in the daytime. This extra force will be employed indefinitely and a lay-off of any portion of the present working personnel is a very remote possibility."

LIFE ACTUARY DOUBTS THAT AGED TURK IS 156

Insurance Expert Says So Long a Span Is Impossible—Puts Age at 90 to 100.

While Zaro Agha, native of Kurdistan and resident of Istanbul and reputed to be the oldest man in the world, was enjoying the sights of New York yesterday serious doubt as to the accuracy of the claim that any one could live 156 years was expressed by Arthur Hunter, chief actuary of the New York Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Hunter said that there was no evidence that any human being had ever lived longer than 106 years and that the Turk certainly was not 100 years old and probably not over 90.

"The fuss which is being made over the Turk who states that he is 156 years of age," said Mr. Hunter, "is amusing to those who have any knowledge of the extreme age to which persons live.

"It will be noted," said Mr. Hunter, "that all of those who claim extreme old age in recent years lived in countries where no documentary proof can be obtained. One of these is a native of Manchuria who in 1923 was said to have been granted an old age pension by the Chinese Government on proof that he was 163 years of age.

"The case popularly quoted to prove that persons can live to a very old age is that of Thomas Parr, who was buried in Westminster, his claim to fame being based solely on his assertion that he had lived to the age of 152. The most careful search made in the various registers and diocesan records failed to find anything which would substantiate his statement.

"I have investigated many alleged cases of longevity in this country and in every instance have found that the age has been greatly exaggerated. The last person whom I investigated stated that he was 117 years of age and had gone fishing until a year ago, but a review of the records in the census office at Washington showed that in one decade between censuses he had advanced his age over thirty years, and that taking an early census as the correct statement of his date of birth he was slightly over 90."

Calvin Harris, American manager for Zaro Agha, said last night, when informed of the statement of Mr. Hunter, that he believed there was not the slightest doubt of the antiquity of the Turk. The Turkish Government, he pointed out, had spent three weeks investigating before it issued the birth certificate attesting that Zaro's age was 156.

"The Turkish Government," he said, "certainly would not have let him make a fool of himself, or a fool of the Turkish Government. There is no doubt that he is 156 Moslem years old, and the Moslem year is only two days shorter than the Christian year."

MAINE "WET" CONVICTED.

D. B. Dewar, Who Ran for Senate, Appeals Sentence as Drinking Driver

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., July 24 (AP).—Dugald B. Dewar, who made an unsuccessful campaign for the Republican nomination for Senator on a "wet" ticket in the June primaries, was before the municipal court today on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Mr. Dewar, a Portland investment dealer, was arrested last night by a patrolman, who testified that he found a pint bottle three-fourths full of whisky in Mr. Dewar's hip pocket.

The defendant was found guilty and sentenced to sixty days in jail. He appealed and was released on $1,000 bail.

Mayor Walker, as umpire, calls a strike on Alderman William Solomon after the ball lands in the glove of Catcher Austin Titus, secretary of the Police Department.

Mayor Walker was "recalled" from his position of umpire in the baseball game at Pelham Park yesterday between a team representing the Board of Aldermen and a team from the Association of City Hall Reporters because he made what the reporters described as "a bum decision" against them. The game was played on an outing attended by the Aldermen, heads of city departments and newspaper men.

The reporters won the ball game by a score of 10 to 1. John Wagner of The Bronx Home News pitched for the newspaper men and Richard Maher of the association was their catcher. Alderman Peter J. McGuinness of Greenpoint pitched so well for the Aldermen that he was taken out on demand of the newspaper men after he had held them hitless for five innings. Alderman William Solomon replaced him and Alderman Tim Sullivan was catcher for the Aldermanic team.

Major William Kennelly, president of the New York Athletic Club, played with the newspaper men and sewed up the ball game by hitting two home-runs with the bases full. Dudley Field Malone was the base umpire. A golf tournament was started on the Pelham links, but had to be stopped because of heavy rain. Among the 150 at the outing were Tammany Leader John F. Curry, Police Commissioner Mulrooney, Congressional Representatives from New York City and many Republican leaders. The joint committee in charge of the outing included Aldermen Murray Stand, Peter McGuinness, Frank Cunningham and Dennis Mahon, and John Wagner, James Durkin, Ray O'Sullivan and George Dobson for the newspaper men.

APPROVES ADDITION OF 297 TEACHERS

22 PRINCIPALS ADDED

Other New Posts Include 8 Aides to Principals, 20 Teacher-Clerks and 247 Instructors.

Approval of the extension of the elementary school teaching force by the establishment of 297 additional positions to take care of the expected growth of the system during 1931 was voted yesterday by the school budget committee headed by Arthur S. Somers, Brooklyn member of the Board of Education.

The cost of the enlargement of the elementary school instructors' staff was placed at $363,000.

The committee made provision for the creation of twenty-two principalships. The new teaching posts include 8 assistants to principal, 20 teacher-clerks, 53 7A-8B teachers, 191 1A-6B teachers and 3 special teachers for physical training.

Provision was made also for several additions to various classifications of elementary school positions for the coming semester. The staff of the schools, including the additions, in the Fall will comprise 594 principals, 670 assistants to principals, 849 teacher-clerks, 3,086 upper-grade teachers, 15,774 lower-grade teachers and 84 special teachers.

The force will assume record proportions in the Fall of next year, when, following the establishment of the positions approved by the committee, there will be 616 principals, 19,104 academic teachers and 87 physical training instructors.

The additional cost of the new positions, it was explained, is in no way unusual, as the natural growth of the system with its more than 1,200,000 pupils requires an annual extension of plant and staff in its various divisions.

The new higher positions will go, for the most part, to teachers and employes already in the system, and in that sense there will be no additions to the size of the staff, at least as far as the principalships and assistant principalships are concerned. The teachers will be recruited from the long-overcrowded eligibility lists.

The committee provided for five additional laboratory assistants and three library assistants for the high schools during the Spring term of 1931. The following semester, it is provided, three posts of each of the two classifications will be added. The average salary for laboratory assistants is $1,900 and that for library assistants $2,100.

In addition the committee approved an increase of fifty teachers-in-training, whose compensation is $4.50 a day for 191 school days.

The additions to the staff were referred to the committee by a subcommittee which had been investigating the needs of the system preparatory to the drawing up of the budget for next year.

COOLIDGE'S COUSIN WINS PRIX DE ROME

27 COMPETE FOR HONOR

A distant cousin of former President Coolidge has won this year's Prix de Rome award in landscape architecture, which has an estimated cash value of $8,000 and enables the winner to study three years abroad. The successful candidate in this year's competition was Richard Coolidge Murdock, 25 years old, who was graduated by Cornell University in 1929.

Although Mr. Murdock now lives in Ossining, N. Y., he was born in Woburn, Mass., and is descended from the Coolidges of Coolidge Hill, near Boston. This is not the identical branch of the family through which the former President traces his ancestry, Mr. Murdock said yesterday, although the branches are related. The winner of the Prix de Rome said that he had never met the former President.

The problem in this year's Prix de Rome competition was the designing of a country estate. The winner planned his setting for a house of American Colonial design. Twenty-seven other young men from various colleges and universities entered the preliminary competition. Six were selected to take part in the final test, which was judged yesterday at the Grand Central Art Galleries.

Honorable mention and awards of $50 each were given to Hodge Jackson Hanson, 26 years old, of Mount Carmel, Ill., who was graduated by the University of Illinois in 1928, and to Neil Hamill Park, 26 years old, of Lansing Mich., who was graduated from Cornell in 1928. The winner and the two who received honorable mention participated in the 1929 Prix de Rome competition.

Mr. Murdock is a son of H. H. Murdock, an architect of the firm of Jardine, Hill & Murdock of this city. While in his senior year at Cornell the young man was struck by an automobile and so seriously injured that he had to leave college for a year. He is a member of the Gargoyle and L'Ogive Societies of the College of Architecture at Cornell and a member of the Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity.

The competing plans were judged by a committee consisting of Ferruccio Vitale, chairman; Arthur F. Brinckerhoff, Noel Chamberlain, Ralph Griswold and Albert D. Taylor.

Garet Garrett Recovering.

LOS ANGELES, July 24 (AP).—Garet Garrett, magazine writer, today was recovering from an attack of acute indigestion in a hospital here. Hospital attachés said he probably will be able to resume his tour of the Pacific Coast with George Horace Lorimer, editor of The Saturday Evening Post.

WIRELESS TIP LEADS TO LIQUOR ON LINER

LIQUEURS FOUND IN COAL

Deputy Surveyor John H. McGill, the "psychic" Custom House officer who has attributed many of his liquor seizures to his revealing dreams and "hunches," proved yesterday that he could function quite as efficiently by the use of natural deduction.

As a result, 4,000 bottles of liqueurs—benedictine, yellow and green chartreuse, curaçao and cointreau—valued at $40,000, were dumped yesterday on the stone floor of the United States Barge Office. The liquor, found after a two-hour search on board the Fabre liner Patria at Pier 31, Brooklyn, was the second large seizure of the day.

Earlier in the day Boatswain Carl Schmidt in command of a Coast Guard cutter had overhauled the fishing smack Antonia in Ambrose Channel, arrested four members of the crew and confiscated 1,000 cases of Scotch and rye whisky, valued at $75,000.

The seizure on the Patria, which had docked Monday from ports in the Mediterranean and Aegean Seas, followed a late vigil McGill kept Wednesday over a short-wave radio set which had been taken from a liquor runner. It was a type of receiving set used to pick up short-wave messages from rum row, he explained.

The deputy surveyor found that the set was not working very well. The hour was shortly before midnight, a time when, he explained, he has received through "occult" channels tips on the whereabouts of liquor. No tip seemed lurking in the atmosphere this night. McGill twisted the dials of the set and poked at its tubes impatiently.

A garbled message came through the air in dots and dashes. McGill, who once served in the navy, knows the Morse international code, and in that code, he said, he recognized two words, "Patria" and "midnight." Next he recognized the code signals for "4,000."

This was enough for the surveyor, even though it was not occult. He called up Inspector James Maston and ordered him to take patrol boat 546 to Pier 31 and search the Patria. Maston, equipped with a blueprint of the vessel, which had been thoroughly searched Monday, carried out this order. He searched the vessel from stem to stern.

"No liquor," he reported by phone to McGill an hour later.

"Look in the coal bunkers," McGill ordered, acting this time, he said, on pure "hunch."

Customs men shoveled coal for more than a hour. Finally they were rewarded by finding the liquor neatly wrapped in protecting burlap bags. They reported this to McGill.

"There should be 4,000 bottles," the surveyor said.

He was correct.

The seizure, Mr. McGill said, may cost the Patria's owners a fine of $20,000, or $5 a bottle, though every one on shipboard denied all knowledge of the hidden cargo. The captain of the liner is scheduled to appear today before George Brewer, Assistant Solicitor of the Port.

Mr. Brewer questioned four members of the crew of the Antonia without gaining any information about where they had loaded their liquor. He ordered them to be taken before Edward Stanton, United States Commissioner in Hoboken. The men said they were James Coppolo, 412 East Eleventh Street; Peter Olsen, 5,502 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn; Arthur Hansen, 554 Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, and Nick Olsen, 441 Fifty-third Street, Brooklyn.

Boat Seized Off Block Island.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 24.—Camouflaged as a sword fisherman, and carrying an estimated cargo of between 400 and 500 cases of assorted liquors of an estimated value of $30,000 at bootleg prices, the forty-five-foot fishing boat Blanche R. of South Dartmouth, Mass., was seized last night in the Atlantic Ocean off Block Island by the Coast Guard destroyer Downes. She was brought to the Coast Guard base here today by the Downes.

Five men aboard the Blanche R. at the time of the seizure were under arrest in custody of the Coast Guard. They will be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran here this afternoon.

The Coast Guard said that the Blanche R. is registered in the names of Milton P. Healy of Chatham, Mass., and Walter R. Wood of Westfield, Mass., copartners, as a vessel engaged in fishing for the South Dartmouth Fish Company.

The crew of the Blanche R., charged with conspiracy to smuggle liquor, were arraigned before Commissioner Corcoran at the Custom House at 2:30 this afternoon and the hearing was continued until Monday. Bail of $5,000 was set for the captain and of $1,000 for each of the crew. In default of bond the men were taken to the county jail here.

$40,000 Seizure in Delaware.

DOVER, Del., July 24 (AP).—Nine men were arrested and 10,000 bottles of alleged whisky and wine, a 30-foot speed boat and two automobiles were seized by a Federal agent and a force of constables in a raid at Fleming's Landing, near Smyrna, today. The beverages were valued by the Federal agent at $40,000.

A crew, believed to number a score, manned the boat, named Don, yet all but eight escaped in the excitement of the raid, made as the boat was being warped into a pier at an abandoned tannery on the Smyrna River.

HELD FOR LOW FLYING.

Pilot in Queens Court on First Complaint of Police Air Force.

The first hearing under the ordinance which became effective June 30 against low flying over congested districts resulted in the holding for trial under $500 bond of F. H. Phillips, a pilot, of 1,901 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx, by the Queens Court of Special Sessions. Phillips was before Magistrate Doyle in the Flushing magistrate's court on a complaint made by Chief Pilot Jack Friedman of the New York Police Department Air Service Unit stationed at the North Beach Airport.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 24.—You don't hear so much of prohibition lately. Just drinking for the novelty of the thing has about wore off, and the ones that really liked it and decided to adopt it seriously have just settled down to steady drinking and are keeping pretty quiet about it.

The House of Commons endorsed the naval treaty yesterday without the Norris amendment, which said, "if there is any catch in this that we can't see, why, it don't go."

The British said, "If there is anything in it and we can't see it before we sign, why, that's our fault."

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

EDWARDS SUMMONS WOMAN WET LEADER

Challenging Mrs. Holmes's Statement on Speakeasies, He Calls Her for Grand Jury.

HE DEFENDS ENFORCEMENT

Denies Liquor Resorts Are as Numerous in Nassau as Saloons Once Were.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 24.—Mrs. Christian R. Holmes, chairman of the meetings committee of the New York State division of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, who was hostess to the leaders of that organization at her estate in Sands Point, L. I., yesterday, was summoned today by District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards to appear before the Nassau County grand jury next Tuesday and present the data which prompted her to say that there are now five speakeasies for every saloon which formerly existed in Nassau County.

When Mr. Edwards was informed by the process server that Mrs. Holmes would not obey the subpoena, but expected to go to Europe, he sent a telegram notifying her that if she did not obey the subpoena a writ of attachment would be asked for. He supplemented these notices by addressing a letter to Mrs. Holmes, which said in part:

"This morning's New York papers carried a story in which you are quoted as making a speech at your home in which you say that Nassau County is worse than New York City and has five speakeasies for every former saloon. This is particularly interesting to me as I have tried to eliminate the places that are properly speakeasies and from your statement you must have had some very definite information from some one. Therefore I am inviting you to appear before the grand jury on Tuesday next, July 29, at 10 A. M., with whatever data you have.

"It may interest you to know that in 1929 this office spent for the elimination of speakeasies $50,000 on special investigations, that nearly 300 defendants were convicted and that they paid fines aggregating $72,000.

"As a result of this campaign, handled solely by the District Attorney to eliminate the dive and den type of speakeasy, the police survey estimated that we had succeeded, by the judgment of the court or voluntarily, in the closing of 500 such places during the year 1929. As to these the report shows that more than two-thirds of them went entirely out of business and in most instances the places were abandoned to gasoline stations or businesses entirely removed from any connection with the sale of liquor, and that the other third went on as restaurants under a system of observance established by the Probation Department connected with the county court and our check-up as to these convinces us that they did not go back into the same business.

"I have for 1930 undercover men and women working on this problem. In addition to these, 800 policemen are constantly giving me the information called for along this line, and I am afraid that your statement will prove one of two things—that your statement was without foundation or the police and undercover men have not made a truthful report to me.

"In your anxiety to help the cause for which your organization was established, I am sure you do not want to misstate the facts, and although there may be some speakeasies that operate very carefully and quietly, no complaints come to me about them. Yet I know they are not as numerous as the saloons.

"I think I can say to you that the records will show that I have more effectively set in motion the machinery to control the problem than any other county in the State."

JUDGE POUND ENDORSED BY BAR ASSOCIATION

Record Proves He Merits Support for Re-election to Appeals Bench, Says Resolution.

Associate Judge Cuthbert W. Pound of the Court of Appeals, whose term will expire at the end of this year, has been endorsed for re-election by the New York City Bar Association through action of its judiciary committee in a resolution that urges united support by all parties for his candidacy.

"Resolved, That in the opinion of the judiciary committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, Hon. Cuthbert W. Pound, who has now served a full elective term as judge of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, has not only competently and satisfactorily performed his duties as judge of that court, but has served as such with great distinction, and has upheld the independence, dignity and prestige of the bench. His renomination and re-election upon a non-partisan basis is therefore advocated and endorsed by this committee."

Samuel H. Ordway of the law firm of Spencer, Ordway & Wierum, chairman of the judiciary committee, said last night at his Summer home in East Hampton, L. I., that the judiciary committee had full power to act for the association in such matters and had deemed it wise to make public its action at this time as notice to all parties.

SAYS TRAFFIC JAMS COST $1,000,000 A DAY

GIVES REGIONAL PLAN'S AIM

CALLS IDEA COMMON SENSE

Traffic congestion in the metropolitan area costs $1,000,000 a day, which "means that we are losing the interest on more than $6,000,000,000 a year through failure to solve the traffic problem," Wayne D. Heydecker, associate director of the Regional Plan Association, told members of the New York Rotary Club yesterday at the weekly luncheon at the Hotel Commodore. In view of those figures, Mr. Heydecker said, the vast amounts spent for relief represent a saving and not a loss to the community.

"To meet the problem we have a proposition which does not involve drastic surgical measures," he added, "but a common sense idea of the circulation of traffic." He then went on to outline the four main points of the regional plan: Loop express highways with linking radials, a similar railway loop which skirts the area rather than entering the crowded centre, suburban rapid transit, and a system of regional parkways.

Mr. Heydecker told of the development of the idea, an outgrowth of the dream of one man, Charles D. Norton, who started in Chicago and was responsible for the Chicago plan. Later he came to New York and interested the Mitchel Administration in it and when that ended induced the Russell Sage Foundation to provide funds for subsequent studies.

Future Population Estimated.

"The first step of any architect or engineer," Mr. Heydecker said, "is to determine the human load of the structure." He told how these studies had estimated the future population of the area within a fifty-mile radius of New York envisaged in the regional plan, as 21,000,000 in 1965.

"That is a problem, on the face of it," he continued, "greater than any one State or government can handle; it requires the voluntary cooperation of the separate cities and communities." The area reaches into three States and contains 430 separate municipalities.

When the population doubles the number of automobiles trebles or quadruples, Mr. Heydecker explained, yet it is the aim of the regional plan surveys to handle the increased load better and easier by 1965 than it is handled today.

"Today it is necessary to go through the congested areas to get from one place to another," he continued, "and by congested areas we do not mean New York City alone but the triple centre of New Jersey, and western Long Island as well as New York City, through which all roads lead. The solution has been that of by-passing by means of a great circumferential loop. From the metropolitan highway loop there is a series of radials leading out in all directions and inside a series of connecting links.

Sees Self-Strangulation.

"Additional bridges and tunnels have been proposed by public officials, who have gone even further than engineers of the Regional Plan. The railroads are planned the same way. We are strangling ourselves today by our old habit of shipping everything into the centre and distributing from there. There will be a metropolitan trunk line railroad loop and within that a series of minor loops; the purpose being the same as the highway loop by-passing.

"There is no estimate of the cost of all this, but railroad executives, staggered by the figures, concede that it will be done because it will have to be done.

"Suburban rapid transit will have to be woven into the loop spurs connecting with existing lines.

Mr. Heydecker said that experience in Westchester proved that parkways were an investment, not an expense. He cited realty values which jumped from $650,000,000 in 1920 to $1,600,000,000 in 1930 to prove it.

"This plan I am telling you about," he continued, "is only a proposal. The villages and cities will have to take it up and work out the details, but if this serves as a guide, a stimulant and a goal to work for it will have served its function. We have no pride of authorship. Life thirty-five years from now will be more comfortable and more economic and it will be easier to get around with 7,000,000 cars than it is now with 2,000,000."

The new express highways will be wider than anything now known, Mr. Heydecker explained, with space for six lanes of through traffic and local streets adjoining.

BOARDWALK CENSOR NAMED

Atlantic City Mayor Orders Police Aide to Clean Up Games.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 24.—George Brennan, special police investigator and former head of the vice squad, was appointed boardwalk censor today with police powers to remove games of chance and other objectionable features. The appointment was made by Mayor Bacharach and Public Safety Director Cuthbert after the two had conferred with Brennan. It was a direct outcome of the Mayor's previously announced intention of cleaning up the Boardwalk.

Games to be banned include flim-flam wheels, bumpers, flashers, "or any game that can possibly be controlled by human devices," it was announced. Freak entertainments and ballyhoo also are taboo. The initial step was taken last night when the police gave proprietors of questionable enterprises twenty-four hours notice to close.

GIVES HINT OF SUIT TO STAY TICKET PLAN

CONFERS WITH WARD TODAY

Attorney General Hamilton Ward will meet Bernard Sandler and William R. Wilcox at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at his office, 51 Chambers Street, to discuss Mr. Sandler's complaint, filed in Albany on Tuesday, that the League of New York Theatres is a monopoly in restraint of trade and is driving out of business twenty-three ticket agents whom Mr. Sandler represents.

Mr. Sandler said yesterday that if the Attorney General failed to find cause for a dissolution suit against the league, there were "plenty of other legal steps possible." He added that an effort could be made to obtain an injunction.

At the offices of the league, Harlow D. Savage, executive secretary, said yesterday afternoon that he had not yet received official word of the filing of the complaint. The only news he had of Mr. Sandler's action, he said, was what he had read in the newspapers, and he declined to comment. Mr. Savage also denied that he had received a letter from George White which, according to Mr. White's representative, had been sent to the league by special delivery early in the afternoon.

Letter Threatens Action.

The letter, according to the White office, threatens further action against the new ticket control organization because twelve of the accredited brokers are permitted to handle seats for "Flying High" and three are not. Mr. White, in his letter, calls the league plan "virtually a blacklist," and says he will be compelled to seek relief in the courts unless an adjustment is made.

According to Mr. White's representative, the twelve agents who are handling tickets for his show are permitted by the league to do so because of a renewal clause in their original agreements for a "buy." The league contends that there was no such renewal clause in the agreements of the three other brokers. McBride's ticket office has never handled seats for "Flying High" because of a disagreement over the original "buy" some months before the league rules became effective.

Mr. White's advertisement in yesterday's newspapers, in which he asserted that no group of managers could force him to become party to a plan which would compel the public to pay "bootlegging" prices for theatre tickets, and in which he asked patrons to reserve their seats at the Apollo box office by telephone, did, however, bring a retort from Mr. Savage.

"I am glad to see courtesy in at least one non-league box office," he said, "and I am glad that Mr. White's interest in the public has at last been aroused."

Shumlin Gets Around Rules.

Herman Shumlin, producer of "The Last Mile," said yesterday that he and his representative, George Haight, were still taking direct care of requests from brokers not recognized by the league and that neither the league nor the Shuberts, who control the theatre where his play is showing, had attempted to interfere. Mr. Shumlin said that his scheme had proved effective in getting around the league regulations. Although the Shuberts' treasurer at the Harris Theatre is not permitted to sell seats to brokers not recognized by the league, Mr. Shumlin said that he as a producer could not be prevented from selling seats for his own attraction.

The league was also charged by an opponent yesterday with having requested its affiliated brokers to remove all advertising signs for theatrical productions from their office windows. The desire of the organization, it was said, is to be absolutely impartial and not to favor one show above another.

SEEK TO ENJOIN BERT LAHR

Supreme Court Justice Collins reserved decision yesterday on an application by Aarons & Freedley to restrain Bert Lahr from performing for George White in "Flying High" and to compel him to appear in their new play, "Crazy Girl." He was described by William Klein, counsel for Mr. Lahr and Mr. White, as a comedian of the first magnitude and a valuable member of the "Flying High" cast, and was declared to have made an inequitable contract with Aarons & Freedley because it guaranteed him no work or pay for an entire year, with the possible exception of two weeks, while it bound Mr. Lahr to them for the 1930-31 season, with an option for another season.

Mr. Lahr also contended that the plaintiffs had broken their contract because he signed it on condition that DeSylva, Brown and Henderson, who wrote "Hold Everything," should furnish the book, music and lyrics for his new play and they failed to do so. He also asserted that his agreement had been oral and was not the contract submitted to the court by the plaintiffs. It was also argued that "Flying High" cost more than $200,000 to produce and has a weekly payroll of $25,000. To take Mr. Lahr away from the show at this time would practically tie it up, which would be of no correlative benefit to the plaintiffs, who have not yet cast their play, it was asserted.

The plaintiffs insisted that because Mr. Lahr's services were unique and could not be duplicated he should be held to the contract.

WAR PLAY 'SUSPENSE' CAST.

The cast for "Suspense," Patrick MacGill's English war play, which Charles Dillingham will present at the Fulton Theatre on Aug. 11, will include Charles Dalton, John Halloran, Lionel Pape, Reynolds Denniston, Seth Arnold, Herbert Ransom, Alfred Ayre, James Vincent, Henry Savage, Frank Horton and Charles Dill. Like "Journey's End," "Suspense" will be acted entirely by men.

Reginald Denham, who staged the London production of the play, is now directing rehearsals for Mr. Dillingham.

The Amateur Cracksman Again.

RAFFLES, with Ronald Colman, Kay Francis, Bramwell Fletcher, Frances Dade, David Torrence, Alison Skipworth, Frederick Kerr, John Rogers and Wilson Benge; adapted by Sidney Howard from the stories of E. W. Hornung; news reel and short subjects. At the Rialto.

As the Rialto's curtain figuratively snapped down yesterday it closed out a scene of desolation. The celebrated detective Inspector McKenzie of Scotland Yard, was standing surrounded by disappointment and what is called a typical London fog. He looked sadly into the distance where the estimable Mr. Raffles—the cricket player—had just departed along the road to Paris and a new leaf in the book of life.

Outwitting the Yard had not been easy, Inspector McKenzie being, as he said, Scotch. But with the aid of a girl, a pistol, a small coil of rope, a grandfather clock and a storm cape Mr. Raffles had finally been able to bring it about. And so, starting for France instead of Amsterdam—the diamond market of the world—he was free of all retribution due him as The Amateur Cracksman. The Yard was annoyed, of course, but not too much.

Now, "Raffles" has been played before along and near the theatrical haunts of New York and London. Since E. W. Hornung wrote the stories which gave the gentlemanly crook to the world and a new word to the language, such diverse personages as Sir Gerald DuMaurier, the late Kyrle Bellew and John Barrymore attempted cricket bowling and safe-cracking with equal (and in one case, at least, silent) abandon. Ronald Colman, who mainly operates in the current edition, is, therefore, moving in good company.

The new "Raffles" is not, however, the picture by which Sidney Howard, Samuel Goldwyn or Mr. Colman will be longest remembered. It is a film of which even the most ardent admirer of any one of the above trio would say only "good—but." And after that it is difficult to find the reason for the negation. Possibly there are moments of slowness now at the Rialto, possibly some of the lines sound a trifle out of key. Or it might be a recollection of Mr. Colman's "Bulldog Drummond."

"Raffles" has just one exciting incident—the escape of the amateur cracksman from the toils of the Yard. Doors slam, pistols are shot, others are on the verge of being shot and the hero of it all finally emerges from his cramped quarters in the bottom of the clock. But before that are sequences of how love comes to a thief—and what it does to him—and interludes of a nature not particularly comic.

Mr. Colman seems at home throughout most of the picture's length—either at cricket or as man-about-town or as the cracksman. At the end he strolls forth in the inspector's cape, about as calmly as he had earlier strolled through love scenes. These, of course, were with Gwen, a rôle taken by Kay Francis and one which occasionally seemed a trifle musical-comedyish.

The story of "Raffles" must be fairly familiar by now. All of London, deep in its fog, is dismayed by the antics of the cracksman. The police try their best, but cannot lay their hands upon him. No one thinks to connect him with the famous cricket player. No one, that is, until the inspector, learning of a potential robbery, visits the home of Lord Melrose and finds Mr. Raffles in circumstances that are more than circumstantial.

The dénouement, as it is called, comes a little later at the Raffles apartment. The cracksman has confessed to Gwen, and when the inspector appears he makes another confession. But before he can be escorted suitably from there he dodges away into another room and the clock. And finally, dressing in the police coat, he goes away to the salutes of subordinates. And so to Paris.

Finally, it should be said that an audience that jammed the theatre yesterday obviously liked Mr. Colman and "Raffles" very much.

There are also several short subjects on the program. A comedy cartoon called—shades of Maine—"Stein Song"; something named "Neighborly Neighbors," and Lee Morse in "Song Service."

TWO THEATRES FOR TALKIE.

"Hell's Angels" to Have Premiere in Both Gaiety and Criterion.

"Hell's Angels," the film of battles in the air, which took a few years to make and is reputed to have cost nearly $4,000,000, will have its première on Broadway on the evening of Aug. 11, not in one but in two theatres at the same time.

Both the Criterion and the Gaiety will offer the production, and an electrical display, said to be the largest ever constructed for film exploitation, will be installed outside of each house.

Wells Hawks Convalescing.

Wells Hawks, president emeritus of the Theatrical Press Representatives and one of Broadway's best-known publicity men, is reported to be well on the road to recovery after a long illness. Mr. Hawks, a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Naval Reserve, has been in the United States Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, and more recently convalescing at Pomona, N. Y.

SCREEN NOTES.

The screen offering at the Paramount and Brooklyn Paramount is an audible film called "The Sap From Syracuse," based on the play of the same name, with Jack Oakie and Ginger Rogers.

"Golden Dawn," the audible picturization of the operetta by Oscar Hammerstein and Otto Harbach, with Noah Beery, Walter Woolf and Vivienne Segal, is at the Warners' Strand and the Brooklyn Strand.

At the Warners' Beacon the screen offering is "Dumbbells in Ermine," the talking version of Lynn Starling's play, "Weak Sisters," with Robert Armstrong and Barbara Kent.

BELASCO OPTIMISTIC ON EVE OF BIRTHDAY

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 24.—David Belasco, in discussing plans for the immediate future on the eve of his birthday, said he was starting work on four new plays. He will be 76 years old tomorrow. He said he admitted to 21 but that he sometimes felt like 10.

The dean of the American theatre in announcing the most ambitious program of his career said that "Dancing Partners," his first production of the season, now at the Apollo here, would open in New York on Aug. 5. Mr. Belasco will then turn his attention to a comedy by Baroness Lili Hatvany entitled "Tonight or Never." For the lead Mr. Belasco has signed Helen Gahagan. Miss Gahagan is at present in Italy pursuing vocal and operatic studies, but she will return to New York in time for rehearsals. She will return to Italy at the conclusion of the engagement. Players who will support Miss Gahagan are Ferdinand Gottschalk, Marion Abbott, Melvin Douglas, Warburton Gamble and Katherine Stewart.

Mr. Belasco will then begin rehearsals of a new comedy for Beth Merrill. It was written by Patrick Kearney and is as yet untitled. Mr. Kearney dramatized "An American Tragedy," by Theodore Dreiser.

Mr. Belasco's fourth production, to be offered after the holidays, will be "The Berg," by Ernest Raymond. For this play Mr. Belasco has signed C. Aubrey Smith.

Mr. Belasco also announced that he has obtained the dramatic rights to "Laughing Boy," the Pulitzer Prize novel by Oliver La Farge. The dramatic version has been made by Otis Chatfield Taylor. This will be his fifth production for the season.

He had expected to produce Gene Fowler's "Trumpet in the Dust," the dramatic rights to which he obtained, but Mr. Fowler is in Hollywood and unable to work with Mr. Belasco at present on the stage version.

Mr. Belasco discussed the prospects of the legitimate theatre in New York, which he thought were as bright as ever. He conceded that there were too many theatres but denied that the talkies constituted a serious menace to the stage.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that a crash is inevitable, as far as the moving pictures are concerned.

"I have never been in Hollywood. I will never be interested in the talkies. * * * You have to depend on lighting and cameras and all sorts of things. On the stage everything depends on real people.

"Canned—it's all canned, and the people are growing tired of it. You can't compare the theatre and the movies any more than you can compare canned peas and fresh peas.

Among many telegrams of congratulation received by Mr. Belasco today was one from Mayor Walker. It read:

FINDS RING, GETS $1,000.

Woman Rewarded by Mrs. R. T. Falk for Returning $8,000 Gem.

A woman, identified only as an employe in an apartment house at Park Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street, yesterday received a reward of $1,000 for returning an $8,000 diamond ring owned by Mrs. R. Tracy Falk of 20 East Seventy-sixth Street.

Mr. Falk, a stock broker of 20 Broad Street, put the ring in the watch pocket of his trousers last Saturday. Sunday evening he discovered that it was missing. The police were notified and Mr. and Mrs. Falk offered $1,000 reward in newspaper advertisements.

Yesterday morning the woman gave the ring to Mrs. Falk, saying she found it in the gutter on Park Avenue. Mrs. Falk paid the reward without asking her name.

Marc Connelly to Return Monday.

Marc Connelly, author of "The Green Pastures," will return Monday on the Volendam after an absence of several months in Europe. Mr. Connelly received word during his absence that his play had been awarded the Pulitzer prize. He originally went abroad to stage William Bolitho's play, "Overture, 1920," in London, but its production was abandoned just before Mr. Bolitho's sudden death.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Lost Sheep" will close at the Selwyn Theatre tomorrow night. With the same cast, the comedy is announced to reopen there on Aug. 11.

Horace Braham, contrary to the report in yesterday's TIMES, will not be in the cast of "Café," the forthcoming William A. Brady-John Tuerk production, which is now in rehearsal.

"Technique," of which Lou Tellegen is the leading player, will not come to Broadway next week. It will open on Aug. 2 in Great Neck, and may arrive here during the week of Aug. 4. It is mentioned for the Longacre Theatre.

The Shuberts will present "Let's Get Married," a comedy recently tried out in Southampton by the Hampton Players, in Long Beach and Great Neck on Aug. 15 and 16. Roger Pryor, it is understood, will be in the cast of the play, the authors of which are Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett.

Long Beach tonight will see the new Madge Kennedy play, "On the Q-T," which will go to Great Neck tomorrow night and to Asbury Park next week. The Shuberts are the producers, and Miss Kennedy's supporting cast includes Eric Blore, Charles Romano, Vera Neilson, Roland Hogue, J. H. Brewer and Reginald Carrington.

William Sauter, Wilfred Seagram and G. P. Huntley Jr. will be in the company of "Journey's End" which will reopen the play at Henry Miller's Theatre on Aug. 4. Richard Bird, as announced, will play the rôle of Captain Stanhope.

Three one-act plays, "The Man of Destiny," by Bernard Shaw; "She Was No Lady," by St. John Ervine and "Fallen Angel" by Barbara Channing, will be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings, Aug. 7 and 8, by the students of the Westchester Summer School of the Theatre. Albert R. Lovejoy is director of the school, which is being conducted by the Westchester County Recreation Commission at White Plains.

Odd Lots

Odd lot buying strengthens your financial holdings, because all of the burden is not on just one stock. Unforeseen conditions might affect one stock. With your total holdings divided amongst eight or ten leading stocks a depression in any one of them would not materially affect you.

Advantageous Investments

We are recommending the purchase of several Bonds and Preferred Stocks of public utility companies, yielding a somewhat more liberal return than many others, and which in our opinion, are well protected by a stable earning power and a strongly entrenched business which has shown steady progress over a period of years

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Drift Lower—Brokers' Loans Reduced, $1,500,000 More Gold to Canada.

Except for a batch of railway earnings for last month, making the expected unfavorable comparison with recent years, and for a shipment of a million and a half more gold by Canada, there were few developments of interest yesterday. The stock market's course reflected the financial apathy. For the third time in the month, less than 1,500,000 shares changed hands, and prices drifted slowly downward on the meager business done. It was merely another shift in the constantly narrowing ebb and flow of values, on a market which to all intents is stationary.

In the money market, there was no incident except the weekly report on brokers' loans, which were reduced $17,000,000, following the previous week's $40,000,000 increase. Except for the report of July 2, these credits are now at the lowest since the first week of September, 1927. They might logically enough be lower still, for brokers' loans at that earlier date had already increased $500,000,000 in a year and $1,000,000,000 in two years. Yesterday's statement showed the "loans by others" to have reached a new low figure for the period; they have been reduced $107,000,000 in a month and $3,109,000,000 from their high point of last October, but are still above any total reached before the Spring of 1927.

No more gold was engaged for France yesterday, although $1,500,000 more was withdrawn for Canada. The weekly statement of the Bank of France, covering the position of a week ago, reports addition of $17,700,000 in the week to its gold reserve. This is accounted for by the period's shipments from London, and probably also by some earlier shipments from New York; leaving something over $20,000,000, subsequently shipped from here and London, to be reported. Comparison shows the bank's gold holdings, as reported yesterday, to have increased $36,000,000 in a month, $69,000,000 in two months, $327,000,000 in a year and $624,000,000 since the official stabilization of two years ago. These are impressive accumulations; yet they need hardly cause astonishment to those who remember, first our own Federal Reserve's addition of $800,000,000 to its gold reserve in 1920 and a further similar sum in 1921; second, the overwhelmingly strong position of France in the international credit market.

It is a natural enough adjustment as between the United States and France, but the Bank of England's position is not favorably affected. The London bank statement reports loss of $6,500,000 gold during the week; the reduction since the opening week of May has been $46,000,000. The Bank of England still holds $21,000,000 more gold than a year ago, and its reduced loans and note issue, under the present business conditions, have sustained the ratio of reserve. But the position is not satisfactory, on the eve of the usual heavy Autumn remittances from England to America. For England it is fortunate that her purchases of our wheat and cotton have been so much reduced this season.

EXCHANGE SEAT FOR ELMER.

Banker to Join Phelps & McKee—Other Membership Changes.

Basil B. Elmer, who has been connected with the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company since 1923, was revealed yesterday as the prospective purchaser of a seat on the New York Stock Exchange for $400,000. Announcement of the transaction was made the day before.

Mr. Elmer, who has arranged to purchase the membership of Harold W. Jennys, will become a partner in the firm of Phelps & McKee if elected. Mr. Jennys joined the Exchange in August of last year.

Richard S. Reynolds Jr. has arranged to purchase for a nominal consideration the membership of Thomas F. Staley Jr. The purchaser, if elected, will become a partner in the firm of Reynolds & Co. Emory T. Wales has arranged to purchase the membership of Andrew J. Fox Jr. for a nominal consideration. He is a partner in Titus, Wales & Co.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Without any news developments to account for a shift in the Wall Street attitude toward the market, stocks developed a heavier tone yesterday and pool operators had difficulty in keeping their favorites on an even keel. It was considered significant, however, that trading turned dull on the reactions, so the general market community was far from blue when the day was over. Transactions on the Stock Exchange totaled less than 1,500,000 shares, the smallest volume for a full five-hour day in two weeks. Spokesmen for the market who are incorrigibly optimistic repeated the explanation yesterday of a "technical reaction." The stocks which lost ground included United States Steel, United States Industrial Alcohol, Allied Chemical, American Telephone and Telegraph, J. I. Case, Eastman Kodak, Worthington Pump and Vanadium.

Federal Reserve Statements.

Despite the evident willingness of the Federal Reserve authorities to put still more credit into the market, there was a further reduction in outstanding Federal Reserve credit in the past week. Discounts, which for weeks have been considered at an "irreducible minimum," declined still more. At the local Reserve Bank member borrowing fell off $4,510,000 to a total of $26,935,000. For the system as a whole discounts dropped $16,460,000 to $190,570,000. Bill holdings at New York shrank $4,308,000 in the face of the recent extension of the bank's low buying rate, while for the system holdings of bills went down $18,144,000. Holdings of United States Government Securities showed little change, being down $446,000 at New York and $979,000 for the entire system. Total bills and securities listed by the local bank were $249,577,000, a drop of $19,264,000, and for the system they were $924,555,000, a decline of $35,561,000.

A Scarcity of "Rights."

Speculators who specialize in "rights" find themselves limited these days to one issue, American Telephone and Telegraph, and after Aug. 1 they will be deprived of that market. Rarely in the past has the Stock Exchange list been without a half-dozen or more "rights." It is more than an accident that the Stock Exchange list today contains only one issue of "rights," according to brokers, who cite the recent disinclination of companies to offer stock subscription privileges.

Railroad Bonds Rise.

High-grade railroad bonds enjoyed a more active demand yesterday than at any time since mid-March. Underlying rail issues were pushed up to a 4.30-4.35 per cent basis, and good refunding mortgage bonds rose, on an average, ¾ of a point for the day to approximately a 4.50 per cent basis. Heavy orders from out of town featured the market. Bond traders reported, however, that there was little demand for second-grade rails, even issues legal for investment by savings banks in this State. Many of the issues recently offered are now selling at levels appreciably above the prices at which they were brought out. Most of the leading rail issues on the Stock Exchange closed at levels close to the best prices of the year to date.

The Run-Up in Municipal Prices.

The brisk demand that has ruled for municipal bonds this week comes at a time when comparatively little new financing of this character is in sight. As a consequence prices have moved steadily higher. It is expected, therefore, that several States and municipalities which have been sounding out the market in the last fortnight preparatory to announcing their financing programs may elect to wait a little longer in the hope of obtaining even more favorable terms. At the moment it appears that their hopes may be fulfilled, unless, of course, too many enter the market with new bond issues at about the same time.

Oil Mergers Rumored Again.

Several rumors were afloat yesterday concerning the possible consolidation of oil companies, but Atlantic Refining was perhaps the most prominently mentioned. Nothing definite could be obtained as to what company or group was negotiating for its acquisition. The Continental Oil Company was mentioned in some quarters, but its interest was later denied in banking circles close to the Continental Company. Owing to the fact that Atlantic Refining would fit in unusually well with several oil companies that are expanding into well-rounded-out units, there is a possibility, it is believed, that eventually it will be united with another company. The Rockefeller interests are no longer dominant in Atlantic Refining.

Banking Groups on the "Big Board."

To the extensive list of categories into which securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange fall, a new one has recently been added, that of banking group holding corporations. Transamerica, so long a feature of the Curb market, will be dealt in on the "big board" for the first time this morning and Marine Midland, another prominent banking group, has applied for listing privileges. The appearance of these two important organizations as candidates for Stock Exchange listing privileges is taken to indicate something of a change in policy in the field of banking holding companies. It had been felt by a number of such corporations that the extensive revelations of holdings and earnings required by the Stock Exchange were unsuited to the banking business. Apparently, however, Transamerica and Marine Midland are prepared to make public details of their activities which it was once thought wiser to withhold.

The Northern Merger.

An indication favorable to the merger of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific was afforded yesterday in the response of stockholders in both roads to an offer for the return of holdings deposited for the merger. In making the offer, the merger committee suggested that stocks be left deposited. Apparently most of the stockholders have until the present taken the hint and left their holdings on deposit, thus implying a belief that the merger eventually will be successful.

MONEY.

Thursday, July 24, 1930.

Money market conditions were much the same as on the preceding day, the overflow of funds offered on the Stock Exchange where 2 per cent prevailed all day, going "outside" at 1 per cent. However, as demand was light the unloaned amount was huge. Time money softened again, this time for the distant maturities following the downward revision in short dates on Wednesday. Here, too, there was a heavy offering of funds. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

NOVEL SUIT LIKELY OVER GRAND TRUNK

BECK RETAINED AS COUNSEL

R. C. Hawkin of London Here to Push Fight for Shares Valued by Taft at $48,000,000.

An unprecedented court action in which citizens of one country would sue the government of another country in the courts of a third country was forecast yesterday as the result of an announcement made by R. C. Hawkin, chairman of a committee of holders of perpetual stock in the old Grand Trunk Railway, which is now part of the Canadian National Railways. The C. N. R. system is government-owned. Mr. Hawkin's statement preceded by a few days the Canadian general elections.

Mr. Hawkin, who has offices in the Harcourt Buildings, London, and who is in this country, announced that he had been notified from London that Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania had been retained by English holders of perpetual Grand Trunk stock to advise them regarding the best methods for establishing a claim against the C. N. R.

Since the highest court in the British Empire has ruled against the claim of the stockholders whom Mr. Hawkin represents, it was thought in railroad circles here that the only action possible by the stockholders would be an attempt to attach that portion of the old Grand Trunk that lies in the United States. These properties in the Middle West are held in the name of the Grand Trunk Western Railway, which is controlled by the C. N. R.

In 1921, a majority opinion of a board of arbitration held that the preference and common stocks of the G. T. R. were worthless. The board was composed of the late William Howard Taft, representing the G. T. R. stockholders; Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance in the Dominion Government, representing that government, and Judge Cassells of the Exchequer Court of Canada, chairman.

In a dissenting opinion, Mr. Taft held that the stock in question was worth $48,000,000, basing his figures in part on the contention that a return of normal conditions would restore value to the road. Using this argument, the stockholders appealed to the judicial committee of the Privy Council in London, but their appeal was rejected. Since then they have sought from the Canadian Parliament a fiat which would permit them to sue the Canadian Government. The Canadian Parliament has taken no action on the application.

Mr. Hawkin came here from London recently to see Mr. Beck. In his statement he cited a decision on Nov. 8 of the Interstate Commerce Commission giving the stockholders the right to intervene in some Grand Trunk Western proceedings, saying: "This was generally regarded as a friendly hint to the Canadian National Railway authorities to deal with the stockholders' petition." His statement continued:

"A formal letter had been addressed to Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, setting out the main points of the stockholders' case, of which the most important was that the Parliament of Canada would not by legislation deprive the British stockholders of rights in property in the United States, so that, even if the Canadian Parliament had really intended to cancel loans to the Grand Trunk Railway Company without compensation, a policy which many Canadians repudiate, yet Canada could not by such confiscation acquire the American property rights of the stockholders without their consent.

"The stockholders' report sets out the opinion of J. Arthur Barratt, K. C., a member of the United States Supreme Court bar, who lays great stress on the words used by the late Chief Justice Taft when valuing their Grand Trunk stocks as arbiter in 1921. The then Chief Justice said: 'To take a man's property and then hedge about the means by which he can demonstrate its value, it seems to me, is contrary to the principles of English law, and as interpreted certainly in the United States.'

"The stockholders complain that Canada insisted on appointing two Canadian arbitrators out of three so that this powerful dictum of the late Mr. Taft's was voted down by the two arbitrators appointed by Canada.

"There are 20,000 stockholders who were dispossessed of their holdings. Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, ordered that their names should be struck off the Grand Trunk Company's register and that the name of his Minister of Finance was to be substituted. By this means the Minister of Finance acquired the voting power which effected the merger with the Canadian National Railway Company thus securing control of the Grand Trunk American properties.

"The British stockholders are advised that such action was so palpably wrong that any American court would try to find a remedy.

"The grain trade between the Great Lakes and Great Britain was largely promoted by this great body of British stockholders and it is useless for Mr. Mackenzie King to talk of re-establishing that trade until his 1923 order forfeiting the stocks is amended. It is difficult to build up a great market in London, and the United States stockholders were something more than mere investors; they were buyers, and to lose their interest was a grave mistake of policy. The trade has gone to the Argentine and all the King's horses and all the King's men will not regain the London market while their grievance remains without redress."

COTTON BELT DEAL LAUDED BY HOLDEN

CITES EXCHANGE OF TRAFFIC

Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific Company, announced yesterday that this railroad had acquired substantial common and preferred stock holdings in the St. Louis Southwestern Railway and that it had an option on other stock in sufficient amount to give it control of the shorter line. The preferred stock was acquired from the New York Investors, Inc., which bought it from the Kansas City Southern following the collapse of the Southwestern merger plan of L. F. Loree.

Mr. Loree would have linked the Cotton Belt and the Kansas City Southern with the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railway. Following Clayton anti-trust act citations, the Kansas City Southern sold 135,000 shares of Cotton Belt preferred stock to the New York Investors, a former realty company, for $89 a share, or a total of $12,015,000. As a result of the new deal, the Cotton Belt holdings of New York Investors have been reduced to 3,340 shares of preferred stock.

Holdings of New York Investors amount to about 40 per cent of Cotton Belt control. The balance of control is expected to be acquired by the Southern Pacific from other minority interests.

The deal is completed, subject to approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission. That body, in its final consolidation plan, allocated the Cotton Belt to the Illinois Central. However, the Southern Pacific interests believe they will be able to obtain the permission of the commission for changing the disposition of the Cotton Belt.

The Cotton Belt operates 1,800 miles of line and serves the Eastern and Southeastern parts of Missouri and Southwestern Illinois. The lines traverse Arkansas from northeast to southwest and reach points in Northern and Northeastern Texas, connecting with the Southern Pacific at different places.

"The steadily increasing interchange of business between the Southern Pacific and Cotton Belt routes," said Mr. Holden, "affording direct connection from the Southern Pacific's important North Texas communities to the St. Louis and Memphis gateways and intervening territory, influenced the Southern Pacific Company to take this step. It believes it will insure the preservation of existing routes and channels of commerce, in harmony with the provisions and policies of the transportation act and the betterment of the service afforded by the Southern Pacific."

The deal puts the Southern Pacific in the position of apparently being the first railroad that will ask for approval of a merger in connection with the commission's final consolidation plan. Applications to unite may be made in conformity with the plan or as exceptions to the plan.

Merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroads is being held in abeyance as a result of the Couzens resolution against railroad consolidation. Eastern consolidation proponents withdrew their plans after the commission announced its stand and have filed no new plans.

TERMS SEEN NEAR ON MEXICAN DEBT

NEW LOAN NOT PROBABLE

Proposals by Republic Said to Be Based on Its Ability to Pay Arrearages on Defaulted Bonds.

The conference on the Mexican debt situation between officials of the Mexican Government, headed by Finance Minister Luis Montes de Oca, and the international committee of bankers on Mexico, of which Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. is chairman, has reached a point at which an agrement may be signed at almost any moment, after having been in progress almost five weeks. Although neither the Mexican officials nor the bankers made any statement yesterday, it was reported that all important points had been virtually cleared up.

It is assumed that the expected agreement will cover the debt of the National Railways of Mexico as well as that of the Mexican Government. These debts have been in default both as to principal and interest since early in 1928. At that time the amount involved was in excess of $400,000,000.

The new agreement will be the third paring down of the Mexican debt in less than a decade. The first was the so-called Lamont-de la Huerta agreement of 1922 by which Mexico resumed payments after a default that had lasted from July, 1914. A little more than two years later Mexico again defaulted. Subsequently, in October, 1925, the Pani agreement was entered into, taking its name from Mexican Finance Minister Pani. Mexico then paid according to schedule in 1926 and in 1927, and defaulted again in 1928.

It is understood that the proposals made by the Mexican Finance Minister at the present conference were based on Mexico's ability to pay. It has been explained that political conditions in Mexico have necessitated the keeping of a considerable military establishment, while revenues have dropped, notably from oil and more recently from the mining of silver, owing to the severe decline in prices of the metal throughout the world.

It is further understood that a new loan to Mexico is not contemplated. It has been explained that the bankers are acting on their own initiative so far as their side of the conference is concerned. The next step, therefore, after a settlement would be to obtain the approval of the new plan from the bondholders in the United States and in Europe. The plan of 1925 was approved by approximately 98 per cent of the holders.

DOUBTS SIGNIFICANCE OF CHAIN STORE SALES

Bank of America Says Recent Declines May Mean Less Than Has Been Supposed.

While there appears little reason to doubt that chain stores, in common with other organizations, are feeling the effects of the present period of quieter business, according to the Bank of America, certain factors indicate that recent declines in sales may be of less significance than would be supposed at first glance.

"Aggregate sales of the majority of chain store systems in the first half of the year maintained a margin of increase over total sales value in the corresponding period of 1929," the bank says in its review, "but in a number of individual instances results for June served to narrow this margin or to wipe it out altogether.

"Gross sales, of course, do not furnish a reliable indication of profits for numerous reasons, chief among which is the fact that the number of units of a chain is constantly changing, and the same is true of the number of departments or lines of goods handled. Consequently, a larger aggregate sales volume in any chain may be due almost entirely to an increase in the number of units in the chain, or to departments added in individual stores, and conversely, and operating costs increased or decreased accordingly."

PURCHASE PROPOSED TO END RECEIVERSHIP

Foster Wheeler Corporation Offers Terms for International Combustion Engineering.

Various plans for reorganizing the International Combustion Engineering Corporation, which has been in receivership since the close of last year, have been under consideration for several months, and something definite should be agreed to soon, it was reported yesterday. The plans submitted have received careful consideration from the interested persons, and it is believed in some quarters that a definite plan may be agreed upon before the close of this week.

One plan that has received especial attention calls for the absorption of International Combustion by the Foster Wheeler Corporation, it was learned. It is understood that Foster Wheeler has agreed to absorb Combustion through an exchange of its securities on a basis reported as ½ share of preferred and ½ share of common stock of Foster Wheeler for each share of International Combustion preferred and 1-10 share of Foster Wheeler common for each share of common stock of International Combustion.

Another plan includes reorganization of the company without its acquisition by any other concern. Under this plan, each share of International preferred would receive ½ share of preferred stock, one share of common stock and the right to subscribe to additional common at $20 a share in the reorganized company. Under this plan the common stock would be required to pay a moderate assessment and then receive one share of common in the new company for each share of International common stock held.

BROKERS' LOANS OFF $17,000,000 IN WEEK

INCREASE BY BANKS HERE

Gain of $23,000,000 Offset by Interior Institutions and "Others"—Gold Holdings Up.

A decline of $17,000,000 in brokers' loans took place in the past week, according to the figures given out yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The loans now amount to $3,226,000,000, compared with $3,243,000,000 a week ago and $5,908,000,000 a year ago. The decrease surprised the financial community, where a moderate rise had been expected in view of the advancing trend of the stock market in recent days.

The reduction in loans was due to the figures for out-of-town banks and non-banking lenders. The former showed a drop of $23,000,000 and the latter were down $15,000,000. Local member banks increased their loans to brokers by $23,000,000. These individual changes appear to indicate a decline of only $15,000,000, whereas the total given out by the Reserve show a drop of $17,000,000, the discrepancy being due to the fact that the Reserve Bank lists its figures in round millions of dollars, dropping a few hundred thousand here and adding a few there.

Detailed Figures for Loans.

For others	832	847	3,034

Total loans and investments of reporting member banks here advanced $56,000,000 in the week, an increase of $8,000,000 in loans being shown and of $49,000,000 in investments. Loans on securities rose $19,000,000, while all other loans were off $11,000,000. Local banks increased their investments in United States Government securities by $14,000,000 and in other securities by $34,000,000.

A further decline in the volume of credit being extended to the market was shown in the statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Discounts fell $4,510,000 to a total of $26,935,000; bill holdings were off $4,308,000 to $37,175,000 and holdings of government obligations went down $446,000 to $180,217,000. These changes brought a reduction of $19,264,000 in total bills and securities to $249,577,000.

Gold Reserves Increase.

Gold reserves of the local bank of issue rose $24,518,000 to $1,009,543,000. This increase, together with declines of $1,925,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation and $347,000 in total deposits, lifted the reserve ratio from 85.2 per cent to 87.4 per cent.

Discounts fell $16,460,000 for the system; bill holdings were down $18,144,000 and holdings of United States Government securities dropped $979,000. There was a net decline, principally as a result of these changes, of $35,561,000 in total bills and securities, bringing this measure of outstanding Federal Reserve credit to $924,555,000.

Total gold reserves of the system declined $6,518,000 while Reserve note circulation fell $26,169,000 and total deposits were off $31,645,000. The reserve ratio was 83.2 per cent, compared with 82 per cent a week ago.

HEAVY BUYING LIFTS HIGH-GRADE BONDS

FOREIGN LOANS GO HIGHER

An apparently insatiable demand for high-grade bonds of all classifications sent prices substantially higher in one of the most active days that the "bond crowd" on the Stock Exchange has experienced in some time. Leading railroad bonds were taken in sizable blocks, particularly underlying issues and good refunding mortgages. As has been the case for many weeks, second-grade rail issues did not attract any considerable buying.

Foreign bond averages were sharply higher. Demand was brisk for French Government and municipal issues. French 7s made a new high at 119⅝, closing at 119½, up ⅛ point for the day. French 7½s gained ¼ point. Bordeaux 6s reached a new peak at 105⅞, as did Lyons 6s. Marseilles 6s made a fresh high at 106. Soissons 6s duplicated their previous high of 106. Other leading Continental issues closed generally higher. South American issues showed some improvement.

Public utility issues pointed higher, with comparatively few exceptions. One was the drop of 3 points in American Natural Gas 6½s, and another was the decline of 2 points by Portland Railway, Light and Power 6s. New York transit issues were steady.

Industrial bonds showed some improvement, although not particularly active. Parmelee Transfer 6s recovered 2⅞ points, and Federated Metals convertible 7s moved up 1½ points. Warner Brothers Pictures convertible 6s slipped under par again. Rubber issues were slightly easier and sugar bonds were dull.

In the United States Government group, the fourth Liberty 4¼s reached a new high for the year at 103 2-32.

$33,730,000 BONDS OF UTILITY ON SALE

COMPANY RECENTLY FORMED

Proceeds Will Be Used to Retire Debts of Systems Acquired and Pay for Additions.

An issue of $33,730,000 Texas Electric Service Company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series due in 1960, will be placed on the market today by a syndicate composed of Bonbright & Co., Inc.; Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc.; Harris, Forbes & Co.; W. C. Langley & Co. and Coffin & Burr, Inc. The issue will be priced at 97¾, to yield more than 5.14 per cent.

The company, which was formed in December to acquire and operate the electric power and light properties previously owned by the Fort Worth Power and Light Company and the former Texas Electric Service Company, is controlled through the ownership of its entire common stock by the American Power and Light Company. It has no other bond issue. The property is supervised by the Electric Bond and Share Company.

Proceeds of this financing will be used to provide funds for the retirement of indebtedness incurred in connection with the acquisition of the properties now owned by the company and to reimburse the company for additions to property. Net earnings of the properties now included in the company, for the twelve months ended on April 30, amounted to $4,714,570 after expenses, maintenance and taxes. This is equivalent to more than two and three-fourths times the annual interest charges on the bonds that will be outstanding.

$1,500,000 IN GOLD SHIPPED TO CANADA

MORE FOR FRANCE LIKELY

Exchange Rate Unchanged for Day—Week's Exports $22,001,000, Imports $1,457,000.

The movement of gold from this market to Canada was extended yesterday by the consignment of $1,500,000 of the metal to Montreal by the Guaranty Trust Company. Thus far the outflow to Canada, which got under way on Monday, has carried $5,500,000 gold out of New York to Canada.

Offsetting in part yesterday's loss of gold to Canada was a further shipment from the Orient which arrived in San Francisco. Word was received at the Federal Reserve Bank here that approximately $745,000 gold had arrived in San Francisco from China.

The weekly résumé of gold movements given out yesterday at the Reserve Bank showed exports of $22,001,000 up to Wednesday night and imports of $1,457,000. Of the exports $18,001,000 went to France and $4,000,000 to Canada. The imports consisted of $1,000,000 from Uruguay, $334,000 from Brazil and $123,000 which came chiefly from other Latin-American countries.

Exchanges of France and Canada showed no change yesterday and continued at the levels where recent shipments have been made. It is regarded as certain, therefore, that further exports will be made shortly. The French liner France will leave for France today.

While further gold was being taken from this country yesterday a slump in the yen increased the likelihood of further imports of gold from Japan. Yen exchange fell 13 points to 49.31 cents, a price which is well below the gold shipment point. Japan has contributed heavily to the gold stocks of this country since last January when the ban on the export of gold from Japan was removed, restoring that country to the gold standard.

BROKERS SUE PATRON FOR LOSSES ON STOCK

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 24.—Joseph B. Perskie, attorney, filed suit today in the Circuit Court here in behalf of Orvis Brothers & Co., stock brokers, at Tennessee Avenue and the Boardwalk, to determine whether a broker can hold a customer liable for further debt after the customer's holdings have been wiped out by a reactionary market.

Mrs. Anne Gamble of the Hotel Albermarle, this city, is the defendant in the action, which charges that she owes $3,279 to Orvis Brothers & Co. for losses that they incurred in obeying her orders. Mrs. Gamble, during the stock boom, bought a number of shares on margin and put them up with Orvis Brothers & Co. under the customary deposit method as security for the payment of the full face value. She held the stock when the market crash occurred and her holdings were wiped out.

With the loss of her investment, Mrs. Gamble considered the matter closed, but Orvis Brothers & Co. contend that before they could dispose of the securities they suffered a loss of $3,279. It is the contention of the brokers that they were Mrs. Gamble's agents, engaged by her for the purpose of buying and selling stock at her direction.

Mrs. Gamble alleges that she is not liable for the stock after its possession was transferred and maintains that the whole proceeding was a game of chance in violation of the law. She further contends that margin purchase is a gambling act and being illegal does not give the brokers any claim for a refund for their losses, since both parties entered willingly into the deal with full knowledge of the risks they were assuming.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH STOCKS STRONGER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—Improvement on the Stock Exchange was maintained today despite depressing dividend returns of big British railroads. The worst was the London Midland & Scottish, with an interim dividend of only 1 per cent, the smallest ever paid. The market signalized the event by marking London Midland ordinary stock down to the low record of £41½.

British Government securities rallied after a weak start, the 5 per cent war loan closing ⅛ higher at £103½. Gramophones reacted, especially Columbia, which slipped 5-32 to £3 27-32. International Nickel fell 9-16 to $25 5-16, and other transatlantic issues received no help from New York. Lautaro Nitrate advanced 5-16 to £3 5-16 as a result of the passage of the bill establishing the new Chilean merger.

Ford made a sharp recovery, closing 5s 6d higher at 75s, while Leyland and Rolls-Royce also rallied from the recent depression. Furness-Withy advanced 10½d to 32s 6d as a result of yesterday's encouraging meeting. Fresh buying stimulated oils on reports of lower American production. Rhodesian Coppers also were stronger, with Bwana McKubwa at 12s 9d and chartered at 32s 1d, while Rio Tinto gained ⅛ to £35 and De Beers remained steady at £7⅛.

Money again was plentiful, with overnight loans at 1¾ per cent. Discount rates were firm despite another withdrawal of £257,000 of gold from the Bank of England for France. Sterling exchange declined slightly to $4.86 21-32.

Paris Improves Near Close.

PARIS, July 24.—Only scattering trading was done on the Bourse today and during most of the session so dull that price levels fell off. Toward the end of the session there was a slight reaction, and the closing came with the tone improved.

The Bank of France's weekly report today shows the largest gold cover in its history. The balance sheet gives the proportion of reserves to obligations totaling 87,887,000,000 francs as 51.10 per cent. Gold reserves advanced 454,000,000 francs during the week ended Saturday, with a total of 44,912,000,000 francs of the metal in the vaults. Circulation fell by 565,000,000 to a total of 72,293,000,000. To the sinking fund 505,000,000 was credited for the reduction of the internal debt.

Rentes today closed steady as follows: The 3 per cents, 88.95; 1918 4s, 100.85; 1920 amortizable 5s, 135.65; 1928 5s, 103.50; 1920 6s, 102; 1927 amortizable 6s, 105.95.

Prices Erratic in Berlin.

BERLIN, July 24.—Encouraged by Wall Street's continued firmness and the optimistic outlook published by The Iron Age, the Boerse attempted today to overcome the depression, which, however, was only temporarily successful. After an uneven and weak opening, the tendency improved, the market being stimulated by firmness in Reichsbank shares, which jumped 8 points, whereupon some issues were able to recover earlier losses.

The tendency changed again during the course of the session, due to bearish attacks on a number of stocks, of which Reichsbank lost half of the day's gain. The Boerse closed lifeless, with offerings increasing.

OTHER COMPANIES APPLY

Request for Trading of $71,000,000 Japanese Government Bonds Also Received.

The Marine Midland Corporation has applied to the New York Stock Exchange for permission to list its stock there, it was announced yesterday by the Exchange. The application is for 5,616,001 shares. The stock is now traded on the Curb Exchange. This is the second large bank-holding company to take this action within a month. Yesterday the listing of Transamerica Corporation's stock was announced.

Marine Midland, which was formed late in September, 1929, is one of the largest companies of its type in the country. It had total composite assets on March 31 of $592,785,519. This was before the acquisition of the Fidelity Trust Company of New York, which added $106,228,187 more to total assets.

The corporation holds controlling interest in eighteen banks and trust company. The nucleus for the group was the Marine Trust Company of Buffalo.

Other banks in the group are the Union Trust Company of Rochester, the Bank of East Aurora, the Bank of La Salle, Niagara Falls, the Bank of Snyder, the Cortland Trust Company, the First Trust of Tonawanda, the Lackawanna National Bank, the Manufacturers National Bank of Troy, the Niagara County National Bank and Trust Company, Lockport; the Niagara Falls Trust Company, the Orleans County Trust Company, Albion; the People's Trust Company of Bingham, the State Trust Company, North Tonawanda; the Union Trust Company, Jamestown, and the Workers Trust Company of Johnson City.

The Fidelity Trust Company of this city, was acquired in April this year. Its name was then changed to the Marine Midland Trust Company of New York. It is the second largest unit in the group, following the Marine Trust Company of Buffalo, and the only member of the group in this city.

The Marine Midland Corporation was sponsored by Stone & Webster, White, Weld & Co., the Schoellkopfs and other interests just previous to the stock market crash last Fall. At that time there were said to be plans to acquire groups of banks in other States. Representatives of the corporation would not comment yesterday on the proposed listing on the Stock Exchange.

UTILITIES ALONE ACTIVE IN TRADING ON COUNTER

Trading in the over-the-counter market was quiet yesterday, with the trend downward in virtually every division. The only activity centred in the utility group, where several issues made gains.

Among the bank and trust company shares the tone was easier in Bankers, Chase, Title Guarantee and Trust, Manufacturers, Chemical, Chelsea, Public, National Exchange, Manhattan, Empire, Corn Exchange, New York Trust, Central Hanover, City, Guaranty Trust, Brooklyn Trust, Bank of New York and Trust and Commercial National.

In the insurance division softness was shown by Carolina, American Home, American Constitution, Connecticut General Life, New York Fire, Knickerbocker, Phenix, St. Paul Fire and Marine, Providence-Washington and Travelers. Industrials and chain stores were dull.

RAINS SEND COTTON TO 1930 LOW MARKS

JULY FALLS BELOW 13 CENTS

Buying Power Restricted by Textile Conditions Both in This Country and Abroad.

The first rain in two months has fallen in Mississippi, several stations reporting precipitation of two to more than three inches, and prices on the Cotton Exchange broke a quarter-cent yesterday, going into new low ground for the year. With predictions of unsettled weather over several States, the selling movement, which began late on Wednesday, was resumed at the opening of the market, and pressure of contracts increased as the session advanced. Liquidation of July preparatory to cessation of trading in that month at noon today carried quotations below 12½c, while all new-crop positions, except May, declined below the 13c level.

Trading was the most active of the month. Final prices showed a loss of 18 to 25 points on the day.

Textile conditions, both domestic and foreign, continued to operate against free buying by consumers. Reports from Japan reflected increased mill curtailment owing to declining export business.

With the exception of a light volume of scale orders for domestic and foreign mill account, uncertainty over the extent of relief in the drought-stricken areas reduced buying power. Liquidation of July and resulting weakness of the spot month helped to unsettle later deliveries.

With 795,000 bales now certificated at the various markets, it is estimated generally that the Farm Loan Board will receive deliveries of about 800,000 bales on the May and July contracts held by cooperative associations. In addition, marketing associations hold about 500,000 bales still unsold from last season, a total of more than 1,250,000, according to statements made recently by a member of the board.

CORN CONTINUES UP AS CROP HOPES EBB

WHEAT ALSO GOES HIGHER

Oats Irregular at Finish, With Some Hedging Reported—Trading in Rye Quiet.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The grain trade was flooded today with reports of heavy deterioration in the prospective corn crop, both from official and private sources, and it is expected that the coming private reports may show a drop of around 200,000,000 bushels or more from the government July 1 figures of 2,802,000 bushels. This total would compare with 2,614,000,000 bushels in 1929 and a five-year average of 2,700,000,000 bushels. The crop would be the smallest since 1924, when it was 2,309,000,000 bushels, and with that exception the smallest since 1918.

Owing to the continued dry weather over a large part of the belt, a further reduction in yield is possible, although the forecast was for local thunderstorms, while showers were reported in parts of Missouri. Damage ranging from 15 to 50 per cent is reported officially in Kansas, with the figures suggesting a drop of 35,000,000 bushels in the yield since July 1.

While the corn market at times acted rather tired and as though it was in an overbought condition, prices swept upward to new highs on the present movement despite profit-taking by some operators who had bought last week. Some traders who sold on an early advance took advantage of a setback to reinstate their lines. The finish was about the top, with net gains of 7/8 to 1 5/8 cents, the deferred futures leading.

July Corn Tops Wheat in Kansas City.

At Kansas City July corn went 1 cent over July wheat at the last, the first time such a condition has developed in years. Corn here finished only 3½ cents under July wheat.

Owing to the burned-out pastures, small hay crop and the strong probability that late oats and barley were heavily damaged in the Northwest, some close observers of conditions feel that a tight coarse grain situation will develop before long, especially if corn suffers further losses. They also look for heavy farm consumption of wheat, due to the relatively low price.

Outside speculative interest in corn is increasing, but it is not yet sufficiently broad to prevent erratic fluctuations. The market is generally regarded as a weather affair. Temperatures close to 100 were shown in parts of Nebraska today.

Charters were made for 500,000 bushels of corn, half to Georgian Bay and the rest to Buffalo.

Primary receipts of corn were 607,000 bushels, a week ago 459,000 and a year ago 525,000. Shipments respectively were 415,000, 638,000 and 561,000 bushels.

Corn Has Influence on Wheat.

Strength in corn tended to restrict selling pressure in wheat. Trade was not large, and it is estimated that the turnover was smaller than in corn. Strong Liverpool cables caused an early advance, which was lost later on hedging pressure and on selling induced by rain reports from parts of Canada. The finish was on a rally, with net gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cent.

Winnipeg lost ½ to ⅝ cent. Liverpool finished unchanged to ⅛d higher despite confirmation of reports that Russia had sold 3,600,000 bushels to the Continent for deferred shipment.

The trade is watching Russian developments closely, many taking the view that the sales are being made for propaganda, or for economic purposes. Foreign demand for North American wheat was active, sales being placed at 1,000,000 bushels for the day, with the Gulf basis firm, No. 1 hard for first half of August selling at 5 cents over Chicago September.

Primary receipts of wheat were 5,066,000 bushels, a week ago 3,886,000 and a year ago 4,398,000. Shipments respectively were 1,740,000, 1,435,000 and 2,118,000 bushels.

CANADIAN CROPS BETTER.

Only Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta Fail to Improve.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 24 (Canadian Press).—Except in the southern districts of Saskatchewan and Alberta, where the drought of the last few weeks has been intense, crop conditions in Western Canada have improved, said the weekly crop report today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. No important hail damage was reported, although rust is threatening.

A considerable moderation from the recent heat and drought has occurred. Temperatures have been high enough to encourage rapid growth where sufficient moisture is available. Summer-fallow wheat will give good yields, while Spring plowing and stubbled wheat did not have sufficient reserve moisture to withstand the last month's dry weather. Recent rains will benefit these crops.

REDEMPTION NOTICES.

First Mortgage 5% Bonds, Series "A", due March 1, 1946.

Since the publication of our former notice on April 16, 1930, Receivers in Equity were appointed for the Schenectady Railway Company by the United States District Court for the Northern District of New York upon the complaint of The General Finance Corporation which alleged that certain unsecured notes of the Company had not been paid and could not be paid although payment was due and had been demanded. The appointment of the Receivers was by an order of the Court dated July 10th, 1930.

This Committee believes that for the protection of the properties and to prevent any impairment of the lien of the First Mortgage 5% Bonds, prompt and concerted action is imperative on the part of the bondholders. Your Committee is advised and believes that the default now exists under the provisions of the mortgage securing the above bonds, entitling holders of the outstanding bonds to require the Trustee, in accordance with the provisions of the mortgage, to declare the entire principal due and payable.

To the end that this may be best accomplished, the Committee requests all holders to deposit their bonds with the CHEMICAL BANK & TRUST COMPANY, 165 Broadway, New York City, as Depositary, under a Deposit Agreement, copies of which will shortly be available upon request. Certificates of Deposit, in registered form, will be issued against deposited bonds.

INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT DECREASED IN JUNE

Decline Was the Heaviest Since December, According to the Research Board.

BUILDING VOLUME GAINED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Industrial production decreased in June by more than the usual seasonal amount and factory employment and payrolls declined to new low levels, the Federal Reserve Board declared today in its summary of general business and financial conditions based upon statistics for June and July.

"Industrial production showed a further substantial decrease in June," the board said, "and the board's index, which is adjusted for ordinary seasonal variations, declined to the lowest level since last December. Output of steel ingots declined in June and early July more than is usual at this season, while automobile production was sharply curtailed to a level considerably below that of the same period of the past two years.

"Cotton consumption, already at a low level, declined further in June. Output of bituminous coal and copper continued in small volume. Wool consumption and shoe production increased slightly and cement output, as in the preceding month, was at a high level.

Factory Employment Lowered.

"Factory employment and payrolls decreased further in June. The number employed at steel plants and in the automobile, agricultural implement and cotton goods industries declined more than is usual at this season, and employment in the woolen goods and lumber industries continued at unusually low levels.

"The value of building contracts awarded in June, $600,000,000, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation, was about 30 per cent more than in May and 15 per cent more than last year. The increase reflected chiefly unusually large awards for natural gas pipe lines and power plants. The volume of contracts for residential buildings was somewhat smaller than in May. In early July the total volume of contracts was sharply lower.

"Department of Agriculture estimates, based on July 1 conditions, indicate a decrease of about 20,000,000 bushels in the Winter wheat crop and a corresponding increase in Spring wheat. The corn crop is expected to be about 2,800,000,000 bushels, 7 per cent larger than last year and 4 per cent below the five-year average. Area planted to cotton is estimated at 45,815,000 acres, 2 per cent less than last year."

Discussing distribution, the board said that the volume of freight car loadings in June and early July continued to be substantially below the corresponding periods of 1928 and 1929.

Department Store Sales Drop.

Preliminary reports, the board added, indicate that the decline in department store sales from a year ago was of larger proportions in June than in any previous month this year.

Commodity prices declined more rapidly in June than in any other recent month, the board said, and the index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics at 86.8 per cent of the 1926 average was about 10 per cent below the level of a year ago. Prices of many important agricultural commodities and their manufactures declined further, and those of the leading imported raw products, silk, rubber and coffee, reached new low levels.

There were also further declines in iron and steel and copper. Prices of raw wool, hides and rayon increased slightly during June. Early in July prices declined in the case of wheat, cotton, silk and a number of other commodities.

Bank Loans Decrease.

"Loans of reporting member banks in leading cities declined somewhat between the middle of June and the middle of July," the board reported, "and on July 16 were $60,000,000 smaller than five weeks earlier. Loans on securities decreased by $140,000,000, while 'all other' loans increased by $80,000,000. The banks' investments increased by about $200,000,000 during this period and were in larger volume than at any time in the past two years.

"Member bank balances at the Reserve banks in the four weeks ended July 19 averaged $60,000,000 more than five weeks earlier, and at the same time their borrowings from the Reserve banks declined by nearly $20,000,000, reflecting an increase in the Reserve banks' holdings of acceptances and government securities, a further slight growth in gold stock and a slight decline in the volume of money in circulation.

"Money rates in the open market declined further, and in the middle of July rates on ninety-day bankers' acceptances at 1⅞ per cent were at a new low level, while rates on commercial paper at 3 to 3½ per cent were at the low point of 1924.

"During July the Reserve Bank discount rate was reduced at Boston from 3½ to 3 per cent, and at Philadelphia, Atlanta and Richmond from 3½ to 3 per cent."

WRIT HALTS STOCK SALE.

B. Harrison & Co. Named With 4 Men by Securities Bureau.

B. Harrison & Co., Inc., of 90 Wall Street and four individuals were temporarily enjoined from further stock sales yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Strong, in Brooklyn, upon application by Deputy Attorney General John P. Badger of the State Bureau of Securities.

The men were F. Dudley Kohler, a lawyer; John T. Callahan, Pietro Arro and Steffan K. Pomierski. According to Mr. Badger, they organized the Public Utilities Investment Trust, Inc., but later effected a contract of incorporation between it and B. Harrison & Co. to sell stock of the organization and advertised that dividends would be paid. The organization has no assets, said Mr. Badger, but the group now has been trying to work toward incorporation.

Mr. Badger said he would move for a permanent injunction on Aug. 6.

It was to be expected that the many suspensions of manufacturing this month, together with part-time operation, would reduce the consumption of electric power for manufacture; and in the third week of this month the weekly index of electric power production moved down by half a point from 92.3 to 91.8. The estimated output for the week was 1,790,000,000 kilowatt hours. This total was 5,000,000 kilowatt hours less than the output of the week before but was an increase of 120,000,000 kilowatt hours over that in the week including the Fourth of July holiday. It was the same as the output in the week ended June 28 and in the week ended January 4. It compares with an output of 1,158,000,000 kilowatt hours in the corresponding week of July 1929.

In view of the fact that probably some 55 per cent of the total output of electric power is used for power purposes in manufacturing plants, the decline of electric output along with the restriction of manufacturing operations is inevitable. That the decline is not greater is no doubt due to the energy with which utility managers are cultivating the household market. Under normal conditions the electric output for June and July shows a decline but little less than the weekly index this year since the beginning of June. The difference is in the lower level this year, caused by the curtailment of manufacture.

AMERICAN ZINC MEN SCORE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, July 24.—According to newspapers here, the American delegation at the zinc conference held at Ostend last week-end gained a distinct advantage for their manufacturers. The United States is almost the exclusive manufacturer of electrolytic zinc and the American delegates managed to secure that their contingent should be calculated on capacity production, without consenting to any restriction of output.

The European manufacturers had their contingent calculated on production during three consecutive months, and the Americans can thus sell 27½ per cent of their contingent in European markets, an increase of 10 per cent, while European production must be restricted by 30 per cent instead of 15, as under the former cartel.

The decisions must be ratified by the producers who were not present at the Ostend conference before the new cartel can be considered definitely formed.

TELLS OF SHONGOOD SALES

Reporter Says Auctioneer Gave $8,000 as Guarantee Garment Total.

Miss E. Duncan, reporter for Women's Wear, a trade paper, testifying yesterday at the trial of Charles Shongood, former United States Auctioneer, for alleged embezzlement, told Federal Judge Patterson and a jury that Shongood's office reported to her on the phone that $8,000 had been received on Nov. 8, 1928, at a sale of merchandise of the bankrupt Guarantee Garment Company.

This was the amount which, according to the testimony of Max Blum, clerk for the receiver's attorney, had been sent by Shongood, although the auctioneer, he said, had actually taken in $8,900. The latter amount, it had been testified, was turned over to Harris Berlack, receiver, after he had refused to accept $300 offered to him indirectly by Shongood.

Henry P. Bloom, general merchandise dealer of Lispenard Street, who bought from Shongood, told the jury that he paid more for the merchandise than had appeared upon the auction records. The trial will be continued today.

Sues for Interest in Fenimore Claim.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Hudson River Navigation Corporation of New York City petitioned the District of Columbia Supreme Court today for a writ of mandamus to compel J. R. McCarl, Controller General, and Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, to obtain an appropriation from Congress of $5,010.54, which, it is alleged, is due as interest on a judgment obtained against the government in the Court of Claims as the result of the destruction by fire of the steamer Fenimore in 1918.

To Aid Jamaica Banana Growers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 24.—Lewis Knudson, Professor of Plant Physiology at Cornell University and adviser and consultant to the research department of the United Fruit Company, is here to make a study of the methods and to give advice for improving the standards of production. He will investigate a disease now affecting bananas grown here.

Open Cooperative Egg Market.

The New Jersey Department of Agriculture announced yesterday the opening of a farmers' cooperative market for eggs at Flemington, N. J., to be used by poultrymen of Hunterdon County and vicinity. This move was made, it was explained, because of the success of a similar market established at Toms River.

SPEEDING BOYS' WEAR TRADE

Speaker Urges Turnover of Eight Times a Year at Meeting.

A more frequent turnover in boys' wear departments, as much as eight times a year instead of the customary two or three, was advocated yesterday by Philip I. Carthage of the Interstate Department Stores, in an address before exhibitors at the National Boys' Buyers' Convention in the north ballroom of the Hotel New Yorker. Mr. Carthage, who accompanied his talk with a blackboard demonstration, in which he worked out various technical problems, also urged the adoption of the unit stock control system, and pointed out that while inventories should be kept at a minimum, they should also be as complete as possible.

Today the exhibition of boys' wear will be thrown open to every one interested in the industry, and will give non-exhibitors an opportunity to look over the displays.

The total registration of buyers now numbers about 530. Exhibitors have expressed themselves as well satisfied with the amount of business placed.

LIVE STOCK IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Receipts of hogs here and in the West fell below expectations today, being smaller than a year ago. Some improvement was reported in the demand for light weight loins, but heavy kinds were said to be slow sales. Prices advanced 10 to 30 cents, with light weights leading, but the best figures were not held at the last. The top was 20 cents higher at $9.70, while the day's average was 15 cents higher at $8.80. Most sales were at $8.10 to $9.60, with heavy weights quoted at $8.45 to $9.30; medium weights $9 to $9.65; light weights $9.35 to $9.70 and packing sows $7 to $8. Packers bought 14,100 and shippers 4,000, with 4,000 left over. Receipts were 19,000, with 15,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Demand for cattle was slow and the market was generally 50 cents lower, many being unsold at noon. Dressed beef is selling slowly. Best steers sold at $10.65, with the bulk of sales at $7.50 to $9.50. Receipts were 6,000.

Fat lambs were steady to weak, with some sales 15 to 25 cents lower. Natives sold mainly around $9, Westerns being at $9.50 to $9.75. Sheep were steady at $2.25 to $3.75. Receipts were 10,000.

LOW PRICES SPUR DEMAND FOR METALS

TRADE IN LEAD FAIRLY GOOD

Producers Continue to Predict That Next Change in Quotations Will Be Upward.

Heavy sales of copper and zinc and a fairly active demand for lead featured the non-ferrous metal markets during the past week, according to the weekly review of Metal and Mineral Markets. It is stated that low prices, rather than the necessity of covering orders for fabricated materials, were the chief buying stimulant. The review continues:

"For three successive weeks copper bookings have been unusually heavy, and for the week ending yesterday a total of 62,400 tons was reported in the domestic market. This represents the largest volume of business since early in May, when copper sold at 12½ cents. All agencies are now at 11 cents, the lowest price since 1902. There is a general feeling in the trade that the red metal may not go lower than 11 cents.

"Demand for lead has not been quite so active as a week ago. Sales for July shipment are now likely to equal or exceed the 48,000-ton total for June and but little more than half of expected August requirements has so far been bought. With prices unchanged at 5.25 cents, New York, and 5.15 cents St. Louis, producers continue to feel that the next price movement in lead is more likely to be up than down, but there is nothing to indicate that any immediate change is being considered.

"Total zinc business for the week was the largest since the active market in January, at prices ranging from 4.25 cents to as high as 4.45 cents. The major market settled at 4.40 cents. Tin met a moderate demand as a result of continued low prices and the fact that the price does not seem inclined to break below current levels."

Refined sugar in the domestic market was unchanged, refiners quoting 4.70 and second-hand refined generally available at 4.65 and one brand at 4.60. BUSINESS NOTES.

Charles G. Taylor, buyer in charge of ready-to-wear for National Bellas Hess Department Stores, has been appointed merchandise manager of all retail stores, according to an announcement yesterday. E. W. Wilson has been named advertising manager for National Bellas Hess Retail Stores to succeed Sol Scholder, who has resigned.

The Merchandise and Research Bureau, Inc., will represent Sanger Bros. operating stores in Waco, Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, and Wichita, Kan., in all departments of merchandise here, according to an announcement yesterday by Charles A. Cook of the buying organization. The Sanger office in the Bricken Textile Building, adjoining other members of the buying firm, will be maintained under the supervision of the Merchandise and Research Bureau, it was said.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Wednesday—3 to 3¼ per cent for the best names.

The quotations are for 4 to 6 months' paper.

Urges Paper Board Cost Study.

Manufacturers of paper and fiber boards used for paper boxes were urged to give greater attention to production costs and base quotations on figures which will allow them a reasonable profit, in a speech delivered by Hugh Strange of the John Strange Paper Company and president of the Paper Board Industries Association. Mr. Strange spoke at the closing session of the three-day convention held by the paper board group at the Commodore. He also stressed the need for greater interest and cooperation on the part of the industry in working to establish the trade upon a sound basis.

Orders Fall Off in Rug Market.

The increased buying activity which developed in the floor coverings market last week is still apparent here, but to a reduced degree. Visiting buyers are fairly numerous in the market and have been placing orders for low-end goods, especially axminsters and the new low-priced wash rugs. A few of the purchases are for immediate delivery and are wanted for August sales events in out-of-town stores. Most of the special sale business has already been placed, and selling agents look for little real volume from that direction this season.

Felt Hat Orders Coming In.

Although a fair number of orders have been placed for Fall on men's felt hats, a considerable amount of buying still remains to be done, according to trade reports yesterday. Several of the largest department stores and individual retailers in the city have yet to make their commitments, it was said. No particular change in styles from last season has been made. The narrow, snap-brim style is expected to continue in favor. Although 1931 straw hat lines have been opened for a few weeks, no buyers have appeared as yet. Salesmen on the road are reported to have received some orders.

Fall Pottery Buying Starts.

Closing a season which established new records for profits and volume in the sale of outdoor pottery, manufacturers are now turning their full attention to Fall and holiday business. New lines of vases, jardinieres and similar pieces suitable for ornaments inside the home are on display in most of the local show rooms and are being ordered in fair quantities by buyers now in the market. Pieces finished in pastel shades of green, blue and yellow are finding favor with stores. One producer reports a good demand for vases and bric-a-brac finished in blood red and also in freak glazes, which combine a number of colors run together. Medium priced merchandise is wanted.

Stores Cautious in Gift Purchases.

Uncertainty over business conditions, according to gift ware sellers, accounts for the extreme caution being shown by stores in ordering Fall and holiday merchandise at this time. By the middle of July last year, it was pointed out, Fall buying was well under way and reached its full activity early in August. So far this month little real business has developed, although the attendance of buyers has been fair. Most of the store representatives report that they are merely inspecting the new offerings now and will not be ready to place orders until the middle of next month at the earliest.

Buying of Woolens Lags.

Despite the radical reduction in prices on woolens, clothing manufacturers are buying sparingly, feeling uncertain about the future course of the market, it was stated in the trade yesterday. Clothing producers are taking advantage of the price situation and are seeking the lowest possible quotations. They say that whenever sizable orders are bentioned to mills, the latter are finding it possible to shave prices in an effort to obtain contracts. Most cloth producers have been busy during the past week revising their quotations to conform with the American Woolen lists, which were released Monday.

Files Answer in Packers' Case.

In a special bulletin to its membership the National Wholesale Grocers' Association yesterday called attention to the fact that its attorneys have filed their answer in the pending action by which Chicago packers seek to set aside the consent decree under which they are barred from entering the retail grocery field. The jobbers base their oppositon to the packers' claims on the grounds that trade and commerce by individuals and concerns dealing in items not related to the packing field would be seriously curtailed if the packers were permitted to enter the retail selling field. Hearings in the case will start on Oct. 7 before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Wool Institute Gives Cloth Data.

The semi-annual analyses of men's wear suiting orders by colors and patterns have been published in booklet form under the title of "Looking Forward at Fashions in Cloth and Clothing for Men" and are being mailed to mills, sales agents, manufacturing clothiers and retailers by the Wool Institute, according to an announcement from that group yesterday. The booklet contains charts showing the percentage of orders for fancy worsted suitings by colors and patterns and for fancy woolen suitings by colors and patterns. The latter in price ranges below and above $1.50 a yard. The institute will continue to compile each month figures that show the trend of the demand for various colors and patterns.

Bedspread Orders Satisfactory.

Although the amount of orders being placed for Fall bedspreads is not equal to last year's total, the trade is satisfied with the business which is coming in, according to comment yesterday. Buyers are making commitments cautiously, but it is thought that eventually reorders will make up for the lack of volume in the initial purchasing. Retailers and jobbers are also spreading their purchases over a more varied number of lines, it was said, with no one pattern outstanding, in contrast to former years, when buying was concentrated on just a few numbers. Rose continues to be the outstanding shade, with helios and greens following. Some of last year's styles are being sold, but the bulk of commitments centre on the new patterns and shades.

Gray Goods Trading Inactive.

Further declines in the raw cotton market are causing an unsettled situation in gray goods. Yesterday very little buying was done and the market was quiet. Purchasers are delaying commitments as long as possible, buying only for their immediate requirements. Prices held up well yesterday. In standard printcloths, 38½-inch 60-48s were quoted at 4⅞ cents and 38½-inch 64-60s at 5½ cents. A few orders were placed for 39-inch 68-72s at 6¼ cents and 39-inch 80-squares at 7¾ cents. Sheetings were inactive, with inquiry negligible.

SEES TREATY BREACH IN APPLE EMBARGO

CANADA FAVORED, HE SAYS

Secretary Replies That He Has Seen Ambassador Twice, Besides Cabling to London.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has protested to the State Department that Great Britain is violating Article 2 of the Treaty of Commerce with the United States by permitting apples to be imported from Canada and prohibiting the importation of American apples of certain grades.

In a letter to Secretary Stimson, Senator Swanson told of the embargo against Virginia apples. Article 2 of the treaty, he pointed out, provides:

"Nor shall any prohibition be imposed on the exportation or importation of any articles the growth, produce or manufacture of the United States, or of his Britannic Majesty's territories in Europe, to or from the said territories of his Britannic Majesty in Europe or to or from the said United States, which shall not equally extend to all other nations."

The Senator said he understood "there has been no fruit fly found in American apples since they have been inspected by the Department of Agriculture of the United States." The complaint of the presence of fruit fly was made prior to this inspection, he said, but he understood that "exactly the same fruit fly was found in apples from Canada, and to a greater extent."

"It seems to me," he added, "that Great Britain should remove this embargo against apples from the United States, or extend it to Canada and other nations who are part of the British Commonwealth of nations."

Secretary Stimson, replying to the Senator, pointed out that he had cabled a protest to London. He added:

"I have also twice seen the British Ambassador in Washington and pressed upon him the question under the treaty of 1815, which you presented to me, in respect to possible discrimination by the British Government in favor of Canada. I told the Ambassador that your position under that treaty seemed to be well taken and deserved careful consideration, and he promised at the first interview to convey my views to his government, and at our second interview a few days later he told me he had done so and would again cable them to expedite their decision."

Samuel Wexler, 57 years old, a real estate operator, of 112 West 144th Street, was killed last night when his sedan overturned on the Harlem River Speedway at 168th Street.

According to witnesses, the car was seen to wabble, as though the driver had lost control, just before it ran to the side of the speedway, where it crashed into a tree. Wexler was dead when taken from underneath the wrecked car.

Harper A. Holt Says Rates Will Rise as Commerce Commission's Control Is Lost.

BALTIMORE, July 24.—A suit to enjoin the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's "store-door" delivery in New York City was filed in Federal court today by the New York Dock Railway, the Bush Terminal Railroad Company, the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal and the Jay Street Terminal of New York.

The suit charges that the service by the Baltimore & Ohio was started on July 15, and that no new freight tariff was published or filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Prior to July 15, it declares, the Baltimore & Ohio observed the interstate freight rates applying to the so-called free lighterage limits in the New York metropolitan area.

Judge William C. Coleman and Judge Morris A. Soper of the Federal court are away. Charles E. Cottrell of New York came to Baltimore in connection with the filing of the suit as counsel.

It is said that this hearing may be held in either Baltimore or New York. Baltimore & Ohio officials here declined to discuss the action.

Under the "store-door" delivery service, the action filed today declares freight is loaded into motor trucks at St. George, S. I., and conveyed by ferry to Pier 31, East River, and then distributed to consignees. Freight from New York shippers is handled similarly in the reverse direction, it says.

The petition states that the trucking system is operated by the Store Door Delivery Corporation, to which the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad pays "various sums of money." It says that the Baltimore & Ohio does not collect from shippers and consignees, charged previously, for the car-float lighterage service.

This "store-door" delivery is declared to be unlawful in that it is a device by means of which the railroad contributes to what would otherwise be the total expense of the shipper or consignee.

Holt Calls Method "Vicious."

The action of the Brooklyn terminal companies yesterday in the court in Baltimore was based on the contention that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was using "illegal and vicious" transportation methods which would result in higher freight rates in New York, further congestion in the streets and diversion of traffic to other ports, according to Harper A. Holt, secretary of the Bush Terminal Company.

He explained that carload freight under this system is transferred to trucks at St. George, S. I., and carried to Pier 21, East River, the freight rate for this route being adjusted by the railroad and the truckmen. At the river pier the railroad drops its connection with the freight and the rate thence to the consignees is made by the truckmen. This, the terminal men charge, takes the freight from the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission and opens the door to vicious practices by the truckmen.

Mr. Holt said that manipulation of rates from the river pier to the consignees would result, and that solicitation of business with offers of favorable rates would upset the entire freight-rate structure. Heretofore such freight as was consigned to Brooklyn was transported from the Staten Island terminal on the carfloats of the terminal companies to the Brooklyn terminals, and there the consignees called with their trucks. The trip to Brooklyn being by water would eliminate the trucks from the streets except for the trip from the terminals to the consignees.

The terminal men emphasized that they did not oppose the performance of a trucking service by the railroad in effecting delivery at New York, but that the device now used is in violation of the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission issued last Fall. The plan received the endorsement recently of the Merchants' Association of New York, the Shippers' Conference of Greater New York, the Publishers' Association of New York and the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens. These groups urged that the other trunk lines serving New York employ a similar system.

BARGE LINE AUTHORIZED.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The first important privately owned barge line operation under the provisions of the Denison act was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, when it granted the application of the Mississippi Valley Barge Line Company to operate on the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers between Cincinnati, New Orleans and intermediate points.

The commission directed that connecting rail carriers should establish by Oct. 1 through routes and joint rates with the new line.

The barge company proposes to establish through barge-rail and rail-barge-rail routes by way of Cincinnati between points in central territory, including Illinois and Southeastern Wisconsin, and New Orleans and points in Southern territory usually served by all-rail routes.

R. C. STODDARD ENDS LIFE.

Ship Man Shoots Himself in Mamaroneck Home.

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., July 24.—Ralph C. Stoddard, 40 years old, a director of the Antilles Steamship Company, 26 Beaver Street, New York, shot and killed himself last night at his home, 88 North Chatsworth Avenue. His son, John, 10 years, returning from a theatre with his nurse, found the body in a bedroom. Worry over ill health was given by friends as the motive for the suicide.

Mrs. Georgia Stoddard, the widow, was vacationing at Menville, N. C., with two of the children, Ruth, 14, and George, 15 months old.

PLANS CUP RACE CRUISE DESPITE SALE OF LINER

Agency Manager Says He Will Provide Another Ship—Denies Advertising Liquor Service.

The sale of the Royal Mail liner Araguaya, which was to have been chartered by the Atlantic Cruises of 420 Lexington Avenue to carry a group to the America's cup race at Newport in September, will not mean the abandonment of plans for the cruise, according to E. R. Michie, manager of the agency.

He said yesterday that he was negotiating with two steamship lines for a ship suitable for a party of about two hundred and fifty persons and he expected to be able soon to announce definite plans for a cruise. The ship will leave New York at midnight on Sept. 12 and return Sept. 21, he said.

Mr. Michie said he was not concerned principally with the liquor service on his ship, although the rumor that the Araguaya would carry liquor to the boat race under the protection of the British flag was the cause of official protest by the American Steamship Owners' Association to Federal officials.

Mr. Michie has long been associated with naval designing, chiefly of yachts and speedboats, and conceived the idea of a cruise to the boat race, he said, when yachting enthusiasts pointed out that accommodations would be lacking while the races were being held. He said he realized that the law would permit the transportation of liquor but denied that he had advertised that fact as an inducement to potential customers.

The Araguaya is scheduled to reach New York from Bermuda today, and will sail tomorrow for England where her new owners will take charge.

Hesterberg Also Orders Beach Staffs to Have Doctors Direct Resuscitation.

Following receipt of a letter from Commissioner of Hospitals Greeff criticizing the policy of the life guards at Coney Island in attempting to resuscitate submersion victims before calling ambulance surgeons, an instance of which was followed last Saturday by the death of Hyman Getzkim, 600 East 169th Street, Borough President Hesterberg of Brooklyn yesterday suspended the two life guards involved and ordered other guards to abandon the procedure and permit ambulance surgeons to take full charge.

The two life guards implicated in an alleged refusal to allow Dr. Irving Plain of the Coney Island Hospital staff to use an inhalator while they worked over Getzkim with the Schaefer method are Herman Hirschhorn of 1,729 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, and Samuel Rosenbloom of 1,575 Townsend Avenue, the Bronx. They were ordered to appear before Commissioner of Public Works Peter A. Carey next Tuesday for a hearing.

"According to reports I have received, these boys probably were somewhat too zealous in their efforts to save Getzkim," Mr. Hesterberg said. "All the life guards at Coney Island have been instructed to call for an ambulance at once in such cases and give way to the doctor when he arrives."

Commissioner Greeff wrote his letter following an investigation by Deputy Commissioner of Hospitals Thomas W. Cox. According to Commissioner Greeff, the controversy between the life guards and the internes has been one of long standing, each claiming authority in supervising the resuscitation work.

MACKAY YACHT SEIZED.

Wireless to The New York Times.

COPENHAGEN, July 24.—Clarence H. Mackay's new $200,000 yacht the Machinoch has been seized by the Danish authorities and will be sold at a compulsory auction on July 31 because of an unpaid bill for Diesel motors. Mr. Mackay has brought the case before the Danish Court of Arbitration, but a judgment cannot be rendered until after the auction has been held.

The Machinoch was designed according to Mr. Mackay's own specifications and ordered from the American firm of F. P. Humphreys. The Humphreys company, however, transferred the work to Christensen's shipyard at Marstal, Denmark, with its own representatives as overseers. Later, when the motors from Burmeister & Wain, the famous Danish Diesel works, arrived, Mr. Mackay's representatives raised many objections and refused to pay the Burmeister & Wain bill.

In order to force payment of the claim the Danish firm allowed the authorities to seize the Machinoch and offer it at auction. It is believed the Burmeisters themselves will buy the yacht unless there is a settlement in the meantime.

SALES OF CANDY FALL OFF.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A decline in the wholesale candy business of 3 per cent in June, compared with the same month in 1929, was reported today by the Department of Commerce, but it was noted that the seasonal slump between May and June was much less than last year.

The wholesale business reported by 396 manufacturers was $15,987,098 in June, compared with $16,479,195 last year. The manufacturing retailers showed a slight gain, the comparative totals being $1,269,556 and $1,210,434.

New York wholesalers reported a decrease from $2,052,939 in June, 1929, to $1,822,296 last month, a loss of 11.2 per cent. The difference between June's business and that of May amounted to 13.9 per cent, while the first six months of 1930 were 13.4 per cent under the same period in 1929.

The Pennsylvania Railroad will continue its special boat train service to Pier 4, Brooklyn, the docking place of the North German Lloyd Line ships, it announced yesterday. The service was started last Spring. It includes the operation of through cars from Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, Toledo, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, with stops at the principal intermediate cities.

BIDS LOW FOR CONTRACT TO BUILD THREE SHIPS

Newport News Company Likely to Get $7,500,000 Work—Other Vessels Planned.

The Newport News Shipbuilding Company was low bidder for the construction of three new ships for the Colombian Steamship Company, it was announced yesterday. The figures were not announced, but it is understood the cost of the three ships will be about $7,500,000.

The company recently received a mail contract from the Postoffice Department on condition that it build ships that conform to Federal requirements, and it has also applied to the Shipping Board for a loan under the Jones-White act.

The placing of the order for the ships has been delayed pending the revision of plans to meet the demands of the Navy Department. It is expected that it will be placed in about three months. Plans have been drawn by Theodore E. Ferris, naval architect, of New York. The ships will carry about 150 passengers and will operate between New York and Colombia.

The Newport News company was also low bidder for the construction of three new ships for the Eastern Steamship Company, it was learned. It is understood the total cost will be about $8,000,000. Two of the ships will be operated between New York, Boston and Yarmouth and one between New York and Norfolk. The ships in the Yarmouth service will be built with the aid of a Federal loan and the Norfolk boat will be built by the company.

The Red D Line will open bids July 28 for a freighter to be operated in its service to Maracaibo. The company has applied to the Shipping Board for a construction loan. The ship will be completed in October, 1931.

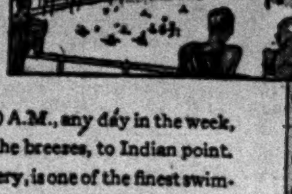
Going Swimming?
How about a Boat Ride Too?



BOARD a Day Line steamer at 10 A.M., any day in the week, and sail up the Hudson, with the breezes, to Indian point.
There, nestled among forest greenery, is one of the finest swimming pools in the land—100 ft. wide and 150 ft. long. Dive, duck, plunge and splash to your heart's content ... the water is crystal-clear ... the pool's the place for a day of real sport.
Indian Point has every facility for fun after swimming, too—then comes the homeward sail, with a fine supper on the boat, if you want it, dancing all the way ... and moonlight to make a great finish for a great day!
Boats leave W. 42 St. at 10:00 A. M. daily, also at 2:00 P. M. every day, except Monday and Friday. Twenty minutes later from W. 129 St. Additional steamers at 11 A. M. (Wednesday and Thursday) and at 9:30 A. M. (Sunday only) from W. 42 St. Pier.
